New Orleans Mayor Arms 500 Citizens Against Long

Denied Aid of Marines, Walmsley Mobilizes in Political War.

Senator's Troops Retain Vote Lists

New Orleans, Aug. 1 (U.P.).—Left on his own by refusal of the Federal Government to intervene in Louisiana's political war, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley today began organizing his own "army" to combat National Guardsmen brought into the city by Senator Huey P. Long.

The Government's decision against sending the Marines to the rescue and "Kingfish" Long's description of the Mayor as a "turkey head" led Walmsley to start enlisting private citizens in an auxiliary police force.

While Long's troopers trained machine guns on the city hall and continued to hold the registrar's office across the street, Mayor Walmsley declared he was ready for a "war to the end" against "this night screech owl."

500 Citizens Armed.

The Mayor increased his police force from 840 to 1,340 men. Five hundred citizens were sworn in for emergency duty and given shotguns and pistols. The police force was reorganized. The three-platoon system of 280 men on duty at one time was discontinued and a two-platoon system, with 670 men to a shift, was substituted.

At the same time Long's lieutenants began distributing hand grenades and tear gas bombs to the 40 guardsmen at the Soule Building.

Adherents of Mayor Walmsley and his administration were indignant after the Senator announced in a radio speech that 24,500 names had been scratched from the city's registration rolls.

Building Seized Monday.

The two factions of the ruling Democratic party have persistently accused each other of skullduggery in manipulating votes and falsifying

Couple Found Shot Dead in Cottage

Both Wounded in Head; W. Va. Owner, Seized, Denies Charge.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 1 (U.P.).—Harold Headley, 31, of Vienna, W. Va., and Mrs. Virginia K. Wiseman, 31, of North Parkersburg, were found dead in a summer cottage on the Little Kanawha River near here today.

They had been shot through the head with a pistol. Police said the couple had been murdered and held Fred Hawkins, Parkersburg, owner of the cottage.

Hawkins, who accompanied the pair to the cottage last night, told police Mrs. Wiseman shot Headley during a quarrel and then committed suicide. Hawkins' pistol was used, police said.

Hot Iron Brand Kidnap Charge Not Denied by 4

Chicago, Aug. 1 (AP).—Without denying the crime imputed to them or offering any evidence, the defense of four men accused of kidnaping Harry Welch, Toledo clothier, rested suddenly today.

All four had been identified by Welch as the men who held him captive in a basement flat and tortured him with hot irons, demanding $2,000 for his freedom.

Mother Ill, Prisoner Flees Leavenworth

Leavenworth, Kans., Aug. 1 (AP).—Nathan T. Corn, 23-year-old Army prisoner who had received many recent messages telling him his mother was dying in Rock Hill, S. C., today overpowered an armed guard at Fort Leavenworth and escaped in a Government truck, presumably to visit her.

N. Y. Trades Holiday Called as Code Protest

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—A one-day suspension of business by New York State service trades was voted today by their emergency committee as a protest demonstration to support its demand for an intrastate code of fair competition.

The committee called the one-day business stoppage for August 9, beginning at 1 p. m., and effecting barbers, hairdressers, dry cleaners, shoe repairers, launderers and tailors.

Voice of Safety Rules Traffic For First Day

Maiden Trip of New White Police Car Develops Into Parade.

The maiden voyage of the "Voice of Safety," alias "Stentor," turned out to be a parade yesterday. With motorcycle escort and train of following cars, the "voice" was anything but kind to traffic during the early hours of its first run.

But as one spectator said: "You can't tell how fast a ship will go by the amount of ribbon tied to her when she is launched." And that was the spirit with which Washington received the christening exercises for the "voice."

Now Stentor was an old Greek whose name is alive today because he had a leather-lunged voice like an old-time policeman. Washington's "Stentor" is a small white sedan with loud-speaking apparatus designed to put a word of warning in the ear of every traffic violator observed.

From the time its first run began at 10 a. m., through the dedicatory exercises and up until midnight, the voice did this thing, to the surprise, tolerant amusement, awe, and sometimes irritation of the offenders who got the electrically amplified advice.

Orders Are Obeyed.

From the barefoot street gamin who scrambled back when told "Boy, get back up on the sidewalk," to the woman motorist who crimsoned when she heard this, "The lady in the Buick sedan should put out her left hand when she stops her car," there was obedience.

When dedicatory exercises and movie obligations were met, the car went into service without its motorcade following and began to do the work expected of it by the Police Department and the cooperating safety committee of the Washington Board of Trade—the impressing of motorists and pedestrians alike that if traffic laws were obeyed lives will be saved and injuries avoided.

The first voice issuing from the conical speaker atop the white car was that of Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police. At the wheel was Capt. Milton D. Smith, of the Traffic Bureau, while the third passenger was Melvin C. Hazen, president of the Board of District Commissioners.

Louder Speaker Wanted.

In part, the little loudspeaker belied the reputation of stentor because it had a gentle tone which would not carry more than 50 feet. Although police officials do not want the voice so loud that it might fluster "victims," it is believed that it must be a little louder to be more effective.

It was estimated that more than 500 persons received the ether

More Mounted Police Rushed to Strike Zone

Stellarton, Nova Scotia, Aug. 1 (AP).—Reinforcements were hurried into Stellarton today by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to prevent further riots among miners of the Acadia Coal Co., after pickets rushed a group of six policemen, injuring two and bruising others.

Violence first broke out on the Albion property yesterday afternoon, when strikers and nonstrikers clashed. Several miners were injured.

"Air Train" Is Tested For Flight Here Today

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—A test flight of the "air train," which is scheduled to make its first flight to Washington tomorrow, was successfully carried out today at Floyd Bennett Field.

An airplane towed three gliders over New York City and headed down the bay toward Floyd Bennett Field. Over the field the gliders were cut off, landing five minutes apart. The "air train" will operate commercially between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and the Capital.

Wagner, Prall Hurt as Auto Falls 20 Feet

Senator's Ribs Fractured, While Representative Has Broken Leg.

Westport, N. Y., Aug. 1 (AP).—Swerving his automobile to avoid hitting a truck, United States Senator Robert F. Wagner was injured when the machine plunged off an Adirondack Mountain highway and into a brook near here today.

Representative Anning S. Prall, of Staten Island, en route with Senator Wagner to a fishing camp in Quebec, was more severely hurt.

Dr. Harold J. Harris, who treated them, said they could be moved tomorrow to New York.

"One or two of Senator Wagner's ribs were fractured and Representative Prall has a compound fracture of the lower right leg," Dr. Harris said. "There was no evidence of skull fractures or concussions, but we never are sure of concussions until 24 hours later. Both have face and head lacerations.

"Both men were conscious when taken from the automobile. They are resting comfortably and in no great pain. They will need to rest tonight as the shock of such an accident is severe."

Both Wagner and Prall are Democrats. Prall has represented the Eleventh District since 1922. Wagner was elected to the Senate in 1926. He is one of the Administration's authorities on labor legislation and mediation. In July he was sent to Portland to attempt an adjustment of the dock and marine workers strike. While there he was mistakenly fired upon.

Wagner and Prall were en route to Lucerne, Quebec. Senator Wagner was driving. Between Westport and Wadhams, where the highway through the mountains is winding and narrow, the Senator, in passing one truck on a curve, left the highway to avoid hitting another truck coming from the opposite direction.

The car dropped 20 feet into a brook. It did not turn over. The two men were hurled against the dash board and windshield. Passing motorists brought them to Dr. Harris office.

Alabama Plane Crash Kills One; Another Hurt

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 1 (AP).—A spinning airplane crashed from low altitude into a residential section here today, carrying a man to his death and causing critical injuries to another.

Curtis J. Freeman, 25, was killed as the ship struck, nose first, and W. R. Padgett was injured seriously.

Pope Praises Teachers In Receiving Canadians

His eulogy was delivered in the course of an audience granted 60 Canadian superior school teachers. At the end of the audience, his holiness blessed the teachers, their work and the Dominion.

Pension Act Faces Attack By Railroads

Injunction to Be Sought Here May Keep New Board Penniless.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

R. V. Fletcher, general counsel of the Association of Railroad Executives, yesterday announced that an injunction suit is in preparation by the Nation's major railroads to challenge the Constitutionality of the new compulsory pension system set up by Congress.

Charging, as the first of a half-dozen or more points, that Congress overstepped its bounds, the suit will contend that the regulation of pensions has no direct connection with interstate commerce and hence lies beyond the control of legislation.

Furthermore, the petition will set out that all of the railroads and all of their employes are "pooled," in effect, under the system, with the result that individual roads may be penalized in assessments because of employment conditions among the others.

Plan Fight to Finish.

The suit may be filed in the District, it was learned, within a week or 10 days. It will herald a fight to the finish on the part of the railroads, whose executives have formed a council of war headed by Mr. Fletcher.

In this atmosphere of uncertainty, which observers belived can only be cleared by a United States Su-

Minneapolis Troops Jail 20 in Strike

U. S. Mediators Renew Efforts; Another Picket Dies.

Minneapolis, Aug. 1 (AP).—The National Guard won a bloodless victory today after hours of activity in which Minneapolis' army of occupation in the truck drivers' strike seized headquarters of leaders, harassed pickets and arrested more than a score.

Operations of the military started soon before John Belor, a picket wounded July 20 when strikers clashed with police, died in a hospital, bringing to two the number of men who have died in the present strike, the second walkout here this year. Two men were killed and scores injured in the May walkout.

Federal mediators, the Rev. Francis Haas and E. H. Dunnigan, planned their next moves to break the impasse between striker and employer during the quiet that followed in the wake of marching men with rifles, machine guns and bayonets, who nipped the scheme of strikers to halt all trucks by force today.

In the early morning, 1,000 guardsmen came to headquarters of the drivers. Troops arrested two ringleaders, confiscated 40 automobiles, and dispersed several score occupants.

Strikers Attack Trucks.

Widespread attacks on moving trucks resulted. Several drivers were beaten and slugged, some vehicles overturned, and other operators frightened from their machines. The guards struck swiftly at the revolt of strikers against the military, which had granted 7,500 trucks to move.

Arrests followed. Then came the second raid of the day, which forced out some 200 men and women in the Central Labor Union's offices.

Troopers in 20 Army trucks lined the street before the offices, dispersed 2,000 spectators outside, and searched and questioned occupants of the building. Among them was State Representative Roy E. Wier, active in labor circles.

Union representatives later were allowed to use their office, but guards were placed at the building, as well as at strike headquarters, where Vincent Dunne and

Langer's Wife To Seek Office

"Vindication" Candidate Accepts Nomination as Husband Refuses.

Bismarck, N. Dak., Aug. 1 (AP).—Mrs. William A. Langer was designated by the Republican State Central Committee as the party's nominee for Governor today shortly after her husband, the deposed chief executive, resigned the nomination.

She will head the ticket which Langer, two days before he was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment, led to a smashing primary victory.

The committee, 36 to 9, voted to support Mrs. Langer, who will be offered as a "vindication" candidate by the Langer faction, which charged the ousted Governor was a victim of "persecution."

Langer's resignation came after it was indicated his right to make the November race would be challenged on the ground his conviction and sentence for a Federal felony had annulled his citizenship rights.

Texas to Aid Needy.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 1 (AP).—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson today announced she would convene the Texas Legislature in special session August 27 to authorize the issuance of additional unemployment relief bonds.

Balloon Down at Atlanta; Three Still Up, One Missing

Atlanta, Aug. 1 (AP).—Forced down by shortage of ballast, a balloon in the National elimination race was here tonight, with three others still in the air and one unreported since they left Birmingham last night.

The Goodyear VIII, piloted by former Lieuts. Karl L. Lange and Verner L. Smith, dropped in a cornfield at the edge of Atlanta at 11:30 a. m. (Central Standard Time) soon after it and two other entries were sighted over the city.

Advised that the balloons had been sighted, an Army airplane took off from Candler Field and identified the others as the Army No. 1, piloted by Capt. William J. Flood, with Lieut. R. R. Gillespie as aid, and the Army No. 2, piloted by Lieut. Haynie McCormick, with Lieut. J. P. Kirkendall as aid. The No. 1 was 9,600 feet up and the No. 2 was 7,000.

Cruising about hunting the Goodyear VIII, which they did not know had landed, Maj. J. A. Meissner and Lieut. B. B. Borden, in the Army plane, went above the clouds and discovered the entry of the Buffalo (N. Y.), Courier-Express, piloted by George Hineman and Milford Vanik, drifting at 11,000 feet. It had not been sighted from the ground.

Only the Navy entry, piloted by Lieut. Charles H. Kendall, with Lieut. H. T. Orville as aid, was not reported during the day. Dense clouds covered this section and it could easily have passed over cities and towns without being seen.

The three balloons establishing the longest distance will represent the United States in the international contest at Warsaw, Poland, September 23, with the Gordon Bennett trophy as a prize.

The five balloons left Birmingham last night under what officials described as ideal weather conditions.

Hindenburg Dying; Hitler Will Take Full Power in Germany

U. S. Opposes Naval Equality for Japan

Secretary Swanson Says Nation Will Insist 5-5-3 Ratio Continue in Force, But Might Approve 20 Per Cent Cut in Armaments.

Japan was told bluntly yesterday by Secretary of the Navy Swanson that the United States would be opposed to abandonment of the 5-5-3 naval ratio fixed by the Washington treaty of 1922, although this Nation might favor a cut of 20 per cent in naval araments.

"If we abandon the present ratios there is no telling where we shall go," the cabient officer informed newspapermen.

"I do not believe we should give equality to Japan," he added. "That would be one-sided, and we have been opposed to this."

Surrounded by ranking officers of the Navy, Secretary Swanson said he was expressing only his personal opinion, but observers interpreted that he was laying down the position of his department and, in all probability, the Administration.

The declaration came from Mr. Swanson in answer to questions by newspapermen regarding his reaction to the statement of Premier Keisuke Okada, of Japan, that his country was dissatisfied with the 5-5-3 ratio, arbitrarily designated as Japan's proportion of capital ships in relation to the United States and Great Britain.

Mr. Swanson said his views would not necessarily be the stand to be taken by the Administration at the 1935 naval conference. The Government's policy, he emphasized, will be determined by President Roosevelt, "but my convictions are that we should not change the ratio."

The Navy Secretary, who represented the United States at the Geneva disarmament conference, said he had repeatedly expressed his position concerning the ratio and general reduction of armaments in public statements, "and in my reports to the President."

Since Japan is virtually at treaty strength and England is much nearer than the United States, the Cabinet Officer said, these powers would have to make reduction in actual fighting craft and not merely tear up blueprints. He added that for the United States a 20 per

Motor Revival Makes Detroit Pro-New Deal

Recovery, Aided by U. S. Spending, Cements Support.

By Elliott Thurston.

Detroit, Aug. 1.—Detroit is so dominated by the automobile industry that no other index so accurately reflects local economic—and hence political—conditions. One of the major victims of the depression, with one of the worst banking and real estate collapses, Detroit has staged enough of a comeback, thanks to the outpouring of Federal funds and revival of the automobile trade, to be pronouncedly pro-New Deal.

One hears less criticism of the New Deal, of the Brain Trust, of Gen. Johnson, of Administration policy, here than in Cleveland, for example, just across Lake Erie. A few of the old-liners, some bankers and business men, look beyond the charts recording the sales of automobiles, accessories and tires, and wonder what is going to happen to the dollar, the budget, the tax bill.

But as much of a survey as is possible in a midsummer record-breaking heat wave in these parts, discloses no such widespread fears of the future or downright hostility to Administration policy as exists along the upper brackets elsewhere. The masses, here as in New England, seem overwhelmingly, enthusiastically not only pro-Roosevelt but pro-New Deal.

Auto Trade Revival.

And this attitude can hardly be disassociated from the recovery in the automobile industry, primarily. According to bank charts, the output of automobiles rose to a high peak represented by an index number of close to 110 in 1929. Then it sagged sharply, steadily down to less than 20 at the end of 1932. Since then it has climbed almost as steadily to about 45, until the seasonal slump of last summer, then up higher to about 55 before this summer's slump set in.

This year's slump was hastened when the manufacturers put up their prices, trying to offset the higher wages and shorter hours of NRA. They encountered sudden, stubborn sales resistance, switched back to lower prices—but altogether lost a good deal of momentum by the mistake.

For it is evident that the cheaper products are selling, as they are in New England. And it is a striking thing here that many automo-

Charles M. Schwab Is Held "Very Ill"

Last of Old Steelmasters Stricken by Indigestion.

Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the man who the late Andrew Carnegie liked to refer to as "one of my young geniuses," is described by his physician, Dr. D. S. Rice, as "very ill."

Austria Hangs Third in Drive To Crush Nazis

Pay of Suspected Rebel Sympathizers Held Up by Government.

Vienna, Aug. 1 (AP).—With the hangman's rope, a sentence of imprisonment and empty pay envelopes, the government of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg today pressed its fight against the defeated Nazi rebels of Austria.

Freidrich Wurnig, a Nazi, was hanged at 8 p. m. today at Innsbruck, three hours after he was sentenced to death for killing Police Commandant Franz Hickl in that city last Wednesday.

Wurnig, the third Nazi to die on the gallows in two days, collapsed when he was told that clemency was refused and had to be carried to the gallows.

An alleged accomplice, Christian Meyer, was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment, receiving clemency, it was reported, because he had revealed Nazi secrets to the government.

Salaries Held Up.

Economic pressure against Nazis in government employ was ordered.

The salaries of all persons in the public employ who are suspected of aiding or encouraging the Nazi revolt will be withheld.

The suspects will be denounced, the order says, to the nearest police station, and will remain without pay until their cases are investigated.

The order recalled that 20 Federal employes were reported to have cried "Heil Hitler" when the Nazi putschists seized the chancellery last Wednesday.

The decision as to acceptance by the new government of Franz von Papen as special German minister was held up today.

This friendly gesture of Chancellor Hitler remains unrecognized, and it was said in government circles that it is expected nothing will be done during the uncertainty with respect to President Von Hindenburg.

Rintelen Confession Denied.

The semiofficial newspaper Weltblatt summing up today the Nazi rebellion in the provinces which followed the seizure of the chancellery and the killing of Chancellor Dollfuss reported that the majority of the rebels were peasants.

Others, said the paper, were public officials, policemen, postmasters, teachers, customs officers and physicians.

Just what per cent of the public employes will be affected by the anti-Nazi drive within their ranks could not be established today.

Police executives denied a report that Dr. Anton Rintelen, pro-Nazi former Minister to Rome, had "confessed" to taking part in the putsch. They said Dr. Rintelen, who was wounded after he was arrested, stuck to his story that he was innocent of any part in the activities of the rebels who mentioned him as Dollfuss' successor.

300 Lost in Korean Floods.

Concern Eclipses All Other Issues

Austrian Problem Is Put Aside in War Hero's Extremity.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

Berlin, Aug. 1.—Paul von Hindenburg, President and hero of Germany, grew weaker tonight and his stout heart beat more slowly.

He lapsed into unconsciousness at Neudeck, his country estate, and at one time it was announced he was in death throes.

About an hour and a half later, at 9:50 p. m., his physician, Dr. Ferdinand Sauerbruch, telephoned to Berlin that he was amazed at the president's power to resistance and that he might linger for some time.

The news followed the revelation by a close friend of Chancellor Adolf Hitler that the latter planned in the event of Von Hindenburg's death to become both president and chancellor.

This step, say political observers, would give Hitler a dictatorship as absolute as any in the world.

Hitler Visits Chief.

The physicians' bulletin announcing the growing weakness of the 86-year-old field marshal-general was issued at the end of a day during which at one time he had shown improvement.

The doctors earlier had reported that the remarkable vitality of the Reichspresident again had demonstrated itself and had announced that bulletin service was suspended.

A short time later, however, the four noted specialists at Neudeck issued this bulletin:

Hitler visited the Reichspresident during the day in a hurried trip.

With his immediate entourage the chancellor flew to Marienburg and then motored to Neudeck. He was with the President for an hour and a quarter.

Farewell Message.

The chancellor took to Von Hindenburg what the inspired press described as the greetings and the hopes of the whole German people.

As Hitler raced back for a special cabinet meeting tonight he brought perhaps a farewell message from the old soldier or a political will and testament.

The chancellor appeared tired and worried when he returned, and went at once to his office.

Hitler stated the President was able to shake hands with him and that he was still fully conscious at the time of the visit early in the afternoon.

The sinking spell came later.

Hitler said he told Von Hindenburg that the entire nation was hoping and praying for him. They clasped hands, the President in acknowledgment, and Von Hindenburg later fell asleep.

May Live Another Day.

The country practitioner whom President von Hindenburg personally called in to join the specialists at Neudeck expressed the opinion tonight that the President's remarkable heart may hold out for another day.

"The condition of the Reich's President is very serious," said the physician, Dr. Riets, "but he may survive the night. He possesses an unusually healthy heart, although it is becoming weaker.

"The President sleeps most of the time and is very weak, as he can not eat anything. His mind is wandering increasingly."

The heavy guard remained about the President's estate tonight.

Austrian Issue Shunted Aside.

The Austrian question, and Franz von Papen's wait for the still lacking acceptance as Minister to Austria caused less than a ripple.

The squabble with Italy over the Austrian outbreaks and the economic worries of the Reich were forgotten for the time being.

Interest extended beyond the president's health to the question of just how Hitler would proceed to legalize his reported plans to become president and chancellor.

Hitler's successorship to the presidency, if carried out, would amount to setting aside the old constitutional provision naming the chief justice of the supreme court as temporary head of the Reich in event of an emergency.

It has been pointed out, however, that the present cabinet has power to "do almost anything."

As Hitler often has stated his

Soviet Offer To Pay Claim Is Reported

Foreign Policy Group Tells of Lump Sum Proposal to U. S.

A reported offer of Soviet Russia to liquidate both the Kerensky and private American claims by a lump-sum payment was described here yesterday by the Foreign Policy Association.

The State Department refused either to confirm or deny the report, but lump-sum settlement has been proposed to other creditor nations by the Soviet.

The announcement came on the eve of resumption of American-Soviet debt negotiations today by Secretary Hull and Alexander Troyanovsky, the Russian Ambassador.

Meanwhile, Mr. Hull said other questions between the two countries would be deferred until the debt problem was settled. Observers expected an understanding on deportation of aliens would be delayed.

Vera M. Dean, of the research staff, wrote the Foreign Policy Association's report.

"It is reported," the document explained, "that the U. S. S. R. has offered to pay a lump sum, to be determined by agreement, which would liquidate the debt of the provisional government and the claims of American nationals.

No Outright Payment.

"This sum, however, would not be paid outright, but would gradually be collected by the United States in the form of additional interest paid by the Soviet government on American credits, which the U. S. S. R. wishes to secure as an integral part of the debt settlement.

"The Washington negotiations are consequently expected to concentrate on two points: The amount which the Soviet government is willing to pay and the United States is ready to accept in liquidation of debts and claims, and the sum which the American Government is prepared to advance to the Soviet Union in the form either of a loan or of long-term credits for Soviet purchases in this country."

The report, discussing the Soviet contention that part of the Kerensky debt was used to finance White Russian armies in fighting the U. S. S. R., commented:

"In 1921 the Senate investigation of loans to foreign governments emphasized two important aspects of the provisional government's debt and of subsequent financial transactions between the United States and M. Bakhmeteff.

Paid Money to Bank.

"First, the United States had not applied certain sums it owed the provisional government to repayment of the Kerensky debt. Thus it had purchased from the provisional government, after its overthrow, war munitions previously contracted for by the government; but, instead of paying the purchase price of $11,000,000 into the United States Treasury, had deposited it with the National City Bank to M. Bakhmeteff's account.

"Similarly, when the shipping board had chartered certain vessels belonging to the provisional government, it had paid $1,400,000 for these vessels and had turned the money over not to the Treasury, but to the National City Bank.

"Soviet leaders contend that the United States should not have permitted the representative of a defunct government to receive moneys owing to the Russion state and should have applied them, instead, to payment of Russia's debts.

"It may again be argued, however, that as long as the United States continued to recognize M. Bakhmeteff as Russia's accredited representative it was under obligation to place Russian state property at his disposal.

Disbursements Reported.

"Second, the funds disbursed by M. Bakhmeteff from the liquidation fund in the National City Bank had been applied to purposes which the Soviet regime could not but regard as inimical.

"According to M. Bakhmeteff's report, he had expended approximately $2,500,000 for the upkeep of the Russian Embassy, two or three consulates and other offices in the United States. He had given financial aid in 1918 to provisional government representatives in Norway and Belgium. He had utilized $100,000 for the expenses of a Russian delegation to the Paris peace conference in 1919.

"Most important of all, he had stated that 'shipments of supplies to Russia had been resumed in the latter part of 1918 and continued in 1919. On January 1, 1920, practically the whole of the stocks, of which the greater part consisted of railway material, shoes, leather and agricultural implements, had been shipped to Siberia, to the south and into the northern regions of Russia.'

Assisted White Armies.

"This statement, in Soviet opinion, clearly shows that M. Bakhmeteff had utilized a portion, at least, of the provisional government credits to assist White armies in north and south Russia and in Siberia. This contention is supported by the fact that M. Bakhmeteff represented not only the provisional government, but, after its overthrow, the short-lived regimes of Kolchak and Wrangel.

"That this material was sent to Russia with the knowledge and assistance of the United States is not disputed. The United States, according to Mr. Lansing, Secretary of State, was in favor of assisting the Russian authorities in this country to ship 'nonwar-like' stores on the ground that 'it would be extremely unfortunate for the Russian people to receive the impression that they are being abandoned by the Allies and the United States.'

"The Soviet government argues that a portion of the Provisional government credits, estimated at $50,000,000, was used for the destruction of Soviet lives and property, that the United States should have prevented M. Bakhmeteff from applying the credits to such purposes, and that the Soviet people can under no circumstances be expected to repay moneys which went for the equipment of anti-Soviet forces. The United States, however, had no authority to prevent the representatives of a recognized government from using that government's property for such purposes and in such manner as he saw fit."

movement rests for support upon the masses of the population, those who know his mind believe he will order a popular election to put the stamp of approval on any temporary appointment of himself as Reichspresident or "Reichsfuehrer," which the cabinet might make.

As there would be no other candidate in the election, Hitler would be certain to receive popular indorsement.

Holding a popular election, Hitler's friends said, would remove the last possible objection the Reichswehr (regular army) might have to his plans.

The army, stanch friend and hero-worshiper of Von Hindenburg, was stated by those holding this view to have stood always for strict legality.

Ministries Guarded.

A decree temporarily naming Hitler as president could be approved by the army because of its emergency nature.

A popular election, following an emergency decree, would be a procedure strictly legal, say those who predict this action, and there would be no reason why the army should not obey and follow its new leader.

As a precautionary measure, members of the Schutz Staffel (special guard) and of Prussian Premier Goering's special police were placed on guard at all ministries.

The Schutz Staffel men also were guarding every approach to Neudeck.

Hitler, meanwhile, it was understood, followed the foreign press with the greatest interest in order to learn how other countries react to various suggestions for the successorship to Von Hindenburg.

2 More Bicycles Stolen.

The bicycle theft wave struck two more victims yesterday, when Charles Ransdell, 11, and Robert Sansbury, 13, both of Alexandria, reported theirs stolen in the Smithsonian grounds. Dozens of bicycles have been stolen in the last few weeks, according to police.

Gen. Johnson Cancels Speech in Home Town

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 1 (AP).—Gen. Hugh Johnson, recovery chief, today decided he does not have time to fill a speaking engagement at his former home town of Okmulgee, Okla., tonight and canceled the plan.

Gen. Johnson is to speak in Chicago at midday tomorrow. He will leave at dawn by plane for Chicago, where a State-wide NRA celebration is planned.

Archduke Otto Reported To Have Gone to Italy

Brussels, Aug. 1 (AP).—Reports that former Empress Zita of Austria and her son, Archduke Otto, claimant to the Hapsburg throne, have left for Italy have persisted here for several days but could not be confirmed.

Officials connected with the household of the former empress declined to make any statement.

3 Forest Fires Beyond Control In Northwest

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 1 (AP).—Three major forest fires were reported beyond control in the inland Northwest today, but lower temperatures were aiding fighters. Forestry authorities said the flames in two of these areas probably would be checked by tonight or tomorrow.

Fires still out of control were on the south fork of Meadow Creek in the Kootenai National Forest, along Trout Creek on the Cabinet National Forest of western Montana and in the Colville Forest of north central Washington, near Curlew.

British Columbia fires which last night threatened at least two towns, several mining camps and innumerable ranch homes, still were burning. Cooler weather, scattered rains, moderation of strong winds and efforts of more than 1,000 fighters were holding them in check.

Crews were working on both the north and south ends of the Meadow Creek fire, the U. S. forestry office at Missoula, Mont., said, with control expected today or tomorrow. The fighters established 2½ miles of fire line. The blaze, set by lightning last week-end, has covered approximately 2,000 acres, much of it merchantable timber. More than 650 men are fighting it.

The Trout Creek fire was reported to be burning fiercely, but several crews were reported to be working on the "hot" end, or in front of the flames. They expected to control it tonight. All but 100 of a crew of 540 men were sent in last night.

All other fires in western Montana, northern Idaho and eastern Washington were reported to be under control.

Senate Race Holds Interest In Tennessee

Browning and Bachman Seek Democratic Nomination.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 1 (AP).—Nominations for Governor, two U. S. Senators and two State railroad commissioners will be made tomorrow by Tennessee Democrats and Republicans in simultaneous State-wide primaries. Candidates for 9 seats in the National House of Representatives and 132 in the Legislature also will be chosen.

Estimates of the vote in the Democratic primary ranged from 240,000 to 260,000, and in the Republican from 100,000 to 150,000. There is only one State-wide Republican contest.

Chief interest centers in the race between Gov. Hill McAlister and Lewis S. Pope, Nashville lawyer, for the Democratic gubernatorial nominaton for a two-year term, and in the contest between Senator Nathan L. Bachman and Representative Gordon Browning, of Huntingdon, for Democratic nomination to the Senate for the two years remaining of the term for which Cordell Hull was elected.

As to Browning's statement that the junior Senator's remarks on the floor filled only 21 lines of the Congressional Record during more than 15 months of service, Bachman replied that he wanted it made clear "that I have no idea of using the valuable time of the United States Senate to speak solely for home consumption to help my political fortunes."

By a coincidence, tomorrow is Bachman's birthday — his fifty-eighth. Browning, 45, was an overseas captain of artillery during the World War. He has been in Congress for 12 years.

Senator K. D. McKellar has done little campaigning for Democratic renomination to the seat he has held continuously since 1917. His opponent in the six-year term race is Dr. John R. Neal, of Knoxville, chief of defense counsel in the Dayton evolution trial.

U. S. Opposes Naval Equality For Japanese cent cut would mean abandonment of some naval construction.

Mr. Swanson asserted he was willing to abandon overage ships and refrain from replacing them to an extent of 20 per cent.

"While I have not discussed a 20 per cent reduction with Administration officials," he explained, "I have already advised it in public statements and reports."

Answering newspapermen's insistent questions as to whether Japanese insistence on a change of ratios would wreck the 1935 naval conference, the Secretary said he did not think it would, but he would not like to predict what might be the outcome of the parley.

Asked if a breakdown would mean an expansion by this country in its naval program, Mr. Swanson replied:

"I believe in an American Navy second to none."

When questioned as to the extent of the frontiers of the United States, in the light of a statement by Stanley Baldwin, acting British prime minister, that his country's frontiers extended now to the Rhine, Mr. Swanson said "our frontiers include our farthest territories."

"We are surrounded," he added, "and we are determined to defend ourselves."

Clark, Desperado, Is Captured After Escape Year Ago

Lansing, Kans., Aug. 1 (AP).—The gates of the Kansas State prison clanged shut behind Jim Clark, 30-year-old Southwestern desperado, today and the law scratched the last name off the list of 11 convicts who broke out of the prison Memorial Day, 1933.

Of the 11 three have been slain. The others are back in prison—one blinded from bullet wounds received in an attempted bank holdup.

Clark was surprised as he was leaving an apartment house in Tulsa, Okla., early today. He was captured before he could use a pistol he carried wrapped in a newspaper.

Two women, who gave the names of Sallie Johnson, 34, and Goldie Johnson, 19, were with him. Officers said Goldie was Clark's wife and that she grabbed his arm, preventing him from shooting when they made the arrest. She probably will face charges of harboring a fugitive, officers said.

Clark, who twice escaped from the Kansas State prison, was located after he had been trailed for months.

Clark was brought back to the penitentiary from Tulsa to resume serving the life sentence as an habitual criminal he was under when he escaped. Officers said he would be placed in solitary confinement.

"You'll Relax in a La Salle . . . ."

In the showroom most automobiles are comfortable. At the start of a motor trip many automobiles are comfortable. But, after a 300 or 400 mile drive—very few cars merit the term "comfortable."

La Salle is built deliberately for your comfort. Its custom bodies by Fleetwood—with their form-tailored seat cushions and backs—and their many little refinements for your comfort and convenience—are masterpieces of body building. Cadillac-designed Knee-Action wheels make possible a degree of comfort never before known in motoring. It's the extra care that goes into the building of La Salle that makes possible your complete ease.

La Salle's performance, speed, comfort, ease of handling and beautiful streamlined bodies are attributes to be found only in a motor car of quality manufacture. Owners write to tell us that they are getting 13 to 15 miles to a gallon of gasoline . . . and with La Salle prices of $1595 and $1695 at Detroit—La Salle is not an expensive car. Voice of Safety Rules Traffic For First Day warning about misstep in walking or driving during the first day's run, which took the car first through the downstown section and then through most all of the outlying territory of the city.

The Voice started its life at exercises held at the Union Station Plaza, where Commissioner Hazen, Brown and others spoke. Then the car cruised downtown, stopping in front of the five newspaper offices to express thanks for newspaper cooperation in the traffic drive.

Radio Program Given.

After a trip to Georgetown, the car was parked at Fourteenth and F streets northwest, where at noon a program was broadcast over a Nation-wide hook-up. Speakers included Maj. Brown, Commissioner Hazen, Robert V. Fleming, president of the Board of Trade, and William A. Van Duzer, director of traffic.

When the speaking was finished, Maj. Brown climbed back into the car and from its parked position gave radio listeners an idea of how the car works. It was lunch hour and hundreds were hurrying along the streets.

"Will the beautiful lady and the handsome gentleman stop jaywalking?" The pair, a radio announcer and a friend, stopped. They were "stooges" for this act.

Maj. Brown went on in his role as "stentor" and instructed pedestrians to stop when they tried to cross the street through traffic moving at the direction of the crossing officer. Those who understood stopped. Some did not hear and went on.

Later Maj. Brown and Capt. Smith turned over the car to Sergt. Walter H. Thomas and Inspector B. A. Lamb, both of the traffic Bureau. Then at 6 p. m. the car was manned by Policeman D. C. Diehl as driver and Henry Nester, "the singing cop," as announcer. This pair, to be one of the regular crews, carried on until midnight.

Traffic Violators Move.

While cruising along M street in Georgetown, the voice missed several opportunities for polite admonition—the reason being that nearly 25 operators of double parked cars saw it coming and moved away in time to miss the gentle voice.

As the car passed the White House, an autoload of Ohio tourists were seen looking into the grounds. "Drive right in," said the voice, "It's your Capital. Your taxes keep it going."

While the Voice of Safety found hundreds to chide, the 100 official observers who are the other part of the drive reported only 21 violations to police. Seven other violators were reported by "unofficial observers."

The voice's first official act was not to warn a violator. Three young women in white were walking near the Peace Monument, violating no law, ordinance or regulation. So the voice said: "Greeting to the young ladies from the Voice of Safety."

Lorton Visited By Trade Body

Second Inspection Trip Is Made by Committee Seeking Wall.

Thirty-two members of the public order committee of the Washington Board of Trade visited Lorton Reformatory yesterday to see for themselves the need for the new wall which the board is seeking to have built. It was the second visit within a fornight, so that virtually all the committee's 100 members now have made a first-hand inspection of reformatory conditions.

There is a wall which extends about one-eighth of the way around the prison. The board wants the Public Works Administration to allot $500,000 in order to finish it.

Yesterday's excursion was headed by Chairman Odell Smith, Harry H. R. Hellwigg and former United States Marshal Edgar Snyder.

A special committee of the board, headed by Claude Owen, has been delegated to confer with Secretary of the Interior Ickes in an endeavor to obtain PWA funds.

Rites Set Today For Mrs. Smith

Private Services Will Be Followed by Mass at St. Thomas.

Private services for Mrs. Emmons Stockwell Smith, who died Tuesday at her home, 2401 Calvert street northwest, will be held today at 9 a. m., followed by requiem mass at St. Thomas Apostle Church, 2661 Woodley road northwest, conducted by the Rev. Joyce Russell.

Mrs. Smith, a life-long resident of Washington, before her marriage was Miss Isabel Quigley. Her husband, the late Emmons Stockwell Smith, was well known in real estate and banking circles, having been a director of the Union Trust Co.

She is survived by a son, Emmons Smith, jr., and two sisters, Mrs. Frederick Price and Mrs. Charles Grace, all of Washington.

Honorary pallbearers will be Dr. Sinclair Bowen, Dr. Matthew White Perry, Frank P. Waterhouse, Henry Sheridan, John M. Williams, Frederick Price, S. A. Reeves and Thomas E. Ogram.

Active pallbearers will be Chester Lockwood, A. McCook Dunlop, Robert Stead, jr., Reber Littlehales, Lieut. Comdr. William Thomas and William Jasper Dubose. Burial will be in the family plot at Rock Creek cemetery.

Detroit Is Strong for New Deal As Sagging Auto Trade Booms

bile dealers report that Government checks paid out to farmers for wheat curtailment or for killing pigs flow in from rural or small town areas, indorsed over to the dealers as down payments or installments on new cars.

Flow of Relief Cash.

Then, too, the Government has been pouring about $1,500,000 a month in here for direct relief. There has been much local fussing over failure to get huge PWA funds to build up a $100,000,000 subway, for one thing, but the fault seems to be with the State constitution or the inability of the City of Detroit to put up a big enough share of the load, rather than with Washington. The consensus here is that Washington has been liberal-handed—if not actually prodigal.

And, as elsewhere, the influx of funds for direct relief, for farm relief, for such PWA and other projects as are dependent upon New Deal financing, has helped to stimulate the consumption goods trade. Retail business has been fairly brisk. The sale of automobiles all through the country has brought Detroit halfway back to its 1929 boom peak out of the abysss into which it sank at the height of the unpleasantness.

Michigan being about half urban, half rural, its economic health depends much on agriculture as well as upon automobiles. Michigan's farmers have been traditionally progressive. They were for T. R. They warmed to the New Deal at the start. But like other agrarians, they have been disappointed in the results of the AAA, dismayed because they have not been getting for what they sell enough to offset the rising costs of what they have to buy.

Turn Against AAA.

The drought spared Michigan more than neighboring States. Yet without that blight to accentuate the vanity of man-made plans of control, the Michigan farmers are turning sour on the AAA. Prof. Tugwell is becoming the scapegoat here as in other areas of rural discontent.

However, in the nine or ten industrial centers of the State—Detroit the biggest—the automobile and related industry is the measure of recovery and, to a great extent, opinion. The workers evidently feel that NRA has been a boon to them. Gen. Johnson's battles with Henry Ford appear to be out of mind now. And I gather from competent sources that the strike threat was never taken as seriously here as it was in Washington.

The picture assembled here is this: Detroit has always been open shop. For one thing, because the American Federation of Labor is organized on the craft union system, it has never made much progress with the mass of automobile industry labor, which works mostly with automatic tools. Much of this labor is drawn from the rural districts and from small towns and has no organized labor tradition behind it.

Liberal in Policies.

Again, the automobile industry prospered from the start, and the workers did as well as, or better, than those in other lines.

For the most part, the motor magnates have been somewhat more liberal in their policies. They have recognized perhaps more clearly than the older industrialists the connection between spread of purchasing power and sales of their own products. And a good many of the plant operators have come up from the ranks. For these reasons, the industry never was organized by the A. F. of L., and it remained for an Englishman, Matthew Smith who fought the A. F. of L., to organize the craft workers, the tool and die makers, who are known as the aristocrats of the business.

These craftsmen walked out after being rushed 12 to 15 hours a day preparing for new models when the revival began in the industry. Smith, allegedly, called out on strike the General Motors and Chrysler workers, but not the Ford group. For, so I am told, a sharp grievance had arisen in one body-building plant because the tool or die men were docked for time if they walked from one department to another.

Lucky in Settlement.

Thereupon, when the tool and die makers quit, the A. F. of L. rushed forth with a threat that the insiders here think was rather empty. They point to the fact that the A. F. of L. never permitted a show down on how many workers it had signed up. And, it is added, the A. F. of L. was lucky to get as good a break as it did in the settlement made at the White House.

But this is now ancient history. The National Labor Board appears to have done well here. It is highly spoken of on all sides, especially Leo Wolman, who is working successfully not merely on elimination of grievances but on far-reaching plans to stabilize automobile employment much as he stabilized employment in the garment trades.

As I recall it, there is a guaranteed 40 weeks of work in the garment trades, and some such leveling out of what has been sporadic, seasonal employment in the automobile industry is now contemplated calling, incidentally, for abandonment of the old method of producing and showing new models in the spring. The new plan is to produce the new models in the fall.

No Signs of Trouble.

At present there are no signs of labor trouble—and, of course, would not be in the off season when the manufacturers would not be so averse to closing down for a while. But the outlook for continuing peace appears to be good. In other words, there are no pronounced signs of great unrest in this field of labor.

Detroit's two giant banks that failed are expected to pay out 80 to 90 per cent, I am informed, again thanks to Washington in large measure. Real estate is still floundering after a terrific fall. Hidden in weeds and tall grass, one still may find city hydrants some 25 miles beyond the center of Detroit—hydrants installed in the boom days when realtors believed anything.

But "on the whole," this city has staged enough of a comeback from the depths to preoccupy a good many leaders here with matters of the moment rather than with the fears of the future which are more pronounced elsewhere.

Laid to U. S. Spending.

Yet there are many here who trace much of the automobile trade revival to the Government spendings—who wonder how long this can keep up. And that line of thought leads straight back to where the great majority of business and banking leaders elsewhere begin—to the question of when and if the Government is going to permit a revival of normal, natural private enterprise.

Leaders here who share that view assent to this compact summation of it in a recent bulletin of the Cleveland Trust Co.:

"Probably as a Nation we shall spend the second half of 1934 as we have the first half in continued efforts to find out whether or not this detour of dependence on the public treasury will lead us back to the main road of a self-supporting economy."

Suit by Railroads To Attack Pension

Under the leadership of Murray W. Latimer, youngish, pleasant-mannered New Yorker, they quickly got down to business, which represented chiefly the all-absorbing problem of administering a pension system running into the millions without one red penny to start with.

For the act creating the new board provides that all revenue come from the pay rolls of the railroads and their employes and the threat of an injunction, tying up collections, was imminent. In this position, the board cast about for counsel, which will be appointed in a day or two.

Little Hope for Cash.

As its next step, the board is expected to call on the railroads for an advance payment, as authorized by the act, but the possibility existed that this, too, would be included in the railroads' injunction case, leaving the board flat broke.

Under the law, the board is charged with collecting and shepherding a fund estimated to exceed $100,000,000 annually. Beginning February 1, barring an upset in the courts, graduated pensions will be distributed from this fund to thousands of employes coming under its provisions at that time.

Besides Mr. Latimer, chairman and Government representative on the board, members are John T. Williamson, of Chicago, chairman of the Burlington's pension board, representing the railroads, and Lee M. Eddy, of St. Louis, vice president of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, who was selected by labor.

Farley Assails Republicans as Vague, Noisy

Says G. O. P. Is Offering No Substitute for What Is Criticized.

Salt Lake City, Aug. 1 (AP).—Postmaster General Farley asserted before an audience here tonight that there was no criticism of the President or his policies "until an election was imminent, and the opposition party felt that it had to do something to justify its existence or had to go out of business itself."

Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said the tactics of the opposition could hardly be called criticism, "for that implies a definiteness of complaint and ought to imply the offer of some substitute for what is complained of."

"What we really get from the opposition," he said, "is a clamor as vague in its import as it is noisy in its utterance. The President is accused of making ducks and drakes of the Constitution, although what he has done and is doing is simply exercising the authority reposed in him by acts of Congress, in the enactment of which a large proportion of the Republican Senators and Representatives joined."

The Postmaster General defended the NRA and AAA and said political adversaries of the Administration had charged "that your Government was shoveling out money without the least regard either for the tavpayer or for the National credit."

"On the contrary," he said, "you are having the most economical Federal Administration that you have had for years. The Treasury reports show that the normal expenses of the various departments comprising the Government were decreased during the first Roosevelt year by something like $750,000,000.

"Of course there have been vast emergency expenditures—money put out to save millions of our people from starvation and to provide work for millions who would otherwise be in the breadlines.

"Do not lose track of the fact that it would have cost the country approximately the same amount of money had these people been fed by charity instead of being given jobs."

Duce Again Calls On Widow of Dollfuss

Riccione, Italy, Aug. 1 (AP)—Premier Mussolini drove here today from Rome to present again his condolences to Frau Dollfuss, widow of the slain Chancellor of Austria.

The last time he had seen her was the day her husband died, just after the news of the tragedy was broken to her. She left her children with Mussolini's family while she went to the funeral in Vienna and then returned here.

Troops Raid Strike Offices In Minneapolis

Physician Is Arrested.

Adj. Gen. E. A. Walsh, in command, said sanitary conditions in the building were deplorable, particularly regarding several strikers who had not recovered from shotgun wounds in the clash between pickets attempting to halt a loaded truck and police July 20.

Dr. J. A. Enright, a physician, was taken in custody. William Brown, president of the Union, No. 574; Myles Dunne, and Henry Trank, leaders of the walkout, also were arrested.

Marksmen crouched in the apartments of Chinese across the street from the headquarters, ready for resistance, but none was shown as Col. Elmer McDevitt, provost marshal, moved into the building in the van of a squad of soldiers.

Other sentries were posted in doorways and four field machine guns were mounted on the street. Gen. Walsh said the raid resulted "because these officials defied orders of military rule by holding a meeting at the parade grounds last night without a permit."

Raid Laid to Defiance.

"Local No. 574 saw fit to issue a defy in the public press in which it was stated it would resume unrestricted picketing, and therefore there will be no more cars operated from so-called strike headquarters," Walsh added.

"There will be no interference with any persons or vehicles engaged in business or any lawful pursuit, and any one violating that must suffer the consequences. Our mission is to preserve law and order. We wish no violence; we do not wish to injure or harm any one, and, if orders are obeyed, there will be no difficulty."

In Gov. Floyd B. Olson's opinion, it was "unfortunate that the union leaders issued the statement which they did yesterday in direct defiance of the military order."

"The Guard had no alternative but to proceed as it did this morning, he added. "Otherwise there would be no Guard."

Stockyards Strikers, Employers Confer

Chicago, Aug. 1 (AP).—Stockyards handlers and officials of the Union Stockyards & Transit Co. were brought together in new peace councils tonight.

As a result, Federal conciliators appeared slightly more optimistic that the eight-day strike can be terminated.

Strikers and employers were disputing, it was reported, the fate of some 125 "extra men."

Meanwhile, some 400 strikebreakers, quartered in Pullman cars inside the big yards, handled the light shipments.

There was no trading. Only about 3,000 head of commercial cattle were received, all consigned to packing houses. Another 3,000 head of Government-owned cattle and calves, bought up in the drought area, were brought in to be packed for relief purposes.

Union officials contended in the conferences that the "extra men" are regularly employed and deserve a minimum pay guarantee. Federal mediators reported to Washington they had obtained some concessions from both sides, but admitted that this point still remained to be settled.

Strife Perils Peace Move in Textile Row

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 1 (AP). Peace moves were being formulated in Alabama's widespread textile strike today but trouble hovered over a small walkout in Bridgeport. A child was wounded there last night by shots fired into a non-union worker's home.

A general conference of the Alabama State Textile Council with George Googe, representative of the American Federation of Labor, was believed to portend a movement to seek settlement of the walkout, now in the third week, which involves more than 12,000 workers.

Googe issued a statement declaring the State industrial relations board had "fallen down" and accused manufacturers of using the "obnoxious and illegal features" of section 17 of the textile code to prevent organization.

The only trouble center was Bridgeport, where attempts to open the stove foundry of the Jacobs Manufacturing Co. yesterday brought strife. An appeal of Sheriff T. W. McBryde for troops was denied by Gov. B. M. Miller.

Long Warns Rainey To Stay Out of Fight

Speaker Henry T. Rainey was informed last night by Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana, not to interfere in the New Orleans political fight unless "you want your name linked with open license given to gambling dens and dives the Ring government (Mayor Walmsley's administration) permits to operate."

Senator Long sent a long telegram to the Speaker, which was made public here by his secretary, in which the "Kingfish" explained that it was prompted by dispatches published in New Orleans quoting Speaker Rainey as supporting Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley.

Speaker Rainey was out of the city and his secretary said he had no record of the press comment.

Jury Decision In Arlington Inquiry Nears

3 Witnesses Are Recalled; Charges, if Any, Are Expected Today.

The special grand jury called to investigate possible corruption among Arlington County officeholders continued deliberations yesterday, questioning 13 witnesses, including three real estate operators, three lawyers, three officials, two contractors and a housewife.

No indictments were returned. At the end of the day the grand jury asked for the recall of three witnesses, Robert Daniel and J. Vernon Smith, contractors, and Mrs. Bertha Wasserman, housewife. The belief was that few, if any, new witnesses will be called today. It was expected that if any indictments are to be drawn, they will be returned this afternoon.

The grand jury questioned witnesses without the aid of Commonwealth Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas, who, however, was frequently called in for brief consultations.

Miss Wetherell Funeral Is Today

Conducted Research for Senator Schall.

Services for Miss Lucille Wetherell, 78, for the last 16 years companion to Senator and Mrs. Thomas D. Schall, who died Tuesday at the Schall home in Berwyn Heights, Md., will be held today at 2 p. m. from Gasch's funeral parlors, Hyattsville, Md. The Rev. Ronald Taylor, of the Episcopal Church in College Park, Md., will officiate.

Miss Wtherell, who was born in Vermont, did research work for Senator Schall up to the time of her death. Before coming to Washington she taught in San Francisco and Minneapolis, conducted the women's page of the Minneapolis Times, wrote book reviews and gave lectures.

Miss Wetherell's wish that her body be cremated and her ashes strewn over the Schall farm by Douglas Schall from an airplane, will be complied with.

ing records. The registration rolls are in the Soule Building, and Senator Long, with the State militia at his call, seized the building Monday night.

While the situation has ominous aspects, it also seemed today to possess a comic side. The faction having control of the registrar's office apparently can do as it pleases in the matter of registrations—throwing out names they don't favor and retaining those which they regard with favor. The Senator, with utter nonchalance, confirmed the rumor that the rolls might be tampered with under his charge. The 24,500 registrations, he declared, were illegal.

When announcement was made that the mayor wanted citizens for his auxiliary police force, more than 1,000 volunteers appeared. Police Superintendent George Reyer said he could accept only 500 "for the present." Most of those accepted were former policemen or applicants for police jobs, and every piece of fighting equipment in the city arsenal was distributed.

600 More Troops Ready.

Meanwhile, the Long forces did not appear to be overly perturbed by the mayor's mobilization. Long has 600 additional militiamen at the Jackson Barracks on the outskirts of the city. These troopers include artillerymen, infantrymen and cavalrymen.

The volunteer policemen were distributed throughout the city and the police superintendent announced that he would seize firearms and other weapons from hardware stores and pawn shops, to be held under guard until after the emergency.

The National Guardsmen, at first slightly indifferent over their jobs, were openly threatening today that they would "turn artillery loose on the city hall," if necessary. At the same time the police were expressing the desire to "cut loose on the kid soldiers."

$750 Fine Paid By Liquor Firm

Tax Evasion Is Charged to Hopfheiser Company.

Fines totaling $750 were assessed against the Hopfheiser Co., Inc., liquor dealers, in Police Court yesterday. Two charges alleged evasion of taxes and the selling of liquor on premises other than those described in their license application.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward M. Curran said that stamps on 30-ounce beverage bottles sold by the company denoted that tax had been paid only on 25 ounces. He also charged that the business was moved from the address specified in the license.

Invader of Bedroom Held for Grand Jury

La Plata, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Howard White, 24, colored, of Baltimore, a member of the Indianhead CCC Camp, was held today for the Charles County grand jury charged with burglarous entry into the house of A. A. Davis at Indianhead, near here, and entering the bedroom of Alton M. Davis, 26, son of Davis and Mrs. Davis.

28 Financiers In Detroit Bank Crash Indicted

City's Business Chieftains on List Facing U. S. Prosecution.

Detroit, Aug. 1 (AP).—Twenty-eight men—the list reading as if it might have been copied from a "Who's Who in Detroit Business and Finance"—were named today in Federal indictments charging misapplication of funds, conspiracy or the making of false entries in bank reports.

Twenty-two true bills were returned in the second report of the Federal grand jury which two months ago began delving into banking practices which, the Government contends, contributed to Michigan's banking debacle of 1933.

Twenty-five former officers or directors of the Detroit Bankers Co. and its units are accused of misapplying $544,221.35 through purchase of inadequately secured notes from other banks. The three others, former officers of the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., are accused of making or conspiring to make a false report of the condition of the Union Industrial Trust and Savings Bank, a Flint, Mich., unit, through omission of $600,000 in bills payable.

Six Named Again.

A month and a day ago the Federal grand jury indicted 13 bankers and former bankers. Six are named again in today's true bills.

Two months after the 16 women and six men comprising the grand jury were admonished by Federal Judge Edward J. Moinet not to be swayed by the prominence of any persons involved, they have charged 35 men, including some of the city's best known business men, with infractions of the United States banking laws.

The presidents of Michigan's two huge bank holding companies at the time of last year's bank holiday, Robert O. Lord, of the Guardian group, which had units in a score of Michigan cities, and E. D. Stair, of the Detroit Bankers Co., whose units were confined to Detroit and vicinity, are among those indicted. Stair, publisher of The Detroit Free Press, became president of the holding company in 1932, serving without salary.

Others Indicted.

Also under indictment are John Ballantyne, dean of Detroit bankers, former president of the Detroit Bankers Co., now president of the Manufacturers National Bank, and Wilson W. Mills, former chairman of the First National Bank-Detroit, largest unit of the Detroit Bankers Co.

Fourteen former directors and officials of the People Wayne County Bank, a holding company unit, are charged with misapplication of $544,221.35 used in the note deals.

Charged With Conspiracy

Eleven former Detroit Bankers Co. directors and officers are charged with having knowledge of the transaction and with conspiracy.

The are Ballantyne, Stair, Julian P. Bowen (now deceased); Herbert L. Chittenden, D. Dwight Douglas, Ralph Gilchrist, James S. Holden, Fred J. Robinson, Wesson Seyburn, Ralph Stone and Richard Webber.

Named with Lord in the indictments charging making, or conspiring to make, a false report are Herbert R. Wilkin, former general manager of the Guardian group and executive head of the Flint bank, and James L. Walsh, former executive vice president of the Guardian group. Wilkin and Walsh are named in State warrants issued in Flint last week based upon the same incident.

The men named both in today's indictments and those returned a month ago, charging the making or Bank, and James L. Walsh, former are Ballantyne, Lord, Walsh, Bodde, Chittenden and Sweeny.

Old Times Return; Horse Is Stolen

A horse was stolen

The Rev. Louis A. Rowen, Catholic pastor, said the animal was taken from his backyard. It was described as being 15 years old, sorrel, male, and having a twisted leg.

Virginia Banks Wait 2 Tests

Corporation Commission Completes Hearing of Evidence.

Richmond, Aug. 1 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission tonight had before it all of the evidence in the first contested case under the 1928 act giving it authority over the opening of new banks, and the first contested case under the 1934 act providing for the conversion of an industrial loan company into a bank.

The case arose over the application of the Industrial Loan and Investment Corporation of Newport News seeking to do a business of deposit and discount, which was opposed by three major banks in that city.

The commission probably will decide the case in September. After the testimony is written by the court stenographer, counsel for the applicant will have 15 days to file its brief. Counsel for the opposition then will have 15 days in which to answer, and counsel for the applicant then will have 5 days to file a rebuttal.

The applicant introduced the testimony of more than two score witnesses at a three-day hearing. They said that due to improved business conditions, "an interlocking directorate" in two of the banks, and congested banking facilities, another bank was a public necessity in the city.

Opposition witnesses today testified other banks have been started and failed, that there is a surplus of money to lend now, and that present facilities adequately meet needs. Their contention was supported by testimony of W. E. Bristow, State banking commissioner.

Officers Chosen By Wheat Group

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—H. C. Thompson, of Hillsboro, was elected president of the county board of directors of the Wheat Production Control Association of Loudoun County for the crop year 1935, at a meeting of the board held here today.

W. M. Everhart, of Waterford, was elected vice president; Victor B. Harding, treasurer, and J. R. Lintner, secretary. John S. Ward and F. T. Anderson were elected members of the allotment committee to serve with the president.

A consolidation of the 12 communities representing Loudoun County for the 1934 wheat crop year into six communities conforming now to magisterial districts has been effected in accordance with procedures advised by the Wheat Section of the AAA.

River Projects Will Be Viewed By Roosevelt

President Lands Friday at Portland; Family Will Meet Him.

Portland, Oreg., Aug. 1 (AP).—Plans outlined by Franklin D. Roosevelt more than two years ago for development of natural resources in the Pacific Northwest will be seen in the process of fulfillment by the Chief Executive on his return to the mainland Friday.

The two big Columbia River projects, which call for the expenditure of more than $100,000,000 of Government funds, were made ready for Presidential inspection as Mr. Roosevelt approached the Oregon Coast tonight and members of his official family began converging upon Portland.

Mrs. Roosevelt, on a leisurely motor tour of the Far West, continued toward Portland after spending last night at Crater Lake.

Cruiser Ahead of Schedule.

Aboard the cruiser Houston, well ahead of schedule, the President was swiftly nearing Oregon. The vessel will dock here Friday noon. The President will be met by Mrs. Roosevelt and, perhaps, by their son, James. Two other sons, John and Franklin, jr., accompanied the President.

A long special train with air-cooled cars will meet Mr. Roosevelt at the Bonneville Dam site, 40 miles up the Columbia River from Portland.

At Bonneville Friday afternoon, the President will see what progress has been made on the mammoth $31,000,000 power and navigation dam.

To Visit Spokane.

He will speak briefly there and will continue by train to Spokane, and thence to the site of the $62,000,000 Grand Coulee Dam, another vast Federal project. Then eastward by train to Fort Peck, Mont., where another Federal development will be inspected, and the President will speed across country to the National Capital.

Secretary of Interior Ickes, on vacation, reached Portland by train from California this morning, but continued on to Seattle. He will return tomorrow night. Secretary of War Dern was flying from San Pedro to Portland. Stephen Early and Louis McHenry Howe, members of the President's secretarial corps, planned to reach Portland tomorrow morning.

Boston Lawyer Drowns In New Hampshire Lake

Ashland, N. H., Aug. 1 (AP).—Harold Jefferson Coolidge, prominent Boston attorney, met death in Squam Lake last night my accidental drowning, indirectly caused by a heart attack, Coroner L. M. Orton announced today.

Dr. Orton said Coolidge, while walking along the shore of Long Island, on which his summer home was located, suffered a heart attack and tumbled into the lake. His body was found in shallow water, close to the shore, Dr. Orton said.

Virginia Fixes New Salaries Of Prosecutors

State Notifies Localities Paying Half of Rate That Bans Fees.

Richmond, Aug. 1 (AP).—The State compensation board today fixed the salaries of the 119 Commonwealth's attorneys in the State for the last six months of the 1934 calendar year, and notified cities and counties of the amounts.

The new board, created under a 1934 act, changed the method of compensating these officers from the age-old fee system to salaries at a saving to the State and the localities estimated at $88,568 a year.

The localities are to pay half of the salaries of their Commonwealth's attorneys and assistants. The half paid by the State is in the status of base pay and subject to the present 10 per cent cut.

The salaries fixed include office expenses in all cases except three, Richmond, Norfolk and Roanoke, where exceptions were made for assistants and other items.

The board informed local governments that salaries were fixed within the limitations set forth in the act.

The board announced it had considered population, location, amount and character of the work now required, earning power of the office during the last 4½ years, repeal of the prohibition law and the status of public finances and general economic conditions.

Commonwealth's attorneys were the first of the public officers to go on salaries under the 1934 act, which contemplates the end of the fee system when treasurers and commissioners of the revenue come under its pale January 1.

Guard Sends Detail to Camp

13 From D. C. Unit Leave for Site; Main Body Goes Sunday.

Eleven enlisted men and two officers of the District National Guard, constituting the advance detail for the Twenty-ninth Division Headquarters Detachment and special troops, left yesterday for Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., to complete arrangements for the encampment, starting Sunday.

Maj. William T. Roy, Master Sergt. Lee R. Wilson and Technical Sergt. Charles A. Norris will start a reconnaissance today of the territory in which a theoretical war will be waged by the Twenty-ninth Division staff.

Their objective will be to gain permission of the land owners in the section for the Guardsmen to bivouac during the maneuvers and to maintain communications.

The rest of the men, under command of Lieut. Leighton B. Hastings, will store supplies, erect tents, prepare mess shacks and make ready for the main body of troops. These men are Master Sergts. George A. McCarthy, James M. Lynch and Thomas P. Baxter, Staff Sergts. William E. Bahre and Wayne B. Trackler, Sergt. Horace G. Skinner, Corpls. Charles T. Warner and William T. Fisher and Private Charles R. Fisher. Six are members of the Twenty-ninth Division Headquarters Detachment and the others of the Twenty-ninth Military Police Company.

Foreigner Sought In $500 Holdup

Crooked Nose Is Clew to Postoffice Bandit.

A crooked-nosed foreigner was sought by postal inspectors last night as the man who poked an automatic into the ribs of a clerk in the House Office Building post office late Tuesday and stole $500 from the cash drawer.

The clerk, Donald Stuckey, was alone in the office when the robber entered, although Capitol guards were on duty only a few yards away.

Denying there was any money in the safe, Stuckey handed over the $500. His denial saved the Government $700, which was in the strong box.

He described the bandit as being swarthy, 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighing 150 pounds.

Beverly Hills, Calif., Aug. 1 (AP).—The estate of Lew Cody, motion picture actor, actually received only $10 in the sale at auction today of his Beverly Hills mansion, built at a cost of $50,000 by Pauline Frederick, star of the stage and screen.

Subject to approval of the public administrator, the rambling English Norman structure was sold to Roberta M. Love for $15,010, but there were two mortgages totaling $15,000 against the property.

About 600 persons, mostly sightseers, gathered around the auctioneer as he placed the property on the block and set the opening bid at $15,000. He explained that no bids below that figure would be accepted. Only one bid was made.

Remaining to be sold were the actor's personal effects and his three automobiles, two of them custom-built machines.

Among the effects were more than a score of suits that made Cody one of the best dressed men in motion pictures. There were 23 pairs of shoes lined up in rows for bidders. Other apparel offered included 29 hats, 53 shirts, 27 pairs of pajamas, 40 neckties and six pairs of spats.

In Cody's big den there were paintings by John Docker, done in the best El Greco manner, of Jimmy Walker, former New York Mayor; Clark Gable, the late Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, John, Lionel and Ethel Barrymore, Gloria Swanson, Charles Chaplin, Buster Keaton and Cody.

The value of Cody's various properties when he died recently was estimated at approximately $70,000, auction prices.

The actor's beach home north of Malibu, also purchased by him from Miss Frederick, who built it at a cost of $40,000, is to be sold at auction later this week.

Jobless at 72, Ironworker Seeks Way to Get Off Relief Rolls

Ready to Do Anything Short of Swinging Pick and Shovel.

Charity, like spinach, is bitter to some people and a very welcome morsel to others. David Watt is in the former class.

Seventy-two years ago he was born in Aberdeen, Scotland. In his youth he was a seaman. Later he became an ironworker.

Today "David Watt" is a name on District relief rolls, one among thousands, with the tragic adjective "unemployable" written opposite. He is healthy, his blue eyes are keen and his step is brisk. But he is 72 and therefore "unemployable."

Last winter he held an ironworker's job with the hazardous task of dismantling the old Aqueduct bridge in Georgetown. Then one day a union committee protested the use of skilled workmen as laborers. Watt was a member of the committee. Soon afterward he was discharged.

He went to the District employment bureau and asked for a work card. He received one and was sent to the woodyard. There it was taken away by a doctor with the laconic explanation, "Too old."

Since May 8 he has been on relief rolls, receiving $8 every two weeks. There is, however, some difference on this point. Watt says he hasn't received anything for almost three weeks, and then it was only $5. His case worker has records showing the latest installment was $8 and the same amount will be sent him today.

What Watt is most interested in is getting a job, however. He wants work, not a dole. And he says he can and will do anything short of swinging a pick and shovel, which would be too strenuous even though he is remarkably fit for his years.

One of the Capital's best known Presbyterian ministers tried to help him find a relief job but without success. Several labor union officials also will vouch for his character and ability.

Willard Keene Rites Today

Funeral to Be Held at Residence of Sister Here.

Funeral services for Willard Austin Keene, charter member of Stansbury Masonic Lodge, No. 24, of Washington, who died Tuesday at his home in Turtle Creek, Pa., will be held today at 2:30 p. m. from the residence of his sister, Mrs. Edna Keene Bushee, 3453 Holmead place northwest.

Mr. Keene, who left Washington about 30 years ago, was Eastern manager for the Pennsylvania Water Co. at Turtle Creek, and was a member of the Presbyterian Church and numerous Masonic organizations.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Orilee Dix Keene, and two daughters, Helen Miller and Orilee Dix Keene, all of Turtle Creek; and two sisters, Mrs. Edna Keene Bushee and Miss Eleanor Keene, and a brother, E. Ray Keene, all of this city.

Interment will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Ritchie May Speak At Manteo Pageant

To Observe Anniversary of Colonists' Landing.

Manteo, N. C., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland has been selected by the Roanoke Island historical committee to deliver the principal address in behalf of the 13 original colonies at the celebration August 18 of the 350th anniversary of the first landing of English colonists on American shores, here on Roanoke Island.

The program covers practically an entire week, directed entirely by Manteo residents, and includes the "Pageant of Roanoke," dramatizing the events of the Walter Raleigh settlement.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and the British Ambassador are among those invited.

Newsmen's Jail Terms Changed; Now Lose Work

Danville, Ky., Aug. 1 (AP).—Jail sentences for contempt of court in refusing to break a newspaper confidence were changed from night time to daylight hours for Jack Durham and Wesley Carty, Danville newspapermen today, and were followed by an offer from The Louisville Courier-Journal and Times to lend a staff man to The Danville Advocate if necessary to fill in for Carty, its city editor.

Governor Ruby Laffoon at Frankfort, who received a telegram from Johnathan Eddy, executive secretary of the American Newspaper Guild in New York, said he might reply to Eddy, but indicated he had no authority to interfere in a contempt case. Eddy wired the governor today protesting against the daily jail sentences as a "travesty on justice" and asking the chief executive to intervene.

Carty and Durham have been sent to jail daily since July 24, except yesterday when they were fined $3 each, for from three to six hours as each day Police Judge Jay W. Harlan renewed his court of inquiry into the hanging in effigy here of Representative J. Sterling Towles and they declined to tell who tipped them in advance about the affair.

Prior to today they had been called before the court at 4 p. m. and served their jail sentences in the late day and night. Today, however, they were called up at 9 a. m. and went to jail about 9:30 for six hours. That prevented them from working today.

NRA 'Sabotage' Laid to Greif

Firm Trying to Cripple Act While Using Eagle, Says Hungerford.

Baltimore, Aug. 1 (AP).—L. Greif & Bro., Inc., second largest men's clothing manufacturer in the United States, was accused today of attempting to have the National Recovery Administration declared unconstitutional and at the same time seeking advantage of the NRA Blue Eagle.

The accusation was made by Arthur E. Hungerford, Maryland NRA compliance director, in an answer to a suit filed by the clothing company seeking to restrain the Government from taking its Blue Eagle.

Hungerford said the Greif company seeks "* * * the aid of this court to further receive the benefits * * * of the code without complying with its provisions * * *"

NRA began efforts to remove the Blue Eagle from the company when the concern refused to pay more than $100,000 to employes who, the Government claimed, were due back wages.

The source of supply of Blue Eagle labels has been ordered cut off from the company, but with about 75,000 on hand, it has continued sewing them in its apparel.

5 FERA Jobs Start In Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Five major projects are being conducted in Fredericksburg by the FERA.

The city has provided $721, and the remaining $514 comes from FERA.

Projects are City Park improvements, costing $772 to date; the public school project, $1,072; mosquito control, $101; the Gunnery Springs road work, $681, and the repairing and painting of public buildings, $277.

Bandit's Father May Disinter Dillinger Body

Gets Permit From State but Conceals Reason for Move.

Indianapolis, Aug. 1 (AP).—John Dillinger, sr., today sought and obtained permission to disinter the body of his son, "Wooden Gun John."

Accompanied by his attorney, Samuel J. Mantell, the 72-year-old father of the slain desperado, went to the State board of health and filled out forms necessary for exhumation of the body which was buried last week in Crown Hill Cemetery here.

He gave no reasons for wanting to disinter the body and later, between his stage appearances at a local theater, he declined to discuss the matter. He would only say the action was taken following communication with some persons in Chicago. He refused to name these persons.

During his stage appearances the father says, "There isn't enough money in the world to get me to place my boy's body on exhibition."

Shortly after Dillinger's body was brought to his home town of Mooresville, Ind., to be prepared for burial the father revealed he had received an offer of $10,000 from two promoters who desired to place the body on exhibition.

The father rejected this offer, saying, "I don't like things like that."

The application to exhume the body came shortly after Frank J. Walsh, coroner, at Chicago, had revealed that scientists under his direction were studying parts of the brain and vital organs of the bandit.

The coroner said an ounce or two of the criminal's brain and parts of his lungs, heart and kidneys had been removed soon after he had been shot and killed at Chicago. The coroner added that pathologists were examining the organs to determine whether Dillinger's antisocial tendencies might be attributed to abnormality or disease.

Negotiations are being made for appearance of the Dillinger family at the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago next week.

Mrs. Hattie E. Hudson Rites Set for Today

Ocean City, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Funeral services for Mrs. Hattie E. Hudson will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at St. Martin's Methodist Episcopal Church, Bishopville, Md. Burial will be in Odd Fellow's Cemetery.

The wife of Walter E. Hudson, died at her home yesterday. Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Miss Hilda M. Hudson, of Ocean City, and Mrs. Roxie R. Brassure, Roxanna, Del., and two sons, Walter F. Hudson, of Staten Island, N. Y., and Wilmer R. Hudson, of Ocean City.

The Elks Boys Band will play.

Boy, 3, Sobs When Dad Is Convicted Of Giving Him Rum

A little boy's tearful plea for his Police Court yesterday and Bernard father's liberty went unheeded in Manyette, 33, accused of giving whisky to his 3-year-old son, went to jail for six months on intoxication charges.

"Daddy, daddy!" screamed little Paul Manyette as bailiffs led his father away after Judge Ralph Given passed sentence.

A hushed courtroom audience stared as Paul ran down the aisle to fling his arms around the elder Manyette's neck. A moment later the father was sent to the District Jail.

The youngster was turned over to his mother, Mrs. Helen Manyette, who hurried him from the courtroom. A few moments before, Mrs. Manyette told Judge Given that her husband gave their son liquor.

This, however, was denied by the father. He was arrested Monday after Paul was found staggering near Sixth and F streets northwest. Manyette received one of the longest sentences on record for a simple intoxication charge.

Officials of the police Women's Bureau, investigating charges that Paul was given liquor, said further prosecution would be sought through the District attorney's office. A hearing is scheduled this morning.

Revival of "Cimarron" Directs Attention to Strange Case of Estelle Taylor

Actress Is to Abandon Films For the Stage

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

When "Cimarron" is revived at RKO-Keith's today, Estelle Taylor will be brought back to the minds of picturegoers.

Miss Taylor is importantly cast in this epic production of RKO-Radio's, based on the Edna Ferber novel. She is not, to be sure, cast in any such heroic mold as Irene Dunne, who plays the memorable part of Sabra Cravat, nor is the character which Miss Taylor depicts any lily-white, Priscilla-like study in the maidenly virtues, but it does serve to present Miss Taylor at what was, perhaps, the top of her form as a picture player.

All of which is merely leading up to the observation that you haven't seen much of Estelle Taylor on the silver sheet of any man's theater these past several months. No one knows precisely why, but she just hasn't been up there.

Was Here in Person.

It is a pleasant recollection that the former Mrs. Jack Dempsey was here in person, along with Richard Dix, Director Wesley, Floyd Gibbons and numerous others of note, for the world premiere of "Cimarron," in 1931. The admirable quality of her personal appearance on this notable Congressional occasion lingers in memory as an utter willingness to praise Miss Dunne's splendid work in her first picture and to relegate herself to the obscurity of mere background.

Later on, Miss Taylor returned to the Capital, to the surprise of all and sundry, as a concert artiste, booked to headline the stage bill at Loew's Fox. On this visit she revealed a voice of excellent quality, range and power, which she wisely confined to the interpretation of songs that did not make exactions beyond the then degree of her vocal development. And that has been about all that has been heard of Miss Taylor in these parts since. But from the West Coast comes a hint.

After Miss Taylor's cinema career had been sailing along at a nice clip, month in and month out, it suddenly became becalmed, in a manner of speaking. She waited patiently for parts that never came. So after as much of this sort of thing as any ambitious artiste might reasonably be expected to put up with, she packed up and came east to New York. Her services were snapped up at once by supper clubs, stage and concert engagements.

Will Move East.

For the nonce, Estelle is back in Hollywood, but only long enough to pack her furniture and belongings for shipment East and lease her house on Los Feliz boulevard in Hollywood, where she and Jack Dempsey enjoyed six years of married life.

There is, one is led to believe, a musical stage production in prospect for the early fall. Maybe then film producers will rediscover her and put her back at the top in filmdom—where she rightfully belongs, as "Cimarron" bears eloquent witness.

Stranger things have happened. Especially in the more or less mumbo-jumbo world of the motion picture.

So great has been the success of the Community Players' production of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," presented in the National Sylvan Theater Monday night and last night, that there is a strong likelihood of its being repeated tonight. Approximately 6,000 people enjoyed the first-night performance on the Monument Grounds Monday night. In case of inclement weather the Central High School Auditorium stands ready to house the performance — if another is given.

Casting for That Revue.

Twenty attractive Washington girls, practically all newcomers to the local—or any other—stage, but representing, nevertheless, "the cream of the crop" of Capital dancers, definitely have been selected by Gene Ford, New York producer, for the second annual "All-Washington Revue," to be presented at Loew's Fox Theater the week of August 17.

In the absence of Margaret Hartoin, of the Capital Theater, New York, Ruth Conmee, of 19 K street northeast, has been appointed line captain and is daily putting the girls through their routines.

Complete Personnel.

The nineteen other members of the ensemble are Helen Krafthofer, 5711 Seventh street northwest; Audrey Heathcote, 1971 Biltmore street northwest; Dorothy Stanford, 3154 Bladensburg road northeast; Lorraine Flammer, 810 Otis place, northwest; Dale Havener, 2520 Fourteenth street northwest; Beverly Tydings, 7133 Georgia avenue; Mary Quimby, 7219 Blair road northwest; Shirley Rose, 2 Bryant street northwest; Jane Zernia, 1 Girard street northeast; Peggy Owens, 1438 Meridian place northwest; Susan Hall, 1419 Parkwood place; Marjorie Mitchell, 3403 Fessenden street northwest; Georgia Grisso, 238 Tenth street northeast; Betty Lee, 712 Varnum street, northwest; Mary Hampton, 2622 Garfield street northwest; Margaret Carroll, 925 Virginia avenue southwest; Connie Gregory, Frances Kain, 600 Massachusetts avenue northeast, and Loretta Jay, 1370 Oak street northwest.

It is expected that the selection of the full cast of principals to surround Arthur Godfrey, WJSV's star announcer, who will be master of ceremonies, will be rounded up today.

Anyone who thinks one of these things can be whipped together overnight with a cast and chorus of amateurs, ought to try it once! Once would be enough.

Speaking of Loew's Fox, Phil Lampkin, the youthful fork-handed conductor who swishes a dynamic baton over the Fox orchestra, returned to Washington Monday night from his first vacation with his family out on the West Coast in almost four years. Full of vim, vigor, vitamins and suntan, Prof. Lampkin makes known that patrons of the Fox, beginning Friday, will be regaled by a special arrangement of excerpts from the opera, "Martha," by Flutow, as the overture number.

During his sojourn on the Coast, Prof. Lampkin further reports, he visited many of the famous cathedrals of the motion picture and plans during the coming season to transplant many novelties he picked up, from there to here.

Souvenir-Hunters' Paradise.

Today, tomorrow and Friday will be field days for the curiosity seekers, the memento-hunters and the tourists in Beverly Hills, Calif.

On these three days, the houses, the cars, the furniture and the personal effects of Lew Cody, late motion picture player and husband of Mabel Normand, who died in his sleep on May 31, will be sold at auction to liquidate his estate.

This should be a golden opportunity for the tourists, who always wonder what a movie star's home looks like, but practically never have a chance to see for themselves.

Information just received from the Coast is to the effect that a survey of Cody's homes in town and at the beach indicates that they should supply enough souvenirs in the form of ash trays, gimcracks, autographed pictures and old playbills, cocktail shakers, games and the like, to satisfy every token hunter in southern California.

Thousands Will Attend.

The total Cody estate has been estimated by Dean S. Bedilion, who will have the sale in charge, to be worth between $70,000 and $80,000 at auction prices.

Like the Valentino sale in 1926, the Cody sale is expected to attract thousands of persons. It is reported that a door upon which hundreds of his friends had carved their names has been taken from its hinges, but Mr. Bedilion doesn't know whether it was stolen or removed by one of Cody's friends for safekeeping.

Cody left no will, hence the sale of his property. His only legal heir is his 15-year-old half sister, Cecile Lena Cote, of Berlin, N. H.

Absent-Mindedness Note.

Your calendar, I mean; you've had your vacation. If not, try to get a month without making it permanent! Them days is gone forever.

Among Sirens of Friday's Screens

The Federal Diary

By Morgan Baker.
(Trade-mark Applied For)

(Reprinted from yesterday's last edition.)

ONE of the most unfair and inconsistent instances in the salary ratio of lower paid Government workers is found in the card-punching units of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. More than 150 card punchers and verifiers on the three shifts receive a yearly wage of $1,260, the lowest amount paid for semi-skilled work.

BAKER

Theirs is the task of transferring the detailed and complex information from cotton, tobacco, corn-hog and other contracts onto cards. By means of a typewriter and a number keyboard they perforate the varied hued contract cards with small square holes, which later are run through another machine, translated the holes back into printed information. It is from these cards that the payment checks—some totaling thousands of dollars—are made.

Of necessity their work demands intelligence, accuracy and speed. A double check, one for number totals, and one for written data, is maintained with errors not allowed to exceed 2 per cent. Each card represents a possible 80 errors.

Inasmuch as the work requires such close concentration and training, it is several weeks before a puncher really achieves a fair degree of proficiency. Thus, it becomes disheartening for him to see his neighbors in files, examining and reviewing units drawing salaries of $1,440 and $1,620 for work of a less complex nature.

Some officials recognize the inequities of this situation and have taken steps to remedy it, but with no success.

Under the present scheme, the most a card puncher may hope for is to arrive eventually at seniority in service, whereby he may be transferred to a better paid position. The employes regard this procedure as discouraging, dangerous to morale and pride in doing a job well.

A suggested solution is the plan adopted by the Census Bureau in 1930 and 1931. Card punchers were paid at a piece rate, receiving up to $1,620 a year. The best solution, of course, would be to rerate the entire group.

An automatic steersman for ships has just been invented by Hyde A. Harman (*), Navy. The device provides for returning the rudder to zero each time the vessel is exactly on the selected course.

JOHN A. McLEAN (*), of 4523 Kansas avenue northwest, has been appointed superintendent of Platemaking Division, Government Printing Office, succeeding Edward G. Whall, who retired Saturday, A. E. Giegengack, Public Printer, announced last night.

Mr. McLean has been with G. P. O. for about 25 years and has been assistant foreman of the finishing section. He has the indorsement of the Graphic Arts Association, the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers Union, the Potomac District Electrotyping and Stereotyping Association, the Washington Photo Engravers Association and many other groups of the printing trade. Mr. McLean also has been secretary-treasurer of the Stereotypers Union for 14 years.

Victim of heat prostration last Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Jessie Eliot Perez (*), Bureau of Air Commerce, has been recovering at the home of her sister, Mrs. Robert Watson, 1826 Varnum street northwest. Mrs. Perez will continue her rest under medical orders at her home at the Cavalier Hotel as Mrs. Watson is leaving for a trip to Cape Cod.

Reminder on Expenses.

Telegrams requesting leave of absence are not chargeable to the Government, Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of Internal Revenue, reminded employes yesterday. Mr. Helvering quoted from the Internal Revenue Manual and issued the following statement:

"Telegrams requesting leave of absence are being received at the Bureau from some field officials charged to the Government, in contravention to regulations. A telegram requesting leave of absence relates to the personal business of the applicant and should be forwarded to the Bureau at his expense. A reply to such telegram will be sent by the Bureau 'collect' at the expense of the applicant. Costs for telegrams requsting leave of absence, or which relate to other personal business, and replies thereto appearing in the accounts of the disbursing officers will be disallowed by the Bureau."

Eligibility of 109 persons on the Civil Service reemployment register expired over the week-end. With probational appointments, transfers and reinstatements, the total on the reemployment list dropped to 1,243. Of that number, 201 are listed as serving in temporary positions.

AFTER 49 years of Government service, Joshua N. Steed retired last night at Tariff Commission, where for the past 11 years he has been chief of publications section.

At a solemn little ceremony in the hearing room, his friends presented him with a watch and purse of money as an expression of affection and esteem of his fellow workers.

Mr. Steed started his Federal career as an apprentice at the Government Printing Office in 1885 and has been associated in some way with printing work relating to publications of the Government ever since. In 1909 he left the G. P. O. to accept an appointment in the Adjutant General's Office, War, where he did editorial work and later became chief of publications division. He served in that office until 1923, when he came to the Tariff Commission.

Mr. Steed is a native of North Carolina and has written several tales of the "Tarheel" State. He is a member of the Order of the Cincinnati. With his working days over, Mr. Steed plans soon to make an extended visit to North Carolina and later to carry out his lifelong desire by making a European trip. While working in Washington Mr. Steed has lived at Falls Church, Va.

Postoffice Site In Orange Chosen

Orange, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Following investigation by U. S. Postoffice Inspector R. E. Dauch of the various sites submitted for a new postoffice building for Orange, the Treasury Department has selected a tract on Main street.

The proposed building, on which bids will be asked immediately, will cost approximately $90,000, appropriation of $100,000 having been recently allocated for site and building.

Straight From the Studios

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, July 31.—For salary-getting, George Arliss is likely to be demolishing all records in the future. The English actor has become the pawn in a big game—rivalry between Britain and Hollywood. He already has lined up a $200,000 contract for a single picture, which is to be used as the lever by English producers in securing a new world dominance. They are staking a fortune on his being an international bit.

GEORGE ARLISS.

What they will pay him for the second picture, which he will make, if this first, dealing with the Duke of Wellington, turns out to be very successful, there is no telling. Anyway, British Gaumont is taking the plunge on the international film market opening its own offices in this country.

The Arliss contract with Twentieth Century is understood to be on a sliding scale with $120,000 as the likely amount for his third film, "Cardinal Richelieu." He received $80,000 for the first, and $100,000 for the second.

From present prospects, the actor will not return to this country until about the first of the year to fulfill his contract.

Meanwhile, Joseph Schenck and Darryl Zanuck, the powers in Twentieth Century, are sailing for America tomorrow. Whether they will be accompanied by any British talent is at present undetermined, but it is expected that they will be. Scarcely any producers comes back without a star, a director or a writer, or all three, nowadays from England.

Nor does the struggle of two different countries for talent end. Warner Brothers have signed up Ian Hunter, matinee idol abroad, to be the leading man for Kay Francis. He was seen in "Escape." "Sally in Our Alley" and "The Sign of the Four" among foreign-made films.

Hunter is to appear with Miss Francis in "A Present From Margate," adopted from a play by Ian Hay and A. E. W. Mason. He is in his early thirties, according to theatrical biographies, and is a dark and rugged type. Are they, perchance, looking for another Henry Wilcoxon? Hunter will play an archeologist in "A Present From Margate." He was signed by Hal Wallis abroad.

"A Present From Margate" is to start in September, and Miss Francis, who has been abroad, is sailing for American the latter part of next month.

Oberon Opposite Howard.

Merle Oberon is fast becoming the prize leading lady abroad. You may remember her as the actress who did the extraordinarily effective portrayal of Anne Boleyn in "The Private Life of Henry VIII," with Charles Laughton. More recently she played with Douglas Fairbanks in "The Private Life of Don Juan."

Still another famous actor claims her as a partner on the screen, namely Leslie Howard. She will be seen in "The Scarlet Pimpernel," adapted from the novel by Baroness Orozy, which will go into production under the direction of Roland Brown at the London Films studio in England.

As yet Miss Oberon has not been lured to Hollywood, but it won't be long.

She was born in New Zealand.

FINE FURS
in a new setting

Since nothing can so confirm a woman's reputation for chic as the perfectly chosen fur coat, we have gone to great lengths to make this an outstanding collection. Among the exciting new fur fashions, the shorter coat in formal furs—mink and Jap mink distinguished in their casualness—the slightly fitted longer coat more chic than ever in the flat, supple furs—black baby lamb, the quintessence of town distinction—Hudson seal (dyed muskrat) young enough for any debutante—and the swaggers—the "informal darlings" of all women—ranging from thirty-three inches to full length. Beautifully done in all the smart furs.

As for the new setting—it is larger, but the particularly happy arrangement is the daylight—and you must know that daylight brings out the loveliest lights in furs.

Extremely worthwhile savings in th eadvance selling of furs

Baltimore Mayor Due to Quit Governorship Race Shortly.

Baltimore, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Added confirmation of the increasing belief that Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, will withdraw from the Democratic gubernatorial race within a few days was given, when it was learned that Secretary of State David C. Winebrenner 3rd, of Frederick, a relative of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, called on the mayor at the City Hall today and remained closeted with him for nearly an hour.

Yesterday, the two leading political leaders of the Democratic party in Baltimore—Robert B. Ennis and William Curran—called on the mayor and conferred with him at length.

To questions as to what had transpired at the meetings, Mayor Jackson merely replied that they were "just sociable visits."

Withdrawal Held Assured.

But the belief in political circles here is that Ennis, Curran and Winebrenner were discussing with the mayor his impending withdrawal from the race. That some announcement to that effect will be made within two or three days seems to be considered an assured fact. The only question, apparently, is what day the mayor will select.

Although no definite word has come from the Jackson camp, it is known the mayor has been summoning his supporters to the city hall and informing them he will drop out. And it is understood his announcement will contain a plea to his supporters to rally around the standard of Gov. Ritchie.

For the past week, as the reports became more and more persistent and authoritative, the mayor was seen to let up on his campaign. In fact, he said virtually nothing about it for about ten days. His denials of withdrawal are merely statements that he has not yet quit.

Would Leave Only Conley.

His withdrawal would leave only Dr. Charles H. Conley, the crusading Frederick physician, to fight it out with Gov. Ritchie. Dr. Conley has said repeatedly he will not abandon his campaign; in fact, he would stand to profit greatly by Mayor Jackson's withdrawal, as Dr. Conley then would be the only individual remaining about whom the anti-Ritchie group could assemble. It is known that pressure is being applied to Dr. Conley from the Ritchie camp in an effort to get him to withdraw, but the chances of this seem to be slender.

There were reports that in exchange for quitting the race, Mayor Jackson would be given a sizable share of State and city patronage—that he would be permitted to name the holders of several important State jobs and many lesser ones.

Smith, France End Tour.

Hagerstown, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—H. Webster Smith and Dr. Joseph I. France, seeking the Republican nominations for Governor and Uniter States Senator, respectively, completed an intensive campaign in Washington County this week.

Yesterday, Mrs. Smith, wife of the gubernatorial candidate, met a group of Republican women at a tea in a local hotel, while the two candidates were hosts at a dinner the previous night to a number of local and county Republican leaders. Last night a mass meeting was held here, attended by several hundred Republicans from all sections of the county.

Judge Seeks Renomination.

Judge Frank G. Wagaman, of Hagerstown, of the Fourth Judicial Circuit, yesterday filed in the three counties — Washington, Allegany and Garrett—comprising the circuit his certificate for renomination. He is a Republican and it is understood he will have no opposition for the nomination.

Four others filed, including Dallas Ward, a member of the board of county commissioners, who again seeks the nomination, and former City Councilman C. Elmer Kiracofe, who also filed for the county board. Both are Democrats. Walter S. Fishel, Republican, also seeks the nomination for the county board, while Deputy Sheriff Richard Renner, Democrat, filed for sheriff.

Five File in Carroll.

Westminster, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Five additional candidates have announced their intentions of seeking offices in Carroll County.

They are Arnolphus Krumrine, Myers District, judge of the orphans' court, Democrat; E. Edward Martin, Finksburg, county commissioner, Republican; Samuel Solomon, Sykesville, county commissioner, Republican; Ernest Pickett, Woodbine, House of Delegates, Republican; Lewis E. Green, New Windsor, judge of the orphans' court, Republican.

Leonardtown G. O. P. Meets.

Leonardtown, Aug. 1 (Spl.). Called for the purpose of securing party harmony and to avoid primary contests if possible, a meeting was held here yesterday attended by about 100 representative Republicans.

Discussion centered on the three candidates for sheriff in the primary. J. B. Love, in defending his candidacy, said he was the first to file, while Daniel Bowles asserted he had tied at the last election with the Democratic candidate, who won on a recount.

M. C. Joy, "the third candidate, said he had run for office for 20 years and was going to keep on trying.

2 Fined for Assault In Riot at Pool Room

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.). Convicted of assaulting Lihen Carptner, 26, in a pool room riot, Carrol Kishpaugh, 23, and H. P. Beasely, 22, of Henderson, N. C., were fined $10 and costs each today in police court.

Carptner is in Mary Washington Hospital.

10,000 to See Beauty Rule Over Culpeper Tri-Festival

Parade and Crowning of Queen Will Open Tri-Festival Today

A Post staff photographer will be sent to Culpeper to cover pictorially the Tri-Festival being held there today, tomorrow and Saturday. C. B. Carr, Post field representative, will write the stories to accompany the festival pictures which will appear in The Post tomorrow and Saturday.

By C. B. Carr.

Culpeper, Aug. 1.—Culpeper's second annual trifestival will be opened here tomorrow morning with the features parade and coronation of Miss Catherine Crump Jones, of Culpeper, as "Queen Culpeper II."

The fete will continue through Friday and Saturday.

The parade will start at 10 a. m., headed by a cordon of State police and J. William Swan, general chairman of the festival. Queen-elect Culpeper and her court, composed of 10 young women from northern Virginia and the District of Columbia, will be the honored parties in line of march. A half-dozen bands and more than 45 civic and commercial floats will be in the parade.

After the parade the coronation exercises incident to the raising of Miss Jones to the title of Queen Culpeper II will take place at the fair grounds, where a large dais has been erected for the event.

The Rev. W. Francis Allison, of Brandy, will conduct the coronation rites and Maj. Gen. Harry Lee, of Quantico, will place the crown.

Several events intended to furnish 10,000 persons expected for the opening day of the festival with amusement are scheduled. Lieut. Harley Clapsdale, of Anacostia Field, Washington, will give an aerial exhibition and there will be a horse racing program at the Fair Grounds tomorrow evening. The queen's ball will be held at the Pot and Kettle Tea House.

Friday's program, given over to informal fun-making, will be climaxed with a public wedding at 8:30 p. m., when Miss Lois Rovercomb and Charles C. Riddle will be married. Saturday's program will be concluded with the presentation of an automobile.

A score of Federal, State and municipal officials are expected to attend the festival as the guests of Culpeper.

Skyline Road Opening Fight Starts in Va.

Chambers of Commerce Want Traffic Flow in September.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.). Chambers of commerce and civic clubs of the Shenandoah Valley and Piedmont are planning to launch a drive to back up Senator Harry F. Byrd and the Shenandoah Valley, Inc. in their request for an early fall opening of the Skyline drive along the crest of the Blue Ridge Mountains from Panorama to Swift Run Gap in the Shenandoah National Park area.

This became known today when a letter from Acting Director A. E. Demaray, of the National Park Service, to the Shenandoah Valley, Inc., created uncertainty as to whether arrangements can be made for use of the scenic road this fall.

President A. T. Moore, of the Shenandoah Valley, Inc., announced that persons of the Valley and Piedmont sections will be asked to take up the movement.

Anxious to Open Road.

Mr. Demaray, in letters to Senator Byrd and to the Harrisonburg Chamber of Commerce, stated that the National Park Service is "anxious to open the road at the earliest date" and expressed the hope it may be done by October 1. In his letter to the Shenandoah Valley, Inc., he says the opening can not be made in "early September" and no date can be set when it can be done.

Brough Talks to Road Parley in Virginia

Warrenton, Va., Aug. (Spl.).—Former Gov. Charles H. Brough of Arkansas and Arthur Clarendon Smith, of Washington, spoke here yesterday at the first subsidiary link organization meeting of the Lee Highway Association.

The meeting was attended by representatives from towns along the highway from Washington to New Market, Va. Representatives were elected to further plans for the widening of the highway.

Hagerstown Picnic Attracts 10,000

Miss Jenkins Is Crowned Queen; Nye Speaks.

Hagerstown, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Miss Mildred Jenkins reigned as "Queen of the Urma picnic" at the annual picnic attended by 10,000 persons held today at Rowe's Park. Miss Jenkins was selected by a committee several days ago.

The principal address was delivered by Senator Gerald P. Nye, of South Dakota, while Judge John M. Pohlhaus, president of the Independent Retail Grocers of Maryland, also spoke. The evening session was presided over by Harry Walker, secretary of the State association.

Miss Jenkins was crowned with impressive ceremonies. There were band concerts by the Junior Y. M. C. A. band of Hagerstown and the Waynesboro band, and a concert by the Municipal band. A number of athletic events and contests were held.

Rappahannock Combed For Drowning Victim

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Search was continued today for the body of Frank Chapman, young Charlotte (N. C.) man who fell from his father's cruiser, the Sis-Ann, at the mouth of the Rappahannock River Monday night.

Young Chapman and a party of vacationists left Newport News early Monday evening for a cruise. He fell overboard near Irvington.

Man Flees Jail, Walks 225 Miles To Serve Term

Moundsville, W. Va., Aug. 1. (Spl.).—Weary of waiting several months for State penitentiary guards to come and get him, Will Anderson, 20, of Logan County, broke jail at Logan and hitch-hiked to Moundsville, 225 miles away, to serve a two-year term for breaking and entering.

The youth said he had traveled only at night and had spent the days in hiding. There were few pickups, he said, and he walked most of the way. It took him about a month to make the trip.

Owing to congested conditions at the penitentiary, Anderson was being kept as a convict in the Logan Jail until room could be found for him at Moundsville. While being given credit for his stay at Logan he seemed to prefer the penitentiary.

Federal Cash For Park Sites To Be Sought

Congress to Be Asked to Reimburse Counties for Tax Losses.

Staunton, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Legislation providing that the Federal Government reimburse counties for taxes lost when lands were acquired by the United States for park and forest purposes will be offered at the next session of Congress. The bill may carry an $80,000,000 appropriation.

James L. Akers, of Monroe County, Tenn., appearing here before the Augusta County board of supervisors, asked for a $300 appropriation to pay for an audit to determine Augusta's share.

He said similar surveys have been made in the Western States, where the Government has taken large acreages for Federal purposes, and that examinations of land transfers, assessments and tax rates are being made in Eastern and Southeastern States where parks and forests have been created.

The Augusta board of supervisors took no action on the request, but appointed Chairman J. Frank Harper and Clerk Charles K. Yancey to confer with Senator Harry F. Byrd and Representative A. Willis Robertson on the subject of the bill.

Mr. Akers says perhaps $3 an acre would be an average assessment of lands taken over by the Government, which are tax-free and yield little or no revenue to the counties.

Increased Freight Rates Are Fought

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—The Virginia Farm Bureau Federation, with a membership of 5,000, through its president, G. F. Holsinger, of Rockingham County, today filed a protest against the proposed 10 per cent increase in railroad freight rates with R. H. Ashton, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, Washington.

The railroads are planning to ask the Interstate Commerce Commission for the 10 per cent increase on the ground the NRA has increased its operating expenses in that proportion.

Mr. Holsinger, in his protest, declares the present Eastern railroad freight rates are 90 per cent higher than the 1913 level, while 1933 farm product prices are 40 per cent under 1913 farm product prices. He contends that if freight rates increase is granted, exemption should be made in its application to farm products as well as farm supplies.

'Fighting First' Betters Record On Rifle Range

627 Men Qualify, With 57 Failing; Musicians in Traffic Mishap.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Camp A. C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., Aug. 1.—Maryland's "Fighting First" bettered its last year's record in rifle and automatic rifle firing at this encampment, it was revealed yesterday. Records reveal that 627 men qualified with rifles, with 57 failing to qualify. Last year 85 failed. The regiment attained 100 per cent qualification with the automatic rifle.

Four companies have qualified 100 per cent of their men in the arm with which they are equipped. They are Company L, of Crisfield; Headquarters Company, Third Battalion, of Pocomoke City; the band section of Frederick and the Service Company of Silver Spring.

The regiment's last year's record was the highest in the United States and it is believed the record will be maintained. Machine gun companies, however, did not do quite as well this year as last year. With 185 men armed with machine guns, 166 qualified, leaving 19 unqualified, while last year there were 6 unqualified.

Members of the field music section of Cumberland were shaken up last night when the truck that was carrying them to Waynesboro, Pa., for a band concert, ran into a ditch. None was injured. The band section, of Frederick, directed by Warrant Officer Henry S. Keller, played until the field music arrived to put on an exhibition drill. The band was led by Miss Beulah "Boots" Sherman, of Cumberland, honorary drum major.

The band gave a surprise party for Miss Sherman yesterday on her birthday. A present was given Miss Sherman by Capt. F. Lester Smith, regimental adjutant, of Frederick.

Lower Farm Taxes Urged In Maryland

Grange and Federation Committee Reports on Its Study.

Baltimore, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Reduction of at least 20 per cent in tax assessments on Maryland farms was demanded today by the Maryland State Grange and the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, through a joint committee assigned to study farm relief.

Among other recommendations by the committee are:

That a State income tax be established.

That the State inheritance tax be increased sharply.

That State liquor taxes and license revenues be used to reduce county school tax rates so that no county would have to assess more than 30 cents per $100 for school purposes.

That the present motor vehicle license tax be reduced—possibly as low as $2 per year.

That some other form of taxation other than a general property tax be imposed for relief purposes.

The chairman of the committee, D. G. Harry, said he is convinced the recommendations are "fair and equitable for all parts of the State and that they will work out to the advantage of the entire taxpaying population, urban as well as rural."

An attempt will be made it was said, to take the recommendations before the Maryland Legislature.

Nurse Gets Certificate.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Miss Katherine Louise Eckerd, a graduate of the Winchester (Va.) Hospital, also of General Hospital, Philadelphia, where she took special training to equip herself for Red Cross work, has received her certificate as a Red Cross nurse.

"Pet" Rattlesnake Is Stolen

Virginian Turns Sleuth on Discovering Absence of Captive and Takes Out Warrant for Neighbor Who Tried to Buy It.

Big Laurel, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Dewey Hunt was hunting huckleberries in the mountains along the Virginia-Kentucky border, near Nigh, Ky., recently when he captured a rattlesnake measuring 4 feet 7 inches and carrying 13 rattles.

Hunt was pleased with his captive and built a nice screen cage for it. A neighbor, John Craft, likewise liked the rattler. He tried to buy it; offered $20 for it. Hunt refused to set a price.

The next morning when he went to feed the reptile, it and the cage were missing. He began a search and the next day went to Pikeville, where he produced enough evidence to get a warrant for Craft.

Luray, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Rattlesnakes are becoming so numerous among men working on the Skyline drive that every man is carrying an antidote, ranging from vinegar, salt, pomegranite to whisky.

W. Delon Taylor, a watchman, says he has encountered 82 while going to and from his home and his watch box, a distance of three miles.

Mrs. Louise Cave, wife of the Rev. Girdon Cave, battled a four-foot rattler after it had bitten her 6-year-old daughter. The snake was killed on the porch of Mrs. Cave's home. Home remedies, it is believed, will save the girl's life.

Virginia Chess Players Plan First Tournament at Staunton

Staunton, Va., Aug. 1 (AP).—The first annual tournament of the Virginia Chess Federation will be held here September 1 to 3, at Fairway Tavern, W. W. Gibbs announced today.

Entries should be in by August 25, and are being received by Gibbs, at Staunton, and John Manning, 115 Bank street, Norfolk, secretary.

Although entries in the State championship tournament will be limited to ten, the entry list will be unlimited in the open tournament, which will be conducted at the same time.

Play will start September 1, with three sessions daily, 9 a. m. to 12 noon, 2 to 5 p. m. and 7 to 10 p. m. Unfinished games will be completed from ten to 11:30 o'clock.

If games are not completed within these limits they will be adjudicated by the editor of the Chess Review.

A trophy representing the Virginia championship will be placed in the custody of the club whom the winner represents until the next annual tournament. In addition, a medal will be presented the winner. There also will be a prize for the second best score. In the open tournament prizes will be provided for the first and second scores.

Here's One Egg That Tried to Hatch a Thimble

Richmond, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Remember the old, old tales of the magic ring that was found in the fish or the diamond held by the talking frog? Here's another.

Mrs. William E. Tyler went to the old market here and bought half a dozen eggs from a huckster.

The next morning she broke two eggs for her husband's breakfast. They were perfectly good, normal eggs.

As she picked up the third egg it rattled.

"Aha," said Mrs. Taylor. "This egg is not as fresh as it used to be."

She broke it. Out rolled—a thimble.

The thimble wasn't gold—or even silver. Whatta ya think this is—a fairy story?

Directors Ask Rehearing of $30,000 Suit

Carroll Bank Officials Fight Action Won by Former Cashier's Kin.

Westminster, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.). Petitions have been filed by seven directors of the Pleasant Valley Bank and administrators of the estate of the late C. Tobias Yingling, former director of the bank, in the Carroll County Circuit Court, seeking rehearing of a suit against the bank, which resulted in the court granting the return of about $30,000 to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Crouse, of Tyrone.

Mr. and Mrs. Crouse, testifying in their plea for return of the money, charged the bank forced them to pay about $30,000 on threats of criminal prosecution of their son. The son, Nevin W. Crouse, was convicted in 1932 of embezzlement from the bank, of which he was cashier, and sentenced to the House of Correction for three years.

In the petition for a rehearing, signed by John W. Warehime, John H. Brown, Charles Leese, Charles E. Hosfeld, Joseph P. Yingling, Charles E. Eckard and Upton H. Myers, are the statements that they are "uneducated men with no knowledge of law or accounting" and that they relied on advice of the bank's attorney and the representations of Nevin Crouse.

They also seek a rehearing on the ground that new evidence has been discovered. The petition filed by the administrators of Tobias Yingling charges that the bank and its solicitor arbitrarily declined to give them any information concerning the case prior to the trial.

Appeals have been entered for two other directors—Edgar H. Schaeffer and A. Daniel Leister.

An answer, filed by attorneys for Mr. and Mrs. Crouse, denies in general the allegations of the petitioners.

Home Fire Blamed On Moonshiners

Woman Tells Officers Revenge Was Motive.

Hagerstown, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Liquor law violators were accused by Mrs. Thomas Mongan, in the Frog Hollow section of Washington County, of setting fire to her home. The building and its contents were destroyed last night while the Mongan family was away.

Dr. Howe Sees Era of Greater U. S. Freedom

AAA Official Addresses Institute of Rural Affairs at V.P.I.

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 1 (AP). America is entering a new era, Dr. Frederic C. Howe, consumers' counsel of AAA, said today at the sixth annual institute of rural affairs held at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

"This era will provide greater freedom," said the speaker, who termed it a "consumers' society."

"It is but a few short years," Dr. Howe said, "since we all feared want; we feared we would not have enough food; feared that there was not wealth enough to go around. That has been true of America for 300 years. It was the fear of the entire world for 20 centuries.

Our Thinking Upset.

"All that is ended. Instead of too little wealth we seem to have too much. And the existence of too much in certain lines and too little in others, too much in a few hands and too little in many has upset America. It has upset our thinking. The recovery program is in some way involved in this extraordinary thing which has happened to the world.

"We have a choice before us; a choice which seems to me is being made in the direction of a new freedom, possibly in the direction of something like a consumers' society."

Suggestions of this new freedom, he said, are to be found in the bringing of electric light and power into the farm house, and to every city dweller as well, in the subsistence homesteads, little farms for industrial workers or those engaged in seasonal employment.

Credit Another Step.

Another step in the building of this consumers' society is making available credit—"not credit extended by a private bank as a personal favor, but credit which issues out of useful wealth, out of the confidence which we have in one another."

Given land and credit, Dr. Howe continued, a new society may be born.

The importance of the operatives in building the consumers' society was stressed by Dr. Howe, who said that cooperatives are spreading rapidly in America.

Husband Trapped By Maimed Wife After 11 Years

Baltimore, Aug. 1 (AP).—Because his wife was arrested for an alleged violation of the Maryland liquor laws, Robert Lee, colored, today was in jail awaiting trial on a charge of shooting off his wife's legs with a shotgun in Prince Edward County, Va., eleven years ago.

When the wife, Susie Lee, was brought to jail an officer asked how she had lost both legs below the knee.

"My husband shot them off with a shotgun in Virginia," said Susie.

"How much time did he get for it," the officer inquired.

"He didn't get any because he escaped from the sheriff near Petersburg."

Further questioning revealed that Susie had seen Robert in Baltimore a few days before, but had not thought it worth while to notify the police. So a sergeant and two patrolmen went looking for him and soon thereafter Robert was in jail. Virginia officers were notified.

Nation-Wide Interest Shown In Public Affairs Institute

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.). The proceedings of the eighth annual session of the Institute of Public Affairs, convened at the University of Virginia July 2 to 14, are finding a wide circulation throughout the country.

Requests for special addresses and complete round table discussions have been unusually numerous, it was announced by Dr. Charles G. Maphie, director of the institute. Daily inquiries come from individuals, educational institutions, societies and governmental officials in the various States. The institute maintains a permanent staff at the university.

The address by John W. Davis on the "Old Order" created the greatest response. Widespread requests for copies of this speech have been received.

Of the 12 round tables devoted to government, finance, business, education, religion, aspects of the New Deal, and international affairs, the one on Latin-American relations, led by Dr. Dana G. Monro, of Princeton University, is receiving the most popular attention.

Among those who discussed the economic and political problems of the Central and South American countries, and their diplomatic relations with the United States were William R. Castle, former Undersecretary of State; Dr. Samuel Guy Inman, secretary of the committee on cooperation in Latin-America; Francis White, former Assistant Secretary of State; Dr. Herbert Feis, of the State Department; Dr. Carlos G. Davila, former Ambassador from Chile, and Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, Minister from Panama.

Plans for the 1935 institute are under—

Virginia Grape Grower Asks 'Tax' Removal

State Desire for Profit Forces Exorbitant Price, Claim.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 1 (AP).—Bernard P. Chamberlain, of Charlottesville, president of the Monticello Grape Growers Association, asserted today that the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board in its wine regulations seems unduly moved by a desire for profit.

He charged that the board's "thinly veiled taxation system" raised the price of table wines to an unnecessarily high point.

"The people of Virginia want a good, cheap, native wine for use with their meals," Chamberlain said. "Present ABC board regulations make it impossible for them to have it.

"There is no discrimination between light table wines and fortified wines, whereas in their proper use wines differ markedly. A 'light wine' of natural fermentation contains from 12 per cent to 14 per cent alcohol and is properly used as a beverage with meals. A fortified wine, one to which grape brandy or grain alcohol has been added, contains from 16 to 24 per cent alcohol and is properly used in place of a cocktail or a brandy.

Use of Wine Fostered.

"The recent Assembly sought to make wines freely available to our people at prices which would encourage their use, to the exclusion, to some extent, of hard liquors in the interest of temperance. The Legislature put no tax on wine, and apparently, at least, had in mind the extermination of the illicit liquor business and the promotion of true temperance as prominently as the making of money for the State."

He said the groceryman, "the best seller of table beverages," must sell his cheapest wine for over $1 a bottle.

"If the State is trying to encourage the growing of grapes by its own farmers as a relief to agriculture," Chamberlain asserted, "it must encourage rather than discourage its citizens to drink wine. Very little wine is now being sold either in the dispensaries or by private licensees."

Alcohol Sale Hearing.

Richmond, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has set August 7 as the date of a hearing for industrial concerns, druggists, hospitals, laboratories and other users of alcohol and alcoholic beverages for medicinal purposes, upon proposed new regulations regarding the purchasing and shipping of alcohol.

The board, in a notice sent out today, noted that the ABC act provides that alcohol, including specially denatured alcohol, may be purchased only through the board.

On alcohol for manufacturing purposes the board is allowed to charge no profit other than a reasonable permit fee. The notice said that the board desires the advice of interested business men before promulgating its regulations.

Staunton Liquor Trade.

Staunton, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—The State liquor store here in its first month made 23,918 sales for $21,441.51, Manager F. M. Sizer announces.

Cheaper liquors and gin are strong favorites with customers, and bootleggers are reported to be feeling the competition offered by the State dispensary.

One bootlegger has commented that whereas he formerly disposed of from 35 to 50 pints during a week-end, since the store opened if he sold 15 pints he was doing good.

St. Marys Melon Crop Is Damaged

Crack Open on Vines as Weather Changes.

Leonardtown, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.). Cantaloupes and watermelons are cracking open while still on the vines in the fields here, owing to the sudden change in temperature when the cool rain drenched them.

Many gardens have been burned up and replanting of those vegetables that make a quick growth is the only chance for canning.

Tomatoes are scarce. Those that survived the drought are blistered and imperfect, but a new growth will mature before cold weather.

Rains have fallen daily since Sunday and the drought which threatened a serious food shortage here has been broken and the fields are turning green again.

State Confident On Milk Act Test

Next Step in Fight Up to Attorney General.

Richmond, Aug. 1. (AP).—The next development in a test of the validity of the Virginia milk control act tonight rested with Attorney General A. P. Staples, to whom has been referred a formal declaration of intent to contest the law.

R. J. Reynolds, a small producer of milk in the Staunton-Waynesboro area, has informed the State milk commission through his counsel that he will contest the commission's authority to enforce a retail price level of 11 cents per quart for milk of .25 to 4.25 per cent butter fat, and 12 cents for the higher grade. Reynolds wants, he has informed the commission, to continue selling milk at 10 cents per quart.

Backed by Supreme Court opinions that price fixing of milk is constitutional, the State commission and the attorney general's office are ready, they have said, for the test.

U. S. to Survey Money Ills of Small Business

Commerce Department's Advising Council Asks Financial Data.

The little business man was invited last night to tell the Federal Government of his troubles in getting loans from the local banker to meet maturing obligations.

This and other information looking toward the strengthening of the capital structure of small business, weakened by four years of depression, was solicited in a questionnaire sent to 16,000 manufacturing firms by the Census Bureau.

The survey included only those companies employing from 30 to 190 wage earners. The information will be kept confidential, but will be turned over to the business advisory and planning council of the Commerce Department which requested the inquiry.

William L. Austin, director of the Census Bureau, said the council feels the survey will demonstrate whether existing facilities are successfully supplying small industries' needs or whether new measures are necessary.

Constitutes Second Move.

The move was the second made by the Administration to aid the little business man, who was reported by the Darrow review board as being "oppressed" by the NRA and in serious danger of being eliminated from the economic picture by monopolistic influences.

The first step was taken by the Seventy-third Congress, which authorized the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make direct loans totaling $300,000,000 and the Federal Reserve Bank's loans reaching $280,000,000 direct to industry unable to obtain money through normal channels.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper said reports had been received by various Government agents that bankers still were refusing to make loans to small operators on seemingly substantial collateral and were still maintaining their institutions in a high state of liquidity.

Seeks "Greater Revival."

The business Advisory and Planning Council believed "that greater revival of business activity would result if the capital structure of these concerns could be strengthened and if the difficulty of obtaining new capital could be overcome."

The questionnaire asks comparative information for 1926, 1929, 1933, relating to assets and liabilities, estimated capital requirements, amount of long and short term obligations and sources from which capital is obtained.

The question of most interest is written in this way:

"Have you experienced any difficulty in obtaining the capital funds needed for current operation or for meeting maturing obligations?"

The manufacturers are asked to suggest sources from which capital and credit could be made available if the stagnation of bank credit continues.

Gardeners Pick Club Officers

Mt. Rainier Group Names William H. Bozarth as President.

William H. Bozarth has been elected president of the Mount Rainier Garden Club. Other officers are vice president, Mrs. Lucile Stockman Cawthorne; secretary, Mrs. Arthur Lamphier, and treasurer, Thomas G. Ecton.

The object of the club is to stimulate love of gardening among amateurs, to aid in protection of native plants, trees and birds and to encourage civic improvement.

At a meeting at the home of Mrs. J. R. Venning yesterday club by-laws were adopted. Several persons were elected to membership.

Plans for a flower show were discussed. A committee composed of Mrs. E. C. Helm, Mrs. Harold Kinner and Mrs. Louise Medley was named to make arrangements.

The club meets on the last Tuesday of each month. The next meeting will be held at the home of William H. Bozarth, 3223 Bunker Hill road, Tuesday, August 28, at 8 p. m.

Two D. C. Men Get Prison Sentences

Pair Is Found Guilty in Girl Assault Case.

La Plata, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Two Washington men, convicted of assault on a Washington girl, today awaited transfer to the Maryland Penitentiary where they will serve three years. Sentences were imposed by Judge W. Mitchell Digges.

They were charged with having attempted to assault Miss Jean Kearns, 21, after they offered to drive her and her escort, Herbert Newman, from Chesapeake Beach to Washington.

Kaup Is Chosen to Fill Bishop Brennan's Post

Illness of the Most Rev. Andrew J. Brennan, bishop of Richmond, Va., has resulted in appointment by the Holy See of the Right Rev. Felix S. Kaup to the office of apostolic administrator, the Catholic Welfare Conference revealed yesterday. Mgr. Kaup is pastor of the Richmond Cathedral.

How Oxonians Uphold College Traditions

One of the myriad traditions which enrich college life for the Oxonian are the periodic "rags" in which different college undergraduate bodies wage grim war with soot and flour. At right, one of Oxford's greatest athletes, Douglas Lowe, two-time Olympic 800-meter champion, in his role of sporting newsgatherer, a role which many star athletes fill after their competitive days are ended.

AAA Official Fears Drought Aids Profiteer

Christgau Warns Against Paying Toll to Those Who Speculate.

Warning that the drought is playing into the hands of speculators who are profiting from price fluctuations at the expense of farmers and consumers alike was broadcast last night by Victor A. Christgau, assistant administrator of the AAA.

Charting the course of the drought, which he said has reached into 23 States and broken all records for 40 years, Mr. Christgau cautioned consumers against "paying toll to those who profiteer to the limit off such calamity as drought."

"The Adjustment Administration serves notice now that it will be on the alert in the coming months, and that with this act the consumer has a chance to be heard in ways more potent than his past privilege to merely grumble," he said.

Earlier, the Weather Bureau reported beneficial rains aiding crops in the East, but the drought "unrelieved" in the West.

Mr. Christgau declared the AAA benefit payment plan "the greatest crop income insurance operation ever carried out anywhere in the world." He estimated approximately $420,000,000 raised from processing taxes will be paid this year to 3,000,000 farmers.

Efforts to extend the drought cattle-buying program to sheep, removing 5,000,000 of them from the drought area, hinge, he said, on a ruling by the Comptroller General, as sheep were never made a "basic commodity" under the AAA.

Meantime, Senator James P. Pope (Democrat), Idaho, charged that representatives of the Republican party were carrying on a whispering campaign against the Roosevelt Administration in the drought area. In addition, he charged these representatives were engaged in an open attack "to undermine the great accomplishments of the Agriculture Adustment Administration and the National Recovery Administration."

Two Escaped Convicts Started Back to Prison

Mexico, Mo., Aug. 1 (AP).—John Burnett, 27, and William C. Jay, 45, two of the five convicts who escaped from the Indiana State Prison at Michigan City last Saturday and were captured here yesterday, were started back to the penitentiary at noon today.

It was decided that Burnett, who was shot by Mayor W. A. Debo when he resisted arrest, had recovered sufficiently to make the trip.

Labor Day Outing Set By Colored Democrats

The Allied Colorad Democratic Clubs of the District will be hosts to members of colored organizations from surrounding States at a barbecue at Suburban Gardens on Labor Day.

There will be an all-day program in which prominent speakers will participate, according to Mack D. Row, chairman.

$500 Worth of Gems Stolen From Home

Theft of $500 worth of jewelry from a dresser drawer in her bedroom was reported to police yesterday by Mrs. Jennie Mills, 316 Oakdale street northwest.

Mrs. Mills said the jewelry consisted of a white gold ring set with 11 diamonds and valued at $350, and a white gold ring with a diamond valued at $150, was in a box and, although she missed it only yesterday, she thinks it was stolen between July 19 and 29.

Driver Wrecks Train; Fined $5

Lacey was found guilty of placing an obstruction on the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad tracks at Dodge Park, Md., July 23.

It was testified that the defendant, who was hauling a truck load of rocks for a Washington concern, inquired at Colmar Manor how he might get his truck across the wooden bridge at Dodge Park. He was told that he would be prohibited, as the bridge was limited to 9,000-pound loads and was advised to attempt a crossing below the bridge. The truck stuck on the tracks, wrecking an express train on the electric railway. Five persons received minor injuries.

Florey Absolved In Stevens Death

Inquest Held in Traffic Defendant's Death.

A Prince Georges County coroner's jury Tuesday released Bladensburg Town Bailiff Charles Florey in connection with the fatal shooting of Kater Stevens, colored, 31, last July 31.

A verdict of "death by gunshot wound fired by a person unknown to the jury at this time," was returned.

Florey was alleged to have fired at Stevens to prevent his escape. Stevens was being taken to the Hyattsville Jail to be held on a traffic charge. The inquest was held at Bladensburg before Acting Coroner Henry O'Neill.

Funeral Services Today For Prof. Charles Irwin

Funeral services for Prof. Charles Walter Irwin, 68, secretary of the educational department of the World Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, will be held at 4 p. m. today at the Seventh Day Adventist Church, Carroll street and Willow avenue, Takoma Park, Md. The Rev. Walter W. W. Prescott, of the World Conference office, will officiate.

Prof. Irwin died Tuesday after an illness of two years. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Minnie Irwin.

Women on Relief Rolls Form Clubs to Make Own Clothing

Weekly Sewing Bees Will Be Held at Church in Georgetown.

Scissors will snip and needles fly from now on in the parish hall of St. John's Church, in Georgetown, as women on relief rolls make clothes for themselves, their children and their neighbors.

The foundation for this self-help project was laid yesterday when the Georgetown Colored Mothers' Self Help Sewing Group was formed, with a membership of 48.

A half hour later a group of white mothers met, but the number was insufficient for the organization of a club by them until next week.

Materials for dresses and garments of all sorts are to be furnished by the Government, and equipment and working quarters have been donated by the church.

The groups of mothers will hold weekly sewing bees. None of the garments made are to be sold.

"We are teaching these people, in the face of adversity, to make their own clothes and help themselves," explained a case worker yesterday.

"If a woman makes a dress for a little girl, and has, let us say, a son, she will turn the dress over to her friend in exchange for something she herself can use, or something that will be useful for her family."

The plan is a part of a movement under way by the District Rehabilitation Corporation staff, which seeks to lessen the relief rent expenditures by having unemployed workers cooperate with landlords in repairing property for free rent.

Mrs. Helen Trudely, supervisor of relief work in Georgetown, is one of the leaders in the sewing movement.

The mothers will be given an instructor, who will advise them on sewing methods.

Other features planned for the mothers' clubs include lectures on economical, properly balanced menus by Miss Gertrude True, home economics instructor. Miss True, who gave her first lecture to the white group yesterday, is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and Columbia University.

Myers Denies Guilt in Death Of College Girl

Fear of Disgrace Drove Him Away, Oklahoma Youth Says.

Norman, Okla., Aug. 1 (AP).—Neal Myers, 21, University of Oklahoma student, was locked in a county jail cell today to await preliminary hearing on charges he murdered his college sweetheart, Marian Mills, in a purported effort to defeat maternity.

Myers, who gave himself up last night after authorities had sought him for three weeks in connection with the death of the campus beauty queen, pleaded not guilty when he was arraigned today.

"I had to get out. I couldn't stand to think of the scandal and disgrace it would bring on my family and on Marian's family," he said today in explanation of his flight after Miss Mills' death.

County Attorney Paul Updegraff, asserting the youth's only motive for flight was to escape prosecution, declared:

"He knew he was wanted. Under the law he is guilty of murder and he will be prosecuted vigorously."

Father Blames Himself.

Dr. P. B. Myers, of El Reno, Neal's father, told newspapermen he felt the blame for his son's flight partially "rests on me."

"I was a stern, strict father. I told my boys I expected them to stay out of trouble. I see my mistake now. I should have told them to do everything possible to avoid trouble, but if they got in trouble to come first to me. I see that because of my strictness, when Neal got into trouble he was afraid to come to me."

Updegraff disclosed today, for the first time, an operation had preceded Miss Mills' death July 10. Previously, death had been attributed to the use of "quack" remedies in an effort to prevent motherhood.

Myers insisted he had asked Marian "many times" to marry him. He would not say why she refused.

Part of Story Untold.

On the advice of his attorneys, Neal withheld much of his version of the death of Miss Mills, daughter of a university professor.

"I knew she was dead," he said before he entered the justice of the peace courtroom for arraignment.

His preliminary hearing was set for next Saturday.

The murder charge against young Myers does not allege willful or premeditated homicide, Updegraff explained. Oklahoma statutes provide that when a person is killed in the commission of a felony, it is murder.

U. S. to Check Gold Imports Closely

Must Be Accompanied by Consular Invoices.

Secretary Morgenthau ruled yesterday that future shipments of gold to the United States exceeding $100 in value must be accompanied by consular invoices, the Associated Press reports.

The move was made in order that the Government might have a more adequate check on all incoming gold.

Crude gold, metal already in transit, and that imported into this country for reexport are excepted.

Memorial Circle Again Claims Crash Victim

Memorial Circle, which has been the Waterloo of scores of motorists entering or leaving Alexandria on the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway, claimed Richard Phillips, 1424 K street northwest, yesterday as its latest crash victim.

According to park police, Phillips was driving south when his auto failed to make the turn and ran 200 feet through the circle before coming to a stop. Phillips suffered several broken ribs and lacerations.

Shaler Church Dinner.

Under supervision of Mrs. Lily Guillot, chairman, Mrs. Charles E. Benson, Mrs. Margaret Bissell, Mrs. Francis Hannon and Mrs. Maude Ricketts, the annual chicken dinner of Shaler Methodist Church will be held at the Glen Echo Cabin John School on Conduit road tonight.

Fusion Ticket Of 20 Indorsed In Montgomery

Nominations Are Divided Between Democrats and Republicans.

Ten Republicans and ten Progressive Democrats were indorsed last night by the Fusion party of Montgomery County, Md., at a closed meeting in the Rockville courthouse.

John Oxley, Democrat, unsuccessful candidate for the State's attorney nomination in 1930, was indorsed for State Senator, and Ira C. Whitacre, Republican, cashier of the Silver Spring National Bank, for county treasurer.

The Fusion slate, which had been prepared in secrecy by a committee, includes three Republicans and two Progressive Democrats as candidates for the board of county commissioners. They are:

Other Committees Planned.

The convention of the fusion central committee of 130 voted to direct the candidates' committee to continue to function as an advisory committee on organization of other committees, including finance, campaign, publicity and printing.

Other indorsements announced were:

For members of the House of Delegates from Montgomery County, Joseph A. Cantrel, Walter M. Magruder, James Cunningham Rogers, Millward C. Taft and Laurence Tolson.

For State's attorney for Montgomery County, Walter W. Dawson, chairman of the Republican State central committee for the county.

For sheriff, Leonard C. Burns, jr.

For register of wills, Thomas D. Darby.

For clerk of the circuit court, Harry M. Williams.

Allocation Is Approved.

For county surveyor, C. J. Maddox.

The allocation of nominations equally between Republicans and Progressive Democrats was unanimously approved in the report submitted by Harold B. Atkinson, chairman of the nominating committee.

Patronage is to be divided equally between the two groups, it was announced.

Prior to the fusionist announcement, two more organization Democrats—Hanson G. Cashell, register of wills, and Clayton K. Watkins, clerk of the circuit court—yesterday filed notices to run for reelection.

Quiz of Strike Raids Sought

Civil Liberties Union Asks Probe of California Attack on Radicals.

An investigation of police participation in "vigilante" raids on radical headquarters during the recent general strike in San Francisco, with indictments to follow if warranted by evidence, was asked of the Department of Justice yesterday by A. L. Wirin, counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union.

Wirin, at a conference with Justice Department officials, demanded that Federal action be taken under the terms of the Federal criminal code making it unlawful for persons to conspire to deprive citizens of their constitutional rights.

The attorney also lodged a complaint with the Labor Department that a telegram sent by Secretary Frances Perkins to State authorities during the strike "contained a misquotation of the immigration law," in that the law does not provide for deportation of persons who teach Communism.

Wirin said the law provides for deportation of those who advocate destruction of Government by force and violence, with no mention of Communism.

Woman Murdered, Police Say; Probe Companion's Story

Wilkes Barre, Pa., Aug. 1 (AP). Clinging to the belief that Freda McKechnie, 26-year-old church worker, was slain, police today questioned Robert Edwards, 23, her companion at a swimming party, who steadfastly maintained the girl drowned in Harveys Lake.

At the conclusion of an autopsy, Dr. Thomas Wenner, coroner's pathologist, announced that Miss McKechnie, whose body, clad in a bathing suit, was found in the lake last night, had been an expectant mother. He said she had not drowned, and that there was a severe laceration on the back of her head.

The body was found in four feet of water, 200 feet from shore. Police quoted Edwards as saying he and Miss McKechnie donned bathing suits in his car at the water's edge. He was quoted as explaining that because of the cold he did not accompany her into the lake.

Edwards told police Miss McKechnie plunged into the lake and disappeared. Panic stricken, Edwards said, he returned to his car, drove a quarter of a mile, and left the young woman's clothing under a tree.

Baseball Crashes Windshield.

Claude M. Richmond, of Cherrydale, Va., and his 14-month-old daughter, Patricia, suffered minor lacerations when a foul ball off a sandlot player's bat crashed through the windshield of their auto, near Sixteenth street and Constitution avenue, park police reported yesterday.

British "Youngster" Promoted

Leslie Hore-Belisha views the world blandly because at the age of 36 he has been made Great Britain's minister of transport. He succeeds Oliver Stanley, 38-year-old son of Lord Derby, who moved up to the inner circles by appointment to the important post of minister of labor.

Montgomery's New Highway Nearly Done

Final Link to Connect Silver Spring With Mt. Rainier.

The final link in Montgomery County's largest road project in recent years—the East-West highway—is being completed. Contractors are at work on the last section which will connect Silver Spring with Mount Rainier by way of Takoma Park.

A new section is being cut through from Sixteenth street extended to connect with the present terminus of Terminal highway. The road will extend along this street to Georgia avenue, where it will follow along Falkland drive over the B. & O. Railroad tracks to Philadelphia avenue. The latter is being widened and graded through Takoma Park to Ethan Allen avenue. This avenue becomes part of the highway to its present terminus and will be connected to Ager road at Riggs road by a new roadway in Prince Georges County.

Contracts for construction of the bridge over the railroad was awarded by the State roads commission this week to the Forbes-Murphy Construction Co. of Baltimore. The price quoted was $28,093.10.

The East-West highway was first projected in 1927 to provide a belt line around Washington that would connect the easternmost parts of Montgomery County with the western communities.

Although much of the road follows rights of way used originally for street purposes, a large part of it was cut through virgin territory. The most important link—that between Bethesda and Silver Spring—traverses a territory not previously served by any cross-country highway.

Completion of the Silver Spring-Takoma Park section will make it possible to travel by automobile from Great Falls through Bethesda, Chevy Chase, Silver Spring, Takoma Park and Mount Rainier to Hyattsville, from which point connections may be made to Baltimore or Annapolis.

Cannery Ship Damaged By Rocks Reaches Port

Seattle, Aug. 1 (AP).—The Alaska cannery ship Otsego, damaged when she struck rocks near Cape Mordvinof yesterday, has arrived at Dutch Harbor, Capt. G. T. Finley, of the Bering Sea Coast Guard patrol, informed Coast Guard officers here today.

The Coast Guard said the extent of her damage was unknown, but that she was taking little water forward. Her 500 or more passengers, cannery workers, will be returned south and her 125,000 cases of salmon transferred to another Alaska Line boat.

England-to-Ottawa Flier Plans to Resume Trip

Chickens Beware! Law Says Scratch In Own Backyard

Farmers and poultrymen of Fairfax County, Va., will be busy for some time instructing their old hens, roosters, ducks, turkeys and other fowl to stay home.

Under an ordinance adopted yesterday by the country board of supervisors, it might be necessary for poultry raisers to hang plats of their property on hen-house walls so that the fowls may become acquainted with the boundaries of their owners land.

The ordinance makes it a criminal offense for the owner of fowls to allow them to wander on a neighbor's property. The owners are liable for any damage caused by fowl.

Fairfax Asks U. S. to Direct Relief Program

Action Taken Following Conference With State Worker.

Supervisors of Fairfax County, Va., yesterday adopted a resolution asking the Federal Government to take over supervision of Federal emergency relief work in the county.

The action was taken following a conference with Miss Sanders, a field agent of the Virginia FERA, concerning appointment of a welfare superintendent for the county. Miss Sanders told the board that the State office has certain qualifications for public relief agents and that the county must make an appointment to fill the vacancy in the office of county superintendent of public welfare. She declared that it would be impossible for the county to continue receiving FERA funds under the present temporary arrangement with County Purchasing Agent R. M. Loughborough acting as welfare head. She intimated that the FERA grants to the county for direct and work relief would be held up pending appointment of some one satisfactory to the State FERA administration.

The resolution adopted by the supervisors stated that owing to the failure of the Federal Government in completing certain projects in the county started under the CWA that the county is not in financial condition to carry on the work and it requested the Government to take over the entire supervision of all Federal relief in the county.

The board instructed the county purchasing agent to stop all work on the county annex building until FERA funds are available to complete the project, as the county building fund is exhausted. The board agreed, however, to furnish a foreman.

The board was advised by the State Fee Commission that the salary for the Commonwealth's attorney's office for the county had been set at $3,600 for the year. The State will pay half and the county the balance.

Faither Acquitted Of Assaulting Girl

Montgomery Man Faces Still Another Charge.

George Havercamp, of Ashton, Md., was acquitted yesterday in Montgomery County Circuit Court after an all-day trial on a charge of assaulting his 6-year-old daughter. The jury deliberated approximately two hours.

This morning the court will continue the docket petit jury trials. Havercamp is to be tried on another charge of attempting to kill his wife. Other cases to be heard are those of Lloyd Hall, colored; Haywood Smith, colored; William Pier, Joseph Davis, Edward Reed and Robert Copeland.

Queen of Laughter, 72, Will Return to Stage

Watertown, N. Y., Aug. 1 (AP). Breaking a retirement of 12 years, May Irwin, 72, "Queen of Laughter" on the American stage in earlier years, will return to the theater here for a three-night stand, August 9, 10 and 11.

Woman Victim of Gas Revived in Hospital

Mrs. Emma D. Merchant, 30, of 172 Uhland terrace northeast, found unconscious on the floor of a gas-filled kitchen at her home yesterday afternoon, was revived at Casualty Hospital. Her condition, however, was said to be undetermined. Relatives told police Mrs. Merchant had been ill and despondent.

Rush for Jobs Slows House Repair Work

Moderization Program to Start About August 15, Moffet Says.

The Federal Housing Administration's home modernization campaign will be launched about August 15 or as soon as the Washington headquarters digs out from under a deluge of job applications, Administrator James A. Moffett announced yesterday.

"We'll have 500 jobs at the peak," he said, "yet we've been getting applications at the rate of 1,000 a day."

Mr. Moffett said he hoped several million workers would find jobs when the campaign is started. The State set-up of the National Emergency Council will be utilized in contacting municipalities which wish to take part in the modernization campaign, the administrator added.

Local civic organizations will be encouraged to conduct the local sales promotion drives in cooperation with building contractors and building supply houses. Much of the promotional material will be furnished by the FHA, however.

The administrator said he had received many letters of inquiry and even applications for loans, but no loans would be authorized until the rules and regulations are issued later this week.

While the policy of the FHA is to encourage banks to lend money to home owners and other realty property holders on personal credit alone, without requiring collateral, nothing will be done to prevent a financial institution from insisting on such collateral, Mr. Moffett said.

He said the second phase of the Housing Administration's work, that of insuring mortgages and organizing mortgage associations, will not get under way for six months.

"Bankers have told us that we would be doing well if we got that work started in six months," he explained, "because of the technical work involved."

Mr. Moffett declared the responsibility would rest on the banks to "exert all of the customary means to collect on these loans."

Even where the FHA has taken over the modernization notes of a bank in distress, as it is authorized to do, the responsibility would still rest on the bank, he said.

Takoma Builds Police Station

POLICE .....—s .....

A new de al for the town police force of Takoma Park, Md., was indicated by action of the mayor and town council this week.

Rebuffed in a proposal to locate a new police station on Philadelphia avenue adjacent to the Takoma Elementary School, the council is now constructing a new police station on the site of the station used several years ago on Maple avenue.

The council shortly will announce appointment of John H. Davis as town chief of police with the grade of lieutenant. Sergt. C. Earle Thomas is the ranking officer with the title of chief police officer.

Mr. Davis retired from the Washington police force after serving 25 years, rising to the grade of lieutenant.

Pending completion of the new police quarters expected within a month, the town police will remain in the Takoma Fire House where they share quarters with the Montgomery County police.

Autoist Fined In Drunk Case

Court at Hyattsville Sends Two to Jail for Default of Fines.

Henry Lucas, 1511 Fourth street northwest, was fined $112 in the Hyattsville police court yesterday on charges of driving while drunk, reckless driving and having no lights or registration card.

Two Maryland residents were given 30 days in jail in default of fines. They were:

Arthur Ball, Hyattsville, defaulted a $5 fine for assault and battery on Charlotte Lee. Ball was arrested by Prince Georges County Policeman Albert Anderson.

Ernest Catuna, colored, of Fairmount Heights, Md., was unable to pay a $10 fine for assault on Olivia Catuna, also colored. He also was held for the grand jury in connection with the firing of the plaintiff's home. Constable Howard Slater made the arrest.

King Harper, of Hyattsville, also was held for the grand jury, charged with the theft of $100 worth of merchandise from the Fair Store in Hyattsville. He was arrested by Sergt. Ralph Brown.

Film Capital Awaiting Marie Dressler's Will

Hollywood, Aug. 1 (AP).—The film capital today cast curious eyes toward the probate court, where the will of the late "Queen Marie" of the movies soon was expected to be filed.

Marie Dressler, whose funeral was held yesterday, earned an enormous salary during her last years in the films—a salary authoritatively reported to have been $3,000 weekly—but what she did with it nobody seemed to know.

Dickerson Methodists' Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Dickerson (Md.) Methodist Church will be held tonight at Monocacy Park. Entertainment will include swimming and boating.

An Oath For Teachers.

Our National weakness for hysterical legislation is well evidenced by the so-called Ives bill, requiring an oath of allegiance to both Federal and State Constitutions on the part of teachers, which has just passed the New York Assembly by a vote of 130 to 7. The handful of New York City Democrats who opposed this thoroughly un-American measure deserve congratulations. If their good example is not followed by a majority of the State Senate, Gov. Lehman should veto the bill, as he did a somewhat more drastic measure earlier this year.

Legislation of this sort is futile to achieve its avowed ends. Those who yearn to inculcate school children with radical doctrines will not hesitate to pay lip service to an oath taken under compulsion. The New York State Legislature, which recently expelled one of its members who accepted payment for services rendered to a utility corporation, should be the first to realize that oaths of allegiance are no guaranty of personal integrity.

But beyond its futility there is something particularly unwholesome about a compulsory oath of allegiance for teachers. Once that profession has its field of inquiry limited by definitions of this character its value in helping to guide the evolution of society is greatly injured. There is an end to academic freedom if compulsory allegiance to a stereotyped oath is emphasized at the expense of that discretion, good judgment and intellectual honesty which every teacher should possess. Entrance into the teaching profession should itself imply acceptance of thoughtful social responsibility. Such responsibility is lessened, not emphasized, by a public pledge of uniformity.

The effort to regiment individual thinking in this country is reaching highly disquieting proportions. The other day, in San Francisco, floorwalkers and sales clerks were called upon to adopt a "pledge of loyalty" to American institutions. This is the method of enforced "patriotism" employed by Nazi Germany. Before it becomes the rule in the United States we may most profitably consider whether the remedy is not far more fatal to our institutions than the "subversive activities" it seeks to eliminate.

Earnings And Dividends.

For the first time since the third quarter of 1931 the United States Steel Corporation has earned something toward payment of dividends on its preferred stock. Net profits for the quarter ended June 30 totaled $5,350,000 as contrasted with a net loss of $8,627,000 in the same quarter of 1933. Despite the fact that dividend accumulations on the preferred stock now amount to $8.75 per share, it was decided to limit the dividend to the 50 cents per share which has been paid during the past year and three-quarters.

The increase in operating activity within the steel industry accounts for the better earnings showing. This would have been still more marked had it not been for the increase in hourly rates of pay, which added approximately $5,200,000 to the wages bill last quarter. Thus, in this case, the charge that dividends have been paid at the sacrifice of labor is disproved. The preferred stockholders, and of course the holders of the completely unremunerative common stock are being deprived of dividends to some extent because of the rise in wages and the necessary provisions for their continuation.

The belief so firmly held in some quarters that the stockholder is a favored being who receives his dividends in bad years as well as good ought to have been exploded long since. But it persists in face of the gloomy record of deficits and passed dividends. A strong company such as the United States Steel Corporation provides an especially instructive example of the extent to which stockholders are affected by industrial vicissitudes, while a good proportion of the working force, at least, receive their pay envelopes during deficit-producing periods.

Stealing Their Fire.

In the recent Oklahoma Democratic primaries, "Alfalfa Bill" Murray's candidate for the governorship fell behind the spectacular race run by Representative E. W. Marland. In the Texas primary of Saturday, the Fergusons' fair-haired favorite for succession was left in the ruck. In the New Orleans municipal campaign, Huey Long, political czar of the State, is having so much trouble keeping things his way that he has called on National Guardsmen to further his purposes.

The fact that one political boss is in trouble would not be particularly significant; the fact that three, in close proximity to each other, are threatened with eclipse indicates that something significant is forward. The Fergusons in Texas have been shouting loudly in behalf of the farmer. Murray in Oklahoma has been almost deified by the farmers. Huey Long in Louisiana is the "common people's" man. What has happened that the first two should have suffered defeat while the last is spurred to use the National Guard to help himself win an election? Manifestly, something has happened, and the best explanation may be the simplest.

A political demagogue without issues is the most helpless flounderer in the world. The Administration, pouring millions of dollars into the hands of farmers in these three Southern States, has done much to remove the aura from local self-styled champions of the common man.

Bathos.

It is impossible to read Dr. Tugwell's radio speech in defense of the AAA without being amusingly reminded of the hysterical procedure employed by Dr. Wirt last spring. The Undersecretary of Agriculture was not content to refute charges that the AAA is a companion of the drought in the destruction of crops. To bolster a poor case he resorted to soap-box tactics which must have delighted students of Freudian psychology.

"There is something both infantile, obscene and wicked," Dr. Tugwell said, "in the eagerness with which the reactionary obscurantists have seized on the great natural calamity of a drought in the entire Northern Hemisphere as a means of destroying or discrediting the will of the American people, as expressed in Congress, for the betterment of agriculture." Insidious villains, as seen by Dr. Tugwell's sensitive retina, are plotting to "array labor against the farmers, with the sole if unconfessed object of perpetuating the speculative conditions which make exploitation a permanent part of our business system."

From this silly nonsense it would appear that every one who is skeptical of "crop control" which fails to control is either a Tory, a vicious speculator or otherwise out to do dirt to the farmer. Dr. Tugwell puts the AAA in the role of a good fairy who aids and protects the harassed agriculturist whether his malevolent enemies take the form of either drought or overproduction. If there is anything wrong with the agricultural program, it is a result of sabotage from predatory interests, which affect the Undersecretary's self-righteous morality in much the same way as the snakes affected St. Patrick.

Dr. Tugwell's assertion that without the AAA "we should face famine and political revolution in the farm States and food riots in the cities" deserves a place beside Herbert Hoover's classic prediction that grass would grow in the streets of our cities if he should fail of reelection. Many will have noticed that the Undersecretary does not explain just how the subsidized destruction of food has saved the country from famine. But his objective, of course, was to avoid embarrassing explanations.

Dr. Tugwell's pathetic attempt to emulate Gen. Johnson in crack-down mood was the more unfortunate because it obscured his remarkable interpretation of the mandate given by the electorate in the 1932 election. As Dr. Tugwell sees it, the present Administration was authorized to "readjust relationships among our old institutions, to overhaul them, to repair them, to make them work if they could be made to work, to modify them when they failed to function and to demonstrate by the old method of trial and error which of those institutions could be readjusted to the new economic environment of the post-war world."

One may search in vain for any such program in the platform on which the Democratic party secured election. That document contains a pledge to reduce Government expenditures by 25 per cent; to balance the budget; to preserve a "sound currency" at all hazards; to adopt a competitive tariff for revenue; to aid agriculture, and strictly to enforce the antitrust laws.

This light-hearted business of remaking American institutions by the trial and error method is much more Dr. Tugwell's contribution than that of the party for which he claims to speak.

A Rational Alien Policy.

Selection of Walter W. Husband to negotiate an agreement with Soviet Russia for the return to that country of Russians who are in the undesirable class here is a welcome relief from the predominance of politics in personnel matters. Mr. Husband is a recognized authority on immigration and deportation problems with at least 30 years of experience in this field. As former Assistant Secretary of Labor he made an excellent record. His selection for this delicate task is proof that Secretary Perkins is more interested in a constructive solution than in rewarding faithful partisans.

Doubtless the Administration has been tempted to conduct a wholesale drive against Communists which would help to divert attention from more fundamental causes of industrial unrest. But this move to secure a deportation agreement with Russia does not seem to warrant the assumption that such a campaign will be undertaken. Mr. Husband will merely seek an understanding with respect to passports for undesirable Russian citizens in this country. Similar agreements with other countries are already in effect.

If Russia agrees to receive her citizens who are illegally living here, the ruling doubtless will apply to criminals, the insane and those who have entered illegally as well as to Communist agitators. No country can be expected to harbor aliens who seek to foment revolutionary disturbances. America, the land of free speech and free press, could ill afford to indulge in a drive against law-abiding aliens because they hold a political philosophy different from our own. But deportation is an appropriate and effective means of dealing with foreigners whose chief interest in this country is destruction of our form of government.

Rational use of this law depends largely upon the discretion of the Secretary of Labor. Steps thus far taken by Miss Perkins are a good augury against extremism of any kind.

Two Enforcement Methods.

Alfred E. Smith once said that the Federal Government could have all the prohibition enforcement that it was willing to pay for. In a sense that statement is true, but experience has shown us that the price demanded was too great.

Genuinely effective enforcement could only have been obtained at a practically prohibitive cost in dollars and cents, while the cost in terms of intangible social values would likewise have been intolerably high. So we decided to return to a system of regulation that could be enforced at reasonable cost, without undue restrictions upon individual liberties. So far our expectations have been disappointed, since bootlegging still flourishes, creating an enforcement problem of increasing seriousness.

Joseph H. Choate, jr., director of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration, has repeatedly called attention to the growing evil and its causes—the exorbitant prices charged for legalized liquors largely because of the heavy excise and import duties imposed upon them. The remedy is plain. It lies in a reduction of excessive taxes and in sales at prices that will discourage bootlegging instead of putting a premium upon the occupation. The country is confronted by a condition which calls for commonsense remedies—not for quixotic efforts to eradicate an evil that has shown itself immune to sumptuary legislation.

Yet Secretary Morgenthau apparently regards tax reduction as a compromise with lawbreakers that the Federal Government ought to resist. His plan for strengthening the enforcement and tax-collection agencies by eliminating grafters and applying the merit system is unquestionably a move in the right direction. But his efforts at enforcement will be futile if the prices of taxed liquors remain at levels that incite to law breaking. Even before prohibition when tax rates were much lower, the Federal Government was not able to eradicate moonshining nor could it prevent tax evasions by the legalized industry despite the vigilance of its trained agents.

It is idle to suppose that the results obtainable under the much more difficult conditions of the present day will warrant Secretary Morgenthau's optimistic belief that he can destroy the bootlegger without first taking steps to cut down his illicit profits. Instead of exhausting our police powers, as he would prefer, before reducing taxes, we should strengthen them by removing the causes of demoralization.

A Tory In The Treasury?

It is by no means certain that Treasury officials have been entirely disingenious about the recent strange behavior of a safe in that grim building. The report states that on Tuesday, which was pay day, a clerk "accidentally" closed the safe door, and that its time clock had been set for Wednesday morning—also "accidentally." When one considers the present easy outpouring of Government checks, there seems to be two too many accidents in this story.

Who was that accidental clerk, anyway? Is it significant that his name was withheld from publication? May he not have been planted there by some utterly unscrupulous "Old Dealer," willing to use direct action to save his country's credit? And if, like the Dollfuss assassin, he "didn't mean to do it," then, unlike that assassin, but like "the hand that rounded Peter's dome" in Emerson's familiar verses, perhaps: "He builded better than he knew."

For ourselves, particularly after the horror aroused by Dr. Tugwell's radio revelations, we incline to believe that this is the biggest thing of its kind since the days of Guy Fawkes. This unnamed clerk, we fear, was planning to bang shut every Treasury safe containing outgoing checks. And probably, with the aid of the Hagerstown Almanac and Lewis Douglas, he also meant to set the time locks for that distant date when, without further outgo, the forgotten aim of a balanced budget would be achieved.

If what the candidates are saying about one another is true, they shouldn't be up for election, but for conviction instead.

Tennessee has named one of its mountains for Roosevelt. Hasn't the country a great big dam it can name for Gen. Johnson?

Mile Posts

A Parade of the Past From the Files of The Post.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

GERMANY HAD not declared war against France, nor England against Germany, but Germany committed acts of war against both countries. The German navy seized a British ship on the high seas, while France was invaded by German troops.

SERBIA, the original cause of the upheaval in Europe, was almost forgotten as Austria practically ceased military operations on this front in order to meet the menacing danger of Russian troops.

A RUSSIAN column, with artillery, crossed the German frontier at Schwinden. German military authorities said a French aviator dropped bombs from an airplane near Nuremburg, Bavaria. A German Zeppelin was destroyed by a French aviator, who drove his monoplane through the Zeppelin, killing himself and the airship's 25 occupants.

AN OFFICIAL statement issued in Germany said: "France has mobilized and an outbreak of war with France must, therefore, be reckoned with any day or any moment."

THE FRENCH frontier was crossed near Nancy by 20,000 German troops, who were said to have been repulsed with heavy losses. The Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, neutral territory between Belgium and Germany, was invaded by German troops.

The Uncounted Factor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The uneasy conscience of the Western farmer over drought on the heels of crop destruction is not as amusing as it is pathetic and suggestive.

Not long ago, Mr. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, wrote for the public a series of articles on the Old Testament prophets, in which he pointed out with singular clearness the application of their words to our own epoch. That series of articles could well be commended. But would Isaiah or Jeremiah or Amos have counseled crop destruction under any circumstances? Modernist though I am, I can not see the wisdom in a course which does not provide for irrigation of farms (which could be provided in any section) and yet counsels crop and cattle destruction. We now see hungry people roaming the country, and unemployment literally choking our people.

Would it not be wise for Mr. Wallace and Prof. Tugwell and others, instead of trying to defend their course, to say in substance: "Our course was an emergency one, and we in our experimenting thought it best. But obviously we were not as wise as we thought. We did not reckon on the power of the heavens to withhold rain, and the power of the sun to wither what crops were planted."

Candor just now and not determination to uphold an Administration act at any cost would do more to satisfy the aroused farmer of the West than a tome of execrations against his ignorance and "foolish" ideas concerning God's wrath against crop and cattle destruction. G. O. KNOTT.

Washington, July 29.

Skeptical About Mexico.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I desire to protest against the publication of the anonymous article, "Mexico Sees a New Day Dawn," which appeared in The Post Magazine on Sunday, July 22. It is Communist propaganda of the worst sort. It is anti-Christian. It is untrue.

Religious persecution is raging today in Mexico. At Villa Hermosa, in Tabasco, two widows and two girls were arrested and held in jail for ten hours, because they had visited a cemetery to put flowers on the grave of the husband of one of the widows. They were finally released on the payment of fines. A recent decree by the governor provided that all tombstones must be removed from cemeteries, and all graves be without any sacred adornment or flowers. If it is now a crime to put a flower on the grave of your dead husband, I fail to see how a new day is dawning for Mexico.

In the sixteenth century, between 15,000 and 20,000 human victims were sacrified each year to the Aztec deities. Is this the glorious civilization which Gen. Calles wishes to restore? The 10,000 churches, mentioned in the article, were built that the Indian might worship, freely and without restraint, his God. The crimes of certain Spanish administrators were condemned by the council of the Indies and by such men as Las Casas. The crown always appointed a priest as protector of the Indian. The priest has always been the loyal friend of the Indian. The persecuted Indian in Mexico today is only free to obey Gen. Calles and the National Revolutionary party. If that is true liberty, then words have lost their meaning.

I request that, in all fairness, you give this letter publication in The Post in the near future.

'Ware Traps!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you not warn Post readers that, in furtherance of an antirat campaign, extremely dangerous and powerful open traps are scattered throughout the city. Several deaths of small animals have been reported and it will be the part of common sense to safeguard children, as well as small animals for the present. Any adult stepping on such a trap may also be seriously injured. K. M.

Right on the Wrist.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Papers report a "committee of 100" to report street traffic violators—those reported to get a polite admonition to "sin no more."

Recently I had to squeeze through two parked cars at a street car stop sign. I pointed it out to the conductor. He said the regulations require 20 feet of space. I suppose that, if the polite letters do no good, officials will then propose tapping violators on the wrist, and about that time Vox Pop will be going to a show where they say "Laugh, Clown, Laugh." Thanks for Thanks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The writer wishes to thank The Post for the courtesies extended to me in the assignment of space and news items in your Sunday edition, and especially to the never failing cooperation and assistance of Miss Lora Kelly, fraternal editor.

Please accept the thanks and good will of the Department of the District of Columbia, American Legion Auxiliary, for the assistance received from The Post.

"The Root of the Evil."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I believe that your editorial of July 27, on "The Root of the Evil," which makes clear the necessity for a revision of the disastrous treaties of 1919 and their almost direct cause of the present crisis in Austria, can not be commended too highly. It was a scholarly presentation of an issue that endangers the peace of the world and on which every American should be informed.

The situation also was very well analyzed the following day in the story "Dollfuss Death Brings Europe to War Brink," in which the imminent danger of another World War as well as a likely attempt to restore the Hapsburgs was predicted. Today the newspapers carry stories showing that such attempts are already being made.

But the Austrian witches brew is already a boiling caldron and an effort to bring back the Hapsburgs will only aggravate an already delicate situation, especially in view of the fact that most of the great powers are dead against a reinstatement of the monarchy.

I believe, however, that The Post is making a most valuable contribution editorially in trying to enlighten its readers on the grave issues involved in the European situation. Central Europe will be among the problems of vital interest to the American public for a long time to come, especially if those treaties are permitted to remain in their present form. It, therefore, is a great newspaper's public duty to clarify the issue involved so that its public knows what the furor really is all about. Otherwise, we might be caught off our guard in the throes of another such conflagration as that of 1914-18, with average Americans ignorant of the real facts except those distorted ones spread about by the propagandists who fomented the war.

However, I believe that all Americans devoutly hope that even if the war dogs do break from their kennels in Europe, the United States Government will do its full duty by its citizens and keep this country out of the slaughter.

HARLAN E. GLAZIER.

Washington, July 31.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congratulations on the excellent editorial of July 27 concerning the plight of Austria and the remedial measures needed if Europe is to be saved from catastrophe.

Austria is, indeed, the outstanding consequence flowing from that fons et origo mali, the misnamed Versailles Peace Conference. The treaties there framed were not merely defective; they were downright immoral. The immorality consisted in the fact that this was not supposed to be an ordinary diplomatic patchwork; it was proclaimed the charter of a new and better world-order, to be indorsed and underwritten by all civilized nations.

Yet what did this much-vaunted charter actually do? It virtually declared the principle of self-determination did not apply to the defeated nations; it enforced disarmament only upon those nations; and to cap the climax, it compelled Germany to declare itself solely guilty for the war—a statement which every well-informed student of European affairs knows (and then knew) to be arrant nonsense.

As for the Austrian "nation" forcibly self-determined, it was a hydrocephalic monster condemned from birth to a life of lingering agony. The Austrian Germans have never had, and do not now have, a true national consciousness. Until 1866, they were part of a Germanic federation, and for the most part were bitterly aggrieved at being politically sundered from their fellow Germans of the new Reich. They did have a dynastic loyalty to the Hapsburgs, who ruled over an extensive empire of which Vienna was not merely the political but also the economic head.

This head the peace treaties lopped off and impaled upon the pike of an impossible economic situation. The Austrian Germans were forbidden under any circumstances to follow their natural impulse and "self-determine" themselves with their kindred of the Reich. Could anything have been more cold-bloodedly cynical than this?

The dragons' teeth sown at Versailles are sprouting fast. Hitler and the Third Reich are the first shoots. But, unless the treaty makers speedily repent and make amends, there will be other dragons' teeth, even sharper and more poisonous. Their names are war, revolution, and possibly downright chaos in which European civilization would presumably perish.

Your editorial clearly points the way to what should be done—and must be done soon, if it is to be of any avail.

"Red Badge Of Courage?"

Postoffice, Thursday.

"I CERTAINLY thought," writes the Major, "that fire-alarm finger nails wouldn't survive another summer. But it begins to look as if I was wrong."

It is never easy for the Major to admit that he has been mistaken, which probably helps to explain why he so seldom indulges in such an admission. However, although he feels deeply upon most matters, the depths of his feelings upon the dark dyes of many modern finger nails appear to be even profounder than usual, and more than usually troubled.

* * *

"I can remember," says he, "back to the time when women cut their nails, and cut 'em round. Those were the times when men used jackknives after Saturday night's bath, unless they were dudes: if you were a dude, you had a 'pocket knife' with one blade that was a file, but you only used it to assist thought when you were thinking about something else. And nails weren't the chief object of a woman's life. The main thing about 'em was to keep 'em clean and keep 'em short. And people were just as happy then as they are now.

"But pretty soon files became general. I guess there was a slump in the English cutlery industry, and some wise guy in Birmingham started the story that whereas, of course, you ought to have scissors and knives for lots of things, you ought to have a file—a loose-end, flexible file—for your finger nails, because cutting 'em made 'em grow in thick.

"That started the women. They didn't use those new files to help themselves think about something serious. When they used 'em they thought about their nails. So they were soon all set for the next thing, which was powder-polish.

"Powder nail-polish started just where most women's fashions start. I mean it started among women that most women wouldn't speak to. But it climbed, the way the other fashions do. Pretty soon a woman wouldn't cook breakfast till she had made sure she could see herself in her finger nails.

"Still, you understand, she did have to cook breakfast and, of course, she didn't want to get up any earlier than she was used to getting up. So within a few years along came the liquid polishes that saved time.

("I'm leaving out the manicure racket," says the Major, in parenthesis. "That's worth a letter in itself, and one of these days I'll probably have to write it. But I'm talking right now about the small-town finger-nail and the small-purse finger-nail.)

"Anyway," asserts the Major, "the tint was the third step. Probably the Paris infant industry of toilet accessories needed the money then, the way the Birmingham file factories had needed it before. So out goes the propaganda, 'Retain the rosy finger-tips of your girlhood!'

"Well, the women retained it, all right. And then some. Those roses were pink roses, to start off with. But soon they got to be American Beauties. And now——"

At this juncture there is a whole paragraph of the Major's letter which emotion has rendered illegible to the six best handwriting experts in our office. The only words that can be sworn to are "Harvard," "chrysanthemums" and some phrase or other concerning ink.

However, so soon as he calms down a bit the Major proceeds:

"When depression struck America the women's finger-nails were the first things to go in the red.

"One day I said to my friend Ben Tibbitts, 'Why, if this keeps on, the first thing we know they'll be painting their toe-nails—only we won't know it.' But they did, and we did know it. A bit after, Ben and I went to Atlantic City: there it was; the toe-nails looked like pieces of boiled lobster-shell in the sand . . .

* * *

"But to get back to the finger-nails. For a long while," the Major confesses, "I couldn't figure out why they did it.

"Most of the crazy things that crazy women do they do to make crazy men admire 'em. The crazy man is naturally the kind of man they want to catch—and, generally, the crazier the bait, the sooner he's hooked.

"Still, I haven't talked to one man that's risen to this nail bait among all the men you'd think might swallow it.

"Business men are generally the easiest, but they tell me they think the red paint makes the girls' fingers look so heavy that you'd believe they were going to break the typewriter keys every time they hit them.

"Quick-lunch patrons say they can't look at the waitresses' faces because they can't take their eyes off the waitresses' nails—they always think the waitress has slipped some beets into their order.

"Our Congressman informs me he doesn't like it because he's sure it's Bolshevik propaganda.

"I've even forced myself to ask a few roof-garden boys, but I can't find one of them who'll rah-rah for the magenta. They say it comes off on the back of their linen coats after the first couple of minutes' dancing.

"And still," concludes the Major, "the women keep on doing it.

"Do you know what I think's the reason?

"I don't believe that story about its coming off on coats—or with soap either.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

The American Thing.

THE peculiar sinewy ranginess of the American spirit shines, clear yet almost undefinable, on every page of Carl Van Doren's immense anthology, "Modern American Prose" (Harcourt Brace, $2.75). Most critics, and most poets, too, can not seem to find that spirit in the American scene unless they go back to the buffalo and the Bloody Hunting Ground, the Piutes and the Chisholm Trail, the Conestoga wagon and Wasatch and Cheyenne. Everyone must have noticed, at least, our nostalgic literary dependence on place-names.

THEO. HALL

But among the 939 pages of "Modern American Prose" that return to the picturesque frontier is found unnecessary. Mr. Van Doren has selected his 60 writers from the years "which may be said to have begun with the Younger Generation and to have ended with the New Deal," roughly, from 1914 to the present. This first prose anthology of that period shows one thing plain—that the buffalo skull may gather dust over the mantel and the long rifle stand unused in the corner, and there is still living going on which remains recognizably and indubitably American.

* * * *

"The American Thing" rises in sunlight, whether it be in Gertrude Stein's murmuring little tale of "The Good Anna" (which begins the volume) or in Constance Rourke's singing prose about Dave Crockett, "Sunrise in His Pocket" (which ends the procession). The full text of Maxwell Anderson's and Laurence Stallings' "What Price Glory" (whose two heroes, "alone among the characters invented by the modern American stage, are folk-figures") strikes to the essence. So do Theodore Dreiser's "My Brother Paul," and Albert Jay Nock's "Artemus Ward," and Carl Sandburg's "The Lincoln-Douglas Debates," and H. L. Mencken's "Bryan," and Clarence Day's "My Father's Religion," and Erskine Caldwell's "Death of a Hero," and all the others as pleasant to count over as one's personal treasures.

One can come to these examples of American character and action with intent to study. Their chronological order, the biographical notes at the end, and Mr. Van Doren's critical epilogue (from his "American Literature," 1933) make the volume eminently useful in the academic sense.

But that is not the course which I or Mr. Van Doren recommend. "Students are human beings," he writes, "and the natural pleasures are a part of any education." So it is first as prime and satisfying reading that one should discover the joy of this magnificent American anthology.

* * * *

Still browsing for the "American thing," you will find much of it caught up in the figure of John Hunt Morgan, Southern cavalry leader, whose raids during the Civil War terrified whole States. Of his life and deeds Howard Swiggett, author of "War Out of Niagara," has made a volume which is almost impossible to overpraise—"The Rebel Raider" (Bobbs Merrill, $3.50). All lovers of Americana will welcome and relish it.

Moving into almost unknown territory with scrupulous historical sense, Mr. Swiggett tells the tale of Morgan with a verve and color unusual in the historian. Morgan's brilliant and sentimental nature, his daring raids and escapes, his profound effect on Southern sympathy in the North—these personal, adventurous and political aspects are covered fully. Much of the matter may still remain controversial; Morgan is a name to start word-battles with. But Mr. Swiggett has gone to admirable lengths in letting light and interest shine on the dread, romantic figure of Morgan the Raider.

* * * *

Upon Paul Engle, young Middle Western poet, now a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, fell the need to express what he felt of the American spirit. Sired, doubtless, by lines from "John Brown's Body" (to the author of which and wife he dedicates his little volume), Mr. Engle's verses are gathered in "American Song" (Doubleday Doran, $1.75).

They are wholly good in intent, something less than good in performance. He runs through early place names with all modern avidity—but instead of heightening our sense of their poetry, he sheers off some of what we felt before. He will write:

"Nations of Europe, we leave you now. . . .
The flame of life
Leaps now in us, and we will make our own
Song of living fire from it with hands
That burn in writing them."

That was a good thought in 1906, and is now expressed with more fervor than distinction. His verses are loosely, even wordily, wrought. One looks far for the compact and telling poetic image.

But all that can be forgiven in the fine intent he has to hold our eyes to the land and the scenes before us, to the call for a kind of sun-worshipping vigor in our poetry. Hear him on the "sad poets:"

"Cry, sons of earth, blaspheming your parentage,
But know that when your futile lives are done
Death will despise you who have despised life."

It is with a bursting cry for the prairie soil and the mountain line, and the spirit indigenous to them, that Mr. Engle speaks best.

"Never the running stag, the gull at wing,
The pure elixir, the American thing."

Militant Dry Army On Warpath Again

Stirred by Victories in Mississippi and North Dakota, Antiwets Seek to Stem Flow in 10 States Voting This Fall.

By Robert C. Albright.

Encouraged by dry victories in North Dakota and Mississippi, a heartened and suddenly militant dry army has taken the warpath again in a drive to check the flow of legal liquor into ten States voting on the issue this fall.

Dry organizations with National headquarters here, getting their first wind after the quiet oblivion that followed repeal, almost overnight have awakened to the fact that liquor is still a debatable question on many State fronts.

19 States Still Dry.

Nineteen States are still on the dry lists, with either statutory or Constitutional prohibition. The present objective is to keep them dry. Spreading the doctrine that control is a failure, Dr. F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-saloon League, has visited more than 30 States since the first of the year.

From Washington research experts of the Methodist Board of Temperance are keeping attentive ears to the ground for the first intimation of public grumblings over administrative liquor policies. And in local communities the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is carrying the gospel of abstinence into the home.

"The tremendous swing toward legalized liquor that followed repeal has been arrested at last," Edward B. Dunford, counsel for the Anti-saloon League, insisted here yesterday. "People are beginning to take a more critical attitude; an attitude of appraisal of what they have done."

Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, occupying Washington offices of the organization during the illness of Dr. Clarence True Wilson, took a similar view.

"There is a definite reaction against repeal, if I am any judge of public psychology," was his comment. "I don't say that the trend as yet is toward prohibition, but it is away from repeal and the whole present liquor set-up."

Next Show-Down- August 28.

The next show-down in the dry fight to preserve the thin line of local prohibition States is slated August 28, when South Carolina Democrats in their primary will vote on advising the State Legislature to legalize liquor sales. The issues are closely drawn, and the odds are about even. Pickett's brother, L. J. Pickett, associated with the South Carolina Anti-saloon League, is directing the dry fight in that State.

On September 10, there will be another test of dry sentiment in Maine. A vote is scheduled on repeal of the prohibition clause in the State Constitution. Dry workers think they have a good chance to hold their lines intact, but they are not laying great stress on the adage, "As Maine goes——."

Then, on November 6, the largest bloc of States since the Nation went wet will vote on repeal—eight all told. Dry advocates hope they can win a majority of these contests.

Privately, many regard the Florida and Wyoming dry votes as already lost. As for Kentucky, that State's present dry law is openly nullified under the existing medicinal liquor loophole. But in Idaho, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota and West Virginia, dry hopes are bright. Forecasts point to a close fight, with thumbs down on repeal.

Dry strength in the House and Senate, despite the private leanings of members, all hinge on fluctuations in public sentiment. Dry organizations are making no present effort to appraise it.

But Mr. Pickett, who has been keeping in close touch with primary returns and election sentiment, claims that from 25 to 50 more drys will be added to the Capitol contingent.

To Propose Joint Conference Soon.

THE Board of Temperance research secretary, contending arrests for drunkenness are rapidly on the increase and bootleg liquor production is equal to the legal output, is about to propose a joint conference of dry and former anti-prohibition organizations to work out a "compromise" program in the interest of better Federal and State liquor administration.

"The present setup is already a failure," he said. "I am convinced the old wet organizations think no better of it than we do. While I have abandoned none of my former allegiance to prohibition, and still work toward that as an objective, I think we could reach some common basis of understanding that would better conditions. You can call it 'compromise' if you want to."

He suggests that Federal and State governments cooperate along the following lines:

Stop all trade promotion of liquor sales.

Eliminate as nearly as possible the profit motive.

Deed Willing Home Is Void

Frederick Court Gives Chapman House Back to Estate.

Frederick, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Holding that a legacy can not be properly conveyed through a deed which may have been designed to take the place of a will, Chief Judge Hammond Urner and Judge Arthur D. Willard set aside the deed executed three years ago by Mrs. Kate Chapman, of Libertytown, conveying her home to her brother, Walter Myers.

The home will revert to Mrs. Chapman's estate, and with it an interest account of $309.54 in the Peoples Bank of Libertytown in the name of Mrs. Chapman and Mr. Myers, to which she held exclusive right during her life. A checking account of $25.24 will go to Mr. Myers, since it was regarded as a joint account.

Mrs. Chapman died in 1932, five months after she executed the deed giving the property to Mr. Myers. The deed was given by her to the custody of Maurice F. Starr, president of the Peoples Bank of Libertytown, who testified she told him to turn the deed over to Myers at her death. Starr since has died.

The conveyance was challenged by Miss Ida Catherine Lowery, Baltimore, granddaughter of Mrs. Chapman.

FERA Approves Loan For Frostburg Dam

Frostburg, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—The agreement between the town of Frostburg and the Government for a grant of $30,000 and a loan of $70,000 at 4 per cent has been approved by the FERA.

The money will be used for the construction of the Piney Run Dam. Work probably will begin about September 1.

New Duck Season Urged for 3 States

Richmond, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Recommendation that the duck-hunting season in this section be from November 8 to January 12 and that there be three shooting days a week has been made by the Association of Middle Atlantic States Game Commissioners, Carl H. Nolting, commissioner of game and inland fisheries for Virginia, announced today. He returned from Wilmington, Del., where he attended a meeting of the association, of which he is chairman.

Judge William S. Snow, of Alexandria, member of the commission, also attended.

Nolting said the consensus was that the shooting season for Virginia, Maryland and part of North Carolina should be from November to January.

Doctors Puzzled As Scarlet Fever Hits Boy 4 Times

A few cases of persons having scarlet fever for the third time have been recorded.

The youth first contracted the disease when he was 6 years old. This usually immunizes the average person. But in 1932 he became ill again, and again in 1933. Each attack was less severe.

Westminster "Gas" War Still Rages

Fuel Reaches New Low of 14 Cents a Gallon.

Westminster, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—A gasoline price war in Westminster resulted yesterday in gasoline reaching a new low of 14 cents a gallon, tax paid.

Prices started to drop about ten days ago when a new service station, operated by H. L. Mills, of Hagerstown, opened here.

Questioned about a further drop in price, several dealers asserted they understood the various gasoline companies would meet any competitive price.

Farmers Picnic At Union Grove

Allegany County Group Holds All-Day Fete.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—The Allegany County Farmers Federation held its annual picnic today at Union Grove. Harry Miller, Midland, is president of the federation. There was community singing.

A short program was given this morning by the Oldtown Future Farmers of America Club. Robert Ehrbar sang, accompanied by Miss Nancy Barnard. The program included a pageant, "4-H Fleet," by 4-H Club boys and girls, directed by William Powell; story by Hannah Golliday; banjo duet, Edward and Frank Morgan; vocal solo, James Shaw; canning demonstration, Wilma Ryan and Roseanna Oneal, and a duet, Warren and Jean Wilson.

In the afternoon the Valley Road Glee Club, directed by Mrs. Alvin R. Serf, sang, and the Homemakers' Chorus, directed by Mrs. Richard W. Trevaskis, gave several numbers. There was a speedball tournament between 4-H boys' teams, followed by group games and contests. The Lonaconing City Band gave a concert.

News From Rockefeller City.

This department sent Elmer Twitchell out to verify this report and secure additional information today. No word had been received from him at the office ten hours later, and it is evident he has been lost somewhere in the vast expanse of corridors.

* * * *

Police and detectives, notified of his disappearance, hurried to Rockefeller Center, but obtained no information other than that a man resembling Mr. Twitchell, carrying a banner with the strange device "Excelsior!" was seen trying to find the right elevator shortly after 9 a. m.

* * * *

"Of what importance is it that anybody was seen trying to find the right elevator unless it is known that he was in the right building?" we asked.

"None," admitted a Scotland Yard man named Fergus.

* * * *

The editor secured the services of the famous explorer, Capt. Stanley, at noon, equipped him without regard for expense and sent him to Radio City with the simple directions:

FIND ELMER TWITCHELL.

* * * *

Capt. Stanley plunged into the West Fifties immediately with the promise he would not come out until he had found Elmer if it took years of continuous exploration.

* * * *

Bulletins from Stanley.

3 p. m.—Reached main office building by dead reckoning. Asked to be directed to Mr. Rockefeller. Doorman said he was sorry but Mr. Rockefeller had been lost somewhere in Rockefeller Center for more than a year. Have determined to find both Rockefeller and Twitchell.

3:45 p. m.—Commandeered Elevator No. 56—Express-Twentieth-to-Sixtieth-floor, on rumor Twitchell footprints had been found on outskirts of Radio City at height of 7,000 feet. Changed elevators 14 times in pressing search, but something went wrong and found myself back on main floor on same elevator.

* * * *

4:10 p. m.—Correct 3:45 bulletin. My mistake. I am in the same elevator but in a different building much farther north.

* * * *

5 p. m.—Correct 4:10 bulletin. Find I am in the same building but in two different elevators, one tall and one short.

5:30 p. m.—There has been a terrible mistake. Compass, charts and road maps indicate I am not in Radio City at all. Went into arcade for a drink of water and came up just east of Bear Mountain.

6 p. m.—Mistake most fortunate. Have just found Twitchell and Rockefeller at hot-dog stand near Bear Mountain Park. Both insist they merely took wrong elevators and do not realize where they are. Shall I tell them?

Or So It Seems.

Luring Girl Away Laid to Prisoner

Tappahannock, Va., Aug. 1 (AP).—James M. Lewis, Commonwealth's attorney of Essex County, said last night that Boyd Johnson, of Baltimore, who gave himself up to Baltimore last night, was wanted by Essex County authorities on a charge of enticing a young girl away from her home here.

He said the charge did not involve kidnaping or seduction, but constituted a felony.

Johnson, who has been working in Baltimore for several years, was a native of Essex County. He was recently here on a visit and at the time he left, the girl also disappeared. She has not been located, but Mr. Lewis said authorities had information that she was seen leaving with Johnson.

Drowning Victim's Body Returned to Roanoke

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—The body of Patrick A. Conway, 37, who was drowned in Princess Anne County Sunday, was returned here yesterday for burial.

He was a clerk in the coal bureau of the Norfolk & Western Railway Co.

Virginia Wholesalers To Hear Washingtonians

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Grocers from Virginia and neighboring States will attend a meeting of the Virginia Wholesale Grocers Association here Friday.

Principal speakers will be C. H. Janssen and Allen C. Davis, of Washington. Mr. Janssen is president of the National Food and Grocery Distributors Code Authority, and Mr. Davis is secretary of the National Tobacco Code Authority.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

The Greatest of Historians.

All who are interested in reading the best literature should take advantage of the fact that today it is possible to buy it at a very low price indeed.

The latest number of the modern library contains in one volume (95 cents) the complete writings of Thucydides, in the English translation of Richard Crawley. There has never been a greater writer of history than Thucydides; and like Mark Sullivan today, he wrote only of contemporary events; many incidents he saw with his own eyes. The remarkable thing is, that he not only described these with a grave and serious detachment, he realized and made clear their terrible significance, and gave us a philosophy of human nature along with his narrative.

When the German Hermann von Holst wrote his Constitutional History of the United States (in German) he said in a little preface written in Enligsh, that there had been other histories of America, but none written with such soberness of mind. He meant that being of another country and far away in the distance and time, he was able to write with philosophical detachment and was unbiased by partisan feeling. The astonishing features of the work of Thucydides are that he had all the qualities of Von Holst in an even higher degree, and yet was a spectator and participator of the events he described.

Richard Crawley, the translator, was born in 1840 and died in 1893. He was a lawyer, and Oxford man, and his preface shows that he had a little of the hard-bitten philosophy of Thucydides.

If the reader of the newspaper will condescend to cast an eye on my translation, he will find there the prototypes of many of the figures to which he is accustomed in his favorite journal. . . . He will see the doctrine of arbitration, welcomed as a newly-discovered panacea by our amiable enthusiasts, more firmly established in theory than it is yet likely to be in modern Europe, and as impotent to avert the evils of war from the communities who provided for it in every treaty, and invoked it whenever it seemed their interest to do so. In short, besides the practical lessons to be drawn for his own conduct, he will enjoy the philosophic pleasure of observing how the nature of man, in spite of all changes of time and circumstance, remains essentially the same, and how short is the distance from the civilized inhabitant of Athens or Corinth to the dweller in London or Vienna.

Mr. Crawley wrote those words in 1876

Very little is known of the facts in the life of Thucydides. He was born somewhere between 475 and 455 B. C., and died probably before 390. His history covers exactly 20 years, from 431 to 411. It describes the war between Athens and Sparta; and it is interesting to remember that the war between these two cities in one small country was more important and more seriously permanent in its effects on future civilizations, than many wars conducted on a grander scale. The defeat of Athens was an irreparable disaster to humanity, and the victory of Sparta left the victor so exhausted that Greece herself soon became a slave state. Every civilized man and woman today is worse off because of that war.

Yet the story of it by Thucydides is so thrilling, so full of wisdom, so inspiring in the nobility of its presentation of characters like Pericles, that the book is one of the few great blessings to humanity produced by the war.

Inmate Fires Jail Twice in 2 Weeks

In Solitary Confinement, Match Source Puzzle.

Charles Town, W. Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Two inmates of the Jefferson County Jail here are keeping Jailer Richard Madison worried. Local firemen have been called there five times in seven weeks.

The firemen received their last call early this morning after Robert Hughes, colored, set his second fire in less than two weeks. Officials are puzzled as to how Hughes received his matches, because he has been in solitary confinement for some time. According to Madison, the prisoner will be put on a diet of water.

WILLIAM PHILLIPS, Undersecretary of State. An A-1 diplomat and Beau Brummel. Of the department's school of career diplomatists he is the head master. Thirty years in the American diplomatic service. Tall, slender, military of figure, he bears himself with all the poise and aristocratic mien of one born to wealth and careful grooming. Wealthy, handsome, pleasant, suave, gracious. At Harvard with the President, A. B. 1900. At the Court of St. James as private secretary to Joseph H. Choate, 1903. Second secretary American Legation at Peking, 1905. Assistant to the Third Assistant Secretary of State on Far Eastern affairs, 1907. Chief of the division, 1908. Third Assistant Secretary, 1909. Wilson's Assistant Secretary from 1907 to 1920. Undersecretary, 1922. Stepped down from the Belgian Ambassadorship to become America's first Minister to Canada and resigned for the Republicans two years later, 1929. In 1910 married Caroline Astor Drayton, of New York. Keen about horses. Keen about each other. Children—Beatrice, Anne C., William, jr., Christopher, Drayton. Born Beverly, Mass., May, 1878.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

You Can Mold Clay Into Any Shape Before It Is Baked

By Robert Quillen

In Arabia, desert tribes still raid one another's camps as they did in the time of Abraham.

It is miniature warfare, that requires skill, courage and fortitude, but the sole purpose of it is loot. It is organized thieving.

Arab boys, taught by precept and example, regard these raids as the test and proof of honorable manhood. In other words, they believe it honorable to steal.

In Russia, millions of boys in their teens have never heard praise of "go-getters" or salesmanship or commercial success.

They have been taught that personal wealth is disgraceful, and they feel an honest contempt for those who covet ease and security as Americans do. Our idea of success is their idea of shameful failure.

In the mountains of Kentucky and the lowlands of the Mississippi Valley, children still inherit the feuds of their fathers.

There are few killings now, but the old people can remember when the members of warring families "shot it out" on village streets without other provocation than the sight of one another.

They were God-fearing people who read the Bible and believed in prayer. Their women were chaste and their men were honest and truthful.

Yet their boys believed, as they were taught, that the murder of an innocent "enemy" from ambush was honorable and manly.

Surely there is no want of proof that children can be taught to accept and support any code of morals or any standard of ethics agreed upon by their elders.

If America's young people lack virtue or honesty or respect for law, the explanation lies in the indifference, stupidity, laziness and gross neglect of their elders.

We make countless laws to define and enforce good citizenship, yet make no intelligent effort to develop good citizens.

It would be as sensible to breed mongrel dogs instead of setters and attempt by means of printed rules to change them into good bird dogs.

B. M. Wailes, Widely Known Educator, Dies

Former Head of Schools in Nelson County; Rites Today.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Benjamin M. Wailes, widely known educator and former superintendent of schools in Nelson County, died yesterday at University Hospital here at the age of 74.

The funeral will be held at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow from Old Rockfish Church. The service will be conducted by his pastor, the Rev. J. C. Johnson, of Rockfish, assisted by the Rev. John Duckwall.

Mr. Wailes was a son of the Rev. B. M. Wailes, for 30 years pastor of Cove Presbyterian and Old Rockfish churches. Graduating from the University of Virginia, he spent his entire life in educational work.

Mr. Wailes is survived by three sisters, Misses Constance, Mary Lee and Betty Glenn Wailes, of Kleinberg.

Funeral services for Thomas Fleming Turner, 66, were held yesterday from his home near Dian Mills.

Mr. Turner is survived by his wife, Mrs. Maggie Ayres Turner; two sisters, Mrs. Joseph K. Irving, of Howardsville, and Miss Mary Turner, of Glenmore, and two brothers, Eldridge Turner, of Atlanta, Ga., and Harry K. Turner, of Glenmore.

Mr. Taylor was a member of Taylor Masonic Lodge, No. 17, at Centenary, and was for a number of years district deputy grand master for District 17. The Masonic rites at the grave were conducted by R. I. Blackburn, a member of Scottsville Lodge, No. 45. The burial service was read by the Rev. E. B. Meredith, of the Episcopal Church at Scottsville.

Orange, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held today at 2 p. m. for Albert R. Edholm, who died Monday at his country home, Windsor, near Gordonsville.

U. S. July Tax Up in Virginia

Richmond, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—July collections by the United States Internal Revenue Department for the State of Virginia show a substantial increase over the corresponding period last year, N. B. Early, collector, reported today.

A net gain of $3,025,993.95 was reported by Early, who attributed the difference to continued confidence in the Administration and improving business conditions.

Income tax collections for July, 1934, amounted to $100,174.61, compared with $88,544.62 for July, 1933; stamp collections were $10,603,601.02, against $8,662,632.62 for last July. Miscellaneous taxes for the past month totaled $189,048.18, whereas they were $171,804.37 for July, 1933.

Processing taxes for July, 1934, were $1,021,686.32, as against the $8,613.79 of July a year ago. The processing tax did not go into effect until July 21, 1933. Unclassified taxes for last month amounted to $62,389.89, and for July, 1933, $12,761.54. Total collections for the month just closed were $11,976,900, and for July, 1933, $8,950,906.05.

"Where You Buy With Confidence"

Miss Finch Will Be Bride Of Mr. Davis

Ceremony Takes Place Today in Dahlgren Chapel.

Couple Will Reside in Santa Clara; Plan Motor Trip.

The Dahlgren Chapel of Georgetown University will be the scene of a pretty wedding this morning when Miss Augusta Emma Finch becomes the bride of Mr. Gerald Davis.

Miss Finch is the daughter of the Assistant to the Director of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and Mrs. George A. Finch. Mr. Davis is the son of Mrs. Mary Davis, of Spokane, Wash.

The chapel will be decorated with midsummer blossoms arranged against a background of dark ferns and palms. The Rev. V. McDonough, of Georgetown University, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Smyth, of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, will perform the ceremony at 10 o'clock.

Bride to Wear Blue Crepe Suit.

Mr. Finch will escort his daughter to the altar and give her in marriage. The bride, attired in a smart suit of navy blue sheer crepe trimmed with touches of white, a small felt hat of the same shade and shoes and accessories also of dark blue, will wear a shoulder corsage of lilies of the valley.

Miss Eleanor Finch will be her sister's only attendant. She will wear a suit of beet root crepe with hat and shoes of the same shade, and will carry a bouquet of talisman roses.

Mr. Francis Macken will attend Mr. Davis as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony there will be a wedding breakfast for the members of the bridal party and a few intimate friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Finch on West Virgilia street in Chevy Chase.

To Motor to West Coast.

Later Mr. Davis and his bride will leave by motor for the West Coast. They will make their home in Santa Clara, Calif., where Mr. Davis is professor of political science at Santa Clara College.

The bride attended the Sacred Heart Convent and later was graduated from Trinity College. She recently returned to Washington with her family after having spent some time in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Mr. Davis received his bachelor's degree from Creighton University in Omaha and received his M. A. from Georgetown University, at which school he later served as assistant professor of political science.

Is Temporarily Replacing Miss Evelyn Davis at Sylvan Theater.

Miss Rebecca Tarwater, of the King Smith Studio School of Washington, will arrive today from her home in Rockwood, Tenn., and will spend a week here prior to her departure to the Oscar Siegal Music Camp in New York State.

While in the city, Miss Tarwater will appear in the title role of "Alice in Wonderland" with the Washington Community Players Wednesday in the National Sylvan Theater at the Washington Monument, sponsored by the summer festival committee.

Miss Tarwater, whose appearance in the famous role is being looked forward to with great interest, is temporarily replacing Miss Evelyn Davis, who is out of the city this summer conducting an intensive course in the dance at Bennington College, Vermont.

With the exception of Miss Davis and Mr. Theodore Hiller 2d, who is spending the summer at Gloucester, Mass., with the Gloucester School of the Theater, most of the original players will be seen in the parts they made famous hereabouts, including Miss Maud Howell Smith as the White Queen, and Miss Anne Ives as the Red Queen.

Miss Mary Griffith Joins Miss Reeves

To Visit at Youghiogheny Club in West Virginia.

Miss Mary Ann Griffith, of Washington, has left Bethany Beach, Del., where she has been spending the past few weeks, to join her friend, Miss Elizabeth Reeves, also of Washington, at the Youghiogheny Club in West Virginia.

Miss Griffith just recently returned from a trip to Atlantic Beach, at Morehead City, N. C., prior to going to Bethany. She intends to return to Washington in the early fall to take up her residence at the Knowlton Apartments. Miss Reeves will return to the city at the same time to continue her residence at the Northumberland.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Manly To Entertain Guests

The vice chairman of the Federal Power Commission and Mrs. Basil Manly will have as their guests over the week-end their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Owen Briggs, jr., of Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Briggs will arrive in New York on Thursday, on the Bremen, having spent July in London and Paris.

Capital Society Waits Comedy By Griesemer

Resident and official Washington is looking forward to the premiere of a new comedy by Douglas Griesemer, of the American Red Cross, whose theme is the contrast between "career" diplomats and political appointees. "Welcome to His Excellency" opens Tuesday at the Roadside Theater.

"Try-out" plays are the major part of the season of the New England summer theaters, and the Roadside Theater is happy to have the opportunity to first introduce a local author to Washington theatergoers.

"Welcome to His Excellency" is a comedy of diplomatic life in a United States Legation in Serbania. Author Griesemer refuses to reveal the sources of his characters, except to say that they are not modeled on any particular individuals in the foreign service.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Woodworth, of Palm Beach, Fla., have arrived in Washington and are at the Carlton.

Another Duplicate Play.

In playing the Dummy at Duplicate, as I have pointed out before, one must very often risk losing a game in an attempt to squeeze out an extra trick or two. Sometimes the effort to steal just an extra trick is just an out and out gamble in which the Declarer is playing for a top or a bottom. However, there are many times when the Declarer must realize that it is practically compulsory for him to gamble for overtricks because he has infinitely more to gain than to lose.

A situation of this type is seen in the hand below:

South, Dealer.

The bidding: (Figure after bid refers to numbered explanatory paragraph.)

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	3♡	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass (1)	Pass

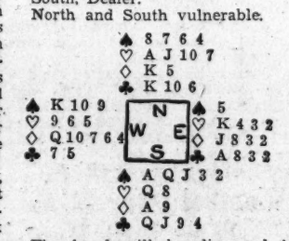
1—North has a very close decision to make at this point—either in Rubber Bridge or in match-point Duplicate. He has no way of telling for an absolute certainty whether four hearts is a safer game declaration than three notrump. Actually, in Rubber Bridge, possession of the doubleton spade and four trumps should make the hand play one trick better at hearts. In addition, a four-heart contract, assuming everything goes wrong, can not be as severely penalized as three notrump. However, in Duplicate the decision is closer. North finally decided to pass to his partner's three-notrump bid in the hope that because of his balanced distribution the hand was very likely to produce an equal number of tricks at notrump or hearts and accordingly a better match-point score would be the result.

West opened his fourth best spade, and South immediately saw that his partner had made a bad decision. After East won the first trick with the Ace of spades, South realized that assuming there was no bad division in trumps, five or six-odd was an absolute laydown at hearts, depending, of course, upon the diamond finesse. South further saw, again assuming the heart suit broke, that nine tricks were absolutely certain at notrump and that 12 could be won if the diamond finesse was right. South's reasoning went a little further. He realized that if he took his nine top tricks and ran, he would lose on the board (whether or not the diamond finesse worked) to every team that played the hand at four hearts and also to every team which played three notrump and did not get a spade Opening, for with a club Opening, which is quite possible from the West hand, four or five notrump is an absolute laydown. As a result of all these observations, South decided that he must gamble for the maximum number of tricks, even though, in so playing, he might not fulfill his contract. He knew that three notrump bid and six made must be at least a tie for top-score on the board, and he further knew that three or even four notrump made, with three bid, could not get him more than a few match-points. Having arrived at a very bad contract, South realized that his side, by playing the hand normally, must get a bad score, and that therefore in gambling for the maximum he had practically nothing to lose (as all had already been lost on the bidding) and a great deal to gain.

South did not even make the customary hold-up on East's spade return, as he realized that he might as well play for six rather than adopt some futile compromise play. Actually, the diamond finesse worked, and South was able to take 12 tricks and tie for top on the board. I do not say that South deserved this top-score, as when a team arrives at a bad contract it should not get a maximum result. However, the South player does deserve credit for correctly sizing up the situation and taking the necessary gamble.

Tomorrow's Hand.

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis Visit Southampton

Will Be With Parents of Latter for Tennis Week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, jr., have gone to Southampton, Long Island, to visit the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Otis Gay, at their summer home, where they will remain for tennis week. Mrs. Davis was before her recent marriage Miss Dorothea E. Gay, of New York and Long Island.

Others who will go to Southampton to witness the tennis tournament will be Mrs. Stanley Harris, of Washington, who will visit her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mayo, of Denver, who have leased a house there for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Mayo also have as their guest, Mr. Tevis Huhn, who has entered the tournament.

Sacasa Daughters to Be Honor Guests

Senorita Maria Sacasa and Senorita Gloria Sacasa, daughters of the President of Nicaragua, who are visiting in Washington, will be the guests of honor at an informal luncheon to be given today by Mrs. Neitah King at the Congressional Country Club.

The other guests will include members of the debutante and subdebutante sets of Washington.

Swope-Brandt Wedding Great Surprise Here

Couple Come to Capital as Guests of Mr. J. P. Kennedy.

A surprise wedding which is of interest to Washington is that of Miss Jane Marion Swope, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bayard Swope, of New York and Sands Point, Long Island, to Mr. Robert Lee Brandt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Brandt, of New York. The ceremony took place on Sunday afternoon at St. Pauls Episcopal Church, Ossining, N. Y., in the presence of Miss Ruth R. Silleck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Silleck, jr., of New York, and Mr. William Kirkland, of New York.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. Brandt and his bride came to Washington to be the guests of Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, who has leased the beautiful estate of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel K. Martin, near Potomac, Md. In several days they will move into the apartment they have leased at Wardman Park Hotel, where they will make their home during their stay in the Capital.

Although the members of the bride's family and friends knew of the engagement, no formal announcement had been made.

The bride is a graduate of the Finch and French Schools of New York, and was presented to society by her parents in 1932. She is an ardent horsewoman. Through her mother, the former Miss Margaret Honeyman Powell, she is a granddaughter of Mrs. Scott Powell, of New York, and a descendant of Gen. Nathaniel Greene, of Revolutionary War fame. Her father is chairman of the State racing commission and is active in civic and political affairs. She is a niece of Mr. Gerard B. Swope, president of the General Electric Co.

Mr. Brandt was graduated from the Hackley School in Tarrytown, N. Y., and attended Princeton University. He is now a member of the administrative staff of the National Recovery Administration in Washington. Through his mother, the former Miss Queenie Stearns, of New York, he is related to the Eades family in Virginia. He is a descendant of the family of Gen. Robert E. Lee, for whom he is named. Mrs. R. Stephenson Boyland, of New York, the former Miss Helen Brandt, is his sister.

Mrs. Baker Enters Boat in Regatta

Walls of Art World Not Too High to Be Scaled by Women Who Begin New Life After 40

Woman Aids in Restoration Of Time-Worn Manuscripts

Mrs. Jennie S. Adams Has Worked in "The Attic" of Library of Congress for Eleven Years; Too Busy to Read Repaired Papers.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

WHILE a ponderous air of studious meditation hovers over reading and reference rooms of the Library of Congress, another section of the catacomb-like building seethes with material activity.

Known to the library's employes as "the attic," this section is a hospital where torn, worm-eaten manuscripts are made whole again.

Pages marked with Lincoln's scrawl, ragged letters of Andrew Jackson, yellowed theater programs announcing Charlotte Cushman in "Hamlet" and other immortal roles, have passed through "the attic," which is reached only by tortuous, spiral stairs.

For 11 years Mrs. Jennie S. Adams has climbed that corkscrew staircase to assist in the restoring of manuscripts. She says the work is just as interesting to her now as the day she started.

It doesn't make much difference to her whether she is called upon to mend dry legal papers or the burning love letters of some great statesman.

No Time to Read.

"I don't read any of them. I don't have time," she explained. But in the next breath she admitted she used to do more than glance at the pages; that was when she first came to "the attic."

"Now they're just numbers to me," Mrs. Adams continued. "Whenever manuscripts are sent up here to be restored, I number them so we can keep track of them easily. And then the real work begins. See this crumpled bit of paper? It's very valuable. At least the library thinks so. Now watch and I'll show you how we take the wrinkles out."

She spread the precious piece between damp newspapers, put oiled paper outside the newspapers, then inclosed the whole thing in thick cardboards. Next, she placed the cardboards in a heavy metal press, operated by a wheel on top.

"After two hours the manuscript is taken out of the damp papers and is put between dry cardboards," said Mrs. Adams. "Then it is put in the press again and left there all night. When it comes out in the morning it looks like this."

She held up a small, smooth, oblong piece of paper, slightly discolored, and covered with simple, strong handwriting. It was a page from George Washington's diary.

Mrs. Adams regarded it as unemotionally as a housewife does her grocery list. All that impressed her was the fact there was writing on both sides.

"Now I'll show you how this is mounted so readers can see both sides," and she led the way to a high, marble-topped table. Leaning over the table was Oscar Linequist, one of two men employed in "the attic" to perform the delicate process known as crepe lining and scraping.

"I used to do crepe lining, but now the library lets only men do that work," explained Mrs. Adams. She watched while Mr. Linequist placed a heavy, cream-colored rectangle of paper on the marble top. After brushing the paper with thin paste, he placed two pages from Washington's diary on it, leaving several inches of space between them. Later the paper would be folded through the center of that space to form two pages in a book.

After the pages of the diary had been put in place Mr. Linequist brushed the whole thing with paste, then covered it with a transparent piece of white silk crepe, so sheer it seemed made of cobwebs.

Must Scrape Paper.

"And after the paste has dried the paper must be scraped from the back so the writing of the diary will be exposed. Like this," he said, as he held the large, diary-incrusted piece over a brilliant light. The light brought into clear relief the edge of the diary pages and showed the writing on them.

Mr. Linequist took a small knife with a thin, short blade and posed it over the diary's outline.

"With this knife the paper will be scraped away," he explained. "The hardest part is to follow the jagged outline of the worn diary page. And, of course, great care must be used with every little stroke or the diary will be jabbed or torn."

About two hours are required for the scraping of a piece in good condition; that is, with edges only slightly frayed and with no worm holes.

Worms Eat the Paper.

The appetite of worms for paper makes a lot of work for Mr. Linequist. Each worm-eaten page must be reinforced carefully with the gossamer silk crepe.

After he has lined them, Mrs. Adams mounts them on heavy paper, always a little closer to the top than to the bottom.

"Then when the reader holds the book in position, the mounted piece appears to be in the center," she said.

The mounting process finished, Mrs. Adams pastes paper guards along the inner edges. The outer portion of the guards is folded back and through this folded section the pages are fastened together. Then the pages are sent to the library's bindery, and soon another book is added to the shelves.

Evening Gowns Featured With Low Decolletes

PARIS (AP).—Designers seem to have "taken a tip" from the nudists in fashioning their newest evening gowns, for many are marked by the lowest decolletes the style world has seen in several years.

"Down in front" is the slogan for a number displayed in designers' salons. Others still cling to the ultramodest line covering the collar bones in front, which has been in vogue for the past two seasons. There are very few medium cuts.

Dressmakers have used many devices in fashioning the new low decolletes. One designs lace evening gowns gashed in a deep V in front; another eliminates shoulder straps altogether, holding the bodice up by means of whalebones, and a third slashes the front of the gowns to a deep oval or square and fills in the lower part with a bank of small flowers, folds of flesh colored chiffon or lace frills.

The favorite low decollete, however, is a deep square with narrow ribbon-like straps, while another, less often used, is a deep V with one big flower caught at the base. Many of the gowns cut low in front are designed with higher backs, though others are fashioned with a deep decollete both back and front.

The frivols and accents which were formerly seen at the top of evening gowns seem to have been concentrated at the hemlines of the newest models. Some are worn with petticoats of taffeta or tulle which rustle and swish as the wearer glides along; others have hemlines faced in a bright contrasting color which flicks into a sight as madame walks. Others are slashed once or twice at the hemline, sometimes as far as the knee, and a fourth group is designed with hemlines turned up in front to reveal the toes and touching the floor in the back.

Trains, though still in the picture, seem to be gradually "losing ground." Fewer appeared in the latest collections and fewer were worn by the smart women seen at the summer's gala affairs. Most women favored evening frocks whose skirts just swept the ground in back. Since many were designed with back fullness, however, the result was a sweeping effect suggestive of a very short train.

Movies Lead to Divorce, Court Registrar Says

Salem, Mass., Aug. 1 (AP).—Registrar William F. Shanahan, of Salem Probate Court, says it's the movies that make women dissatisfied with their husbands.

The registrar, announcing a 30 per cent increase in divorces this month over last, said: "Many of the women in their early twenties who petition for divorce are familiar with the lives of the pleasure-seeking wives of the movies. They go to the movies and then become dissatisfied with their husbands.

"If they would readjust the social relations in Hollywood, there would be far less business in this courtroom."

PILLAR to POST

WITH our Congressional friends in their home districts fighting for reelection, Washington views with mixed sympathy and amusement the many tricks played to oust incumbents. Retribution was almost visited upon Will Rogers, the school teacher from Moore, Okla., who was elected to the last Congress by a large majority, many voting under the impression that he was the gum-chewing Oklahoma movie star and news commentator.

• • • •

A third Will Rogers, a truck driver from Ardmore, filed against the incumbent in the primary that was run off a few days ago, but was eliminated on a technicality. His real name was Oscar William Rogers but he chose to shorten it to the more popular form. Representative Rogers prevented his rival with the same name appearing on the ballot with him by pointing out that there were no addresses attached to the petition signed by the 1,000 friends who supposedly wanted him to run, a necessary legal formality.

• • • •

This trick was tried first in Nebraska when the grocer, George Norris, was put up against the veteran of the same name in the Senate, and was supposed to have been instigated by higher-ups in the party who were enemies of the progressive Senator. It is considered the lowest form of political skulduggery, and in Oklahoma this year there has been an epidemic of the "double name" trick. Nearly every incumbent has had a rival bearing the same name on the ballot with him.

THE Governor, Henry S. Johnson, was among those who suffered in this way. Some of them were eliminated because they did not have the money to put up for the bonds to cover election contests. Maybe Oklahoma is considered particularly gullible, anyway Robert E. Lee is running for political office this year.

• • • •

Washington will not soon forget Emanuel Herrick, who served one hectic term in the House from Oklahoma. He filed in the primaries every two years from the time he was 21 years old. Came a day, when the incumbent in the House died just before election, and as there was no time for a special primary, Herrick was automatically elected, being the only other candidate. For protection, the Republican State committee hired a secretary to accompany him to Washington at a salary the same as the Representative. He wrote all the speeches that Herrick delivered in the House, mispronouncing the big words. Asked what he thought of his secretary, Herrick replied:

"He's too e-gos-tical."

• • • •

"Do you want a nudist to represent you?"

Salt as Beauty Help Is Gaining Greater Favor

Rubbed Over Body, During Bath, Makes the Skin Tingle and Glow.

By Frances Mangum.

THE LOWLY salt is risen to great glory in the beauty mart.

Those who regard it as merely a food seasoning are failing to recognize its vast potentialities.

On a hot summer's day, when the humid atmosphere seems almost too oppressive to bear, salt comes to the rescue. Get in the tub or shower and allow the body to become thoroughly wet. Next take a handful of plain table salt and rub over the body. Soon the skin begins to tingle and glow. Now rinse off the salt, for if any of the paste is allowed to remain on the body it tends to have a drying effect.

The salt facial may be highly recommended. One of America's leading actresses depends on this treatment for removing heavy make-up and grease paint. First she cleanses her face with olive oil, preferably a bit warm. With her face still moist from the oil she rubs salt gently over the skin.

Must Not Rub Hard.

She must be careful not to rub hard, as salt has slightly abrasive qualities that irritate the complexion unless it is applied gently.

After the salt paste has been rubbed thoroughly over the face she removes as much of it as she can with a tissue. A few minutes later she rinses her face in tepid water, and follows this with cold water.

Salt has a perfect knack for checking perspiration. Mix with just enough water to make a paste and apply this on the arm pits. After a few minutes rinse off with warm water, following by cold (to close the pores). This is a good treatment to know if you're ever caught without a personal deodorant.

Good As Eyewash.

Many physicians recommend a salt solution as an eyewash instead of the much used boric acid. Half a teaspoonful of salt to a pint of boiled water turns the trick. Use an eyecup and make sure that most of the solution does not drip out of the corner of the cup. As a result, the eyes will feel rested and be very much brighter.

A solution a little stronger than this makes an ideal mouthwash. Salt is splendid for counteracting itching from mosquito and fly bites if used in the following manner: A quarter of a glass of salt, equal portion of bicarbonate of soda, and enough water to form a paste.

For tired aching feet, two handfuls of salt to a bowl of water will mean a new lease on life.

"Just Plain Larnin'" Costs Principal Job

Winston-Salem, N. C., August 1 (Spl.).—Following publication of his novel "Just Plain Larnin'," James M. Shields, the author, has been dismissed as principal of the South Junior High School here. The novel depicts the trials of a school principal in a small industrial town. Many of the characters in the novel are said by townspeople to have been drawn from life.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

THIS SUMMER'S crop of brides is beginning now to turn from honeymoon of ocean cruise, motor or train journey, mountain or seaside sojourn, to the more serious if none the less delightful business of settling down to make a home.

Among their number will be some so gifted with common sense, adaptability and intuitive understanding of life's underlying truths and values that they will turn effortlessly from the dream-heaven of the honeymoon to the inescapable matter-of-factness of everyday routine.

• • • •

But there will be others less wise, less willing to put their hand to the plow of unromantic reality which the marriage contract implies. These will be the brides who expect their husband's every utterance to be one of love; who will expect love to solve every difficulty, from paying the rent to preparing the meals. These will be the brides who can profit by a letter that came in yesterday's mail.

• • • •

Written by a woman, it outlines some fundamental rules for nurturing married happiness, and contains as well a bit of dry and priceless philosophy worded by her husband, which any bride may digest and practice with profit.

I present it herewith, together with my thanks to the writer for her constructive contribution to this column. M. H.

Don't Trust to Luck.

MY DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I am a mother of two grown daughters and the close friend of a number of other young people; also the teacher of a woman's Sunday school class, and it does my heart good to find a woman who has the courage of her convictions, to advise young people without silly sentimentality.

• • • •

I am an unusually happy married woman and both my husband and I feel that our happiness is due to Christian weighing of problems and sense in meeting situations, rather than luck. In the vernacular: "There ain't no such."

If more sensible women would give such advice straight from the shoulder as you gave "Lovelorn" in Saturday's Post, there'd be less divorce and fewer broken lives.

• • • •

My husband used to say if young married women would stop pulling up the rose tree to see if the roots were alive, and accept the fact as established, fewer homes would be shipwrecked. Thank you for your sane articles. Sincerely

ALICE P. J.

New York City to Teach Women Food Economy

New York, Aug. 1.—A school to help housewives get the most out of the food they buy is being instituted here by the city administration. A model kitchen will be set up at the Midtown Municipal Market and there twice a week home economics experts will demonstrate the best ways of preparing vegetables, meat and fish.

Famous Artists Have Reached Pinnacle When Past Youth

Poets, painters and actors traditionally come to full flower in youth.

Yet, according to records, nine-tenths of the world's best poems, the greatest paintings, and the most widely acclaimed stage roles have been done by older persons who chose their careers in youth, struck their stride in the thirties and arrived in middle age.

But what of the woman who begins a career at the age most women are begining to arrive? Does she have a chance in fields that proverbially belong to youth?

This is the fourth in a series of articles about women who have won laurels in careers selected after 40.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

MICHELANGELO'S most stupendous conceptions were completed between his fifty-ninth and eighty-ninth years.

Leonardo painted "Mona Lisa" at 54. If Franz Hals had died before 50, his loveliest paintings would never have been done.

All these famous artists reached the pinnacle of fame long after life's median hour. Yet each of these famous men climbed slowly up the ladder of success during youth. Is there, then, no hope for the middle-aged woman who selects art as a career?

"Indeed there is," said Mrs. Minnie L. Briggs, widely-known Washington artist, who at middle age selected etching as her metier and was subsequently acclaimed by critics as one of the foremost women etchers in the United States.

"It is possible to begin again at middle age and find more happiness and contentment than one has ever known before. I know, because I did it."

Middle age, she said, is only the noon of a woman's life with the long afternoon and evening hours ahead—hours that may be turned to some profitable and pleasurable endeavor.

"A woman then," she went on, "can use what has been absorbed from long study and wide experience. She can bring to a career a broader understanding of life and a more composed outlook.

"After 20 years of housekeeping and entertaining, I have at last found time to make use of what I have gathered and stored away. I began painting in childhood, but I took up the duties of a home of my own before I finished my first year at art school.

Takes Up Etching.

Then, after 20 years, she selected the career of an etcher in order, as she phrased it, "to sweep the cobwebs out of my brain and give back to the world something of what it had given to me."

One of the few etchers of wild flowers, she has exhibited prints with art societies throughout the East and won many prizes.

But what of painting? Can a woman who has never held a palette and brush begin after 40 and gain recognition in the realm of art?

Born and reared in the Middle West, Mrs. Cantwell spent her youth on a Wyoming ranch.

"And I loved it," she said. "I loved it so much I wanted to capture the ranchland's beauty with a brush and a piece of canvas. But I never had time. Rearing my four boys to manhood and attending to domestic duties didn't leave me a minute. But I knew, though I had never tried, that I could paint.

Began at 45.

"I was 45 before I had a chance. My children were grown, my husband was dead, and I had enough money to go to New York. There I arranged to study with the best teacher I could afford. He didn't give me much encouragement."

Yet ten years later she had arrived. Her paintings, successfully translating the magic of a Wyoming ranch, have brought her success.

Now in Paris, where she is getting ready for a one-man exhibit of her canvases, she recently wrote to a friend in Washington, "I don't mind admitting I raised the ante on 'life begins at 40' by five years. I was 45 when I found my life's work."

Such a career would seem to kindle the flame of hope for the middle-aged woman. But are there other Nationally known women who have achieved even greater success in fields to which only youth is supposed to be admitted?

Take the theater, for instance. Ellen Terry, Eleanor Duse and Sara Bernhardt appeared in their best roles after 40. Are there any actresses in the twentieth century who have done this?

Yes. Marie Dressler, Hollywood's "grand old trouper" whose career only recently drew to a close. She has long been a source of inspiration to women past youth.

Irene Rich is another actress who admits life began for her at middle age. But not on the stage. She had played in a number of motion pictures when she was still in the thirties. After 40, however, she found the career to which she admits being best suited—the radio. Recently entering this work, she is already winning acclaim.

Is the after-40 career, then, such a rare thing?

Underwood & Underwood.

DOES A WOMAN at 40 have a chance for success in a new field of endeavor? "Indeed she does," says Minnie L. Briggs, above, widely known Washington artist whose successful career as an etcher was launched near middle age.

Strictly Speaking

Answer These.

1. Define and pronounce the italicized word in this sentence, "After entering many lines of endeavor, he decided painting was his metier."

2. In what German city are the Wagnerian festivals held?

3. Is the following sentence correct: "All canines in Washington must be tagged?"

4. Pronounce cadaver, coroner, and rigor mortis. Define the last.

5. What is a vagary and how is it pronounced?

Check Here.

1. A metier (may-tyay) is a profession, trade or calling.

2. In Bayreuth (bie-ROIT).

3. No. Canine is an adjective, not a noun. It is pronounced either kay-NINE or KAY-nine. The first is preferable.

4. Cadaver is properly called kay-DAY-ver not kay-DAV-er. Coroner is KOR-o-ner, not KOR-nor. Rigor mortis (RIE-gor MOR-tis) is the rigidity of the muscles that occurs at death and lasts until decomposition sets in.

5. A vagary (vay-GAY-ri, not VAY-ga-ri) is a wandering of the thoughts; a whim; a fanciful freak.

Few Japanese Women Get Doctor's High Rank

Of more than 3,000 women doctors in Japan, only 7 have received the highest title of "Igaku-Hakushi," that is "doctor of medicine," according to the Japanese correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association. Recently Prof. Kuni Toda, of the Tokyo Women's Medical College, received this title from the education office.

Latest Sports Fur Reefers Combine Warmth With Trim and Smartly Tailored Appearance

Nutria, Beaver, Muskrat or Lapin Fine for This Garment.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Surely there shouldn't be many pinched noses and shivery knees at this fall's football games or next winter's hockey. Not, that is, on the girls who attend them in the newest sports fur coat.

It's a reefer. And it snugs in about the body and buttons closely across the chest in a most protective way.

And, with all its comfort, it's one of the neatest, trimmest, most tailored looking fur coats you ever saw. Tailored enough, in fact, for a general wear coat.

Nutria, beaver, lapin and muskrat are fine furs for it. They are flat enough to tailor nicely but have enough bulk to be warm.

But no matter how many reefers you see (and they'll usually be worn by quite young folk), you'll see lots more swagger fur coats in seven-eighths and three-quarter length.

By the way, have you ever asked for our leaflet on the care of furs? It gives lots of little hints which help prolong their life and keep them looking well.

If you haven't it already, fill in and mail the coupon with requested inclosures and we'll send it right along.

Cosmetics, Bettered Year After Year, Available for Women Today.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

HERE is an opportunity not to be overlooked! A beauty specialist who for many years has listed half the "four hundred" and a good percentage of the 20,000,000 in her clientele makes an interesting offer.

A special package of her preparations, including an astringent, a fluid cleanser, a skin tonic and a skin food, together with a large box of powder, lipstick and a box of cream rouge, sells for amazingly little. The whole outfit of seven products costs but a few cents more than one of her preparations usually does.

Women who have used her fluid cleanser invariably come back for more. Even while it penetrates the pores and banishes the collection of dirt and dust it softens and refines the skin.

All of her products are the result of years of study. Her great-grandfather, a courtier of the Russian Catherine's regime, was appointed by the empress herself to make her cosmetics. His formulas have been handed down in the family and perfected year after year.

Ornamental Thread Baskets.

At first glance one doesn't see the little thread baskets. The counter is well covered with hooks and eyes, needles, pins, and notions of all kinds. But down underneath, inside the show case, are these delightful baskets. They look like ornamental miniatures of large baskets, but they're practical everyday items themselves.

Each one is about three by five inches, length and width, and three to four inches deep—quite ample for innumerable spools of thread and other odds and ends for sewing. Some of them even have curved straw tops with two criss-cross handles. They are made of natural colored straw and trimmed in green or blue.

Softies Always Useful.

A batch of soft woolly hats is being sold out for $1 apiece. If vacation time is drawing near, don't fail to get one and tuck it away in your suitcase. One thing about a softy—they're always useful! They take to the rain like a duck to water. And they're extremely jaunty and sporty. The crowns are soft enough to fit closely to the head. Small brims, some of them turned up in the back, give a decidedly Robin Hood effect.

Just now there are whites, yellows, blues, greens and pinks on hand.

• • • •

Bone Jewelry Attractive.

Some white Chinese bone jewelry is selling out for 35 cents a piece or 3 pieces for $1. Unless you happen to be "in on the know," you couldn't tell it from real carved ivory jewelry.

Each piece is exquisitely wrought in flower, curlicue, or scroll pattern. Come down and take your pick of earrings, beads, bracelets, or clips!

Five-Minute Beauty Aid.

Here's more news from the well-known originator of an internationally known line of cosmetics. Midsummer is a difficult beauty season, she says. You may have held up bravely, but now is the time to take fresh stock of yourself and avoid that "last rose of summer" look. She advocates what she calls a "quick cooking recipe for hot, tired skins. Time, 5 minutes."

First of all apply a certain pasteurized face cream which soothes, refreshens, molds and cleanses all in one. Follow this with a cooling application of a certain skin tonic, made from herbs. This is both a freshener and an astringent. You should be 10 degrees cooler!

Three-in-One Pencil.

There's a new fingernail pencil that might be the ideal of an efficiency expert. It combines at least three things in one. The white point gives a smooth and lasting whiteness to the nail tips. A little metal fin serves both as a nail cleaner and a cuticle instrument.

Economical Manicure Set.

Truly it is a time for domestic economists to cheer and celebrate, for here is a manicure set for 25 cents. Little leather kits about 5 inches square contain an orange stick, nail file, emery board, a polish, a polish remover and a cuticle remover. The outfit is so small and compact it could fit inside of a make-up kit itself. Or else it could be tucked into the side pocket of a suitcase and be no bother at all.

"Blue Medway" Porcelain.

All those familiar with the "blue Medway" pattern know that it is one of the most ornamental in China circles. At present a large local store is selling a 32-piece service for six in ivory bodied English porcelain with the blue Medway pattern for only $7. All the June brides who hesitate to use their expensive china every day will find this a grand saving.

Natural, Unpretentious Foods Have Greatest Appeal in Italy

Time Seems of Little Importance to Natives, So Meals Are of Many Courses; New Spaghetti Dish Described.

From the land of Dante and D'Annunzio, cypress and tall pines, Raphael and Risotto, we find all that is Italian is not spaghetti. Today's journey into Italy brings one close to the soil, the food is natural, simple and as friendly as the congenial Italian cooks.

This is one of a series of articles on foreign foods and flavors.

By Susan Mills.

ROADS, twisting around the hills of Florence, are covered with heavy cream-colored dust. Looking down from the hills, grape vineyards and olive groves are gray instead of green, the cypress trees, like sad old men, are gaunt and sleepy.

A traveler, choking as the dust clogs his lungs, drops in a wayside inn, where he refreshes his throat and spirit with the red wines of the country, Chianti Chablis and others. It is customary to pause and drink, relax and chat with the friendly natives.

Time, during dining, is of little importance; hours are spent in friendly conversation and the consumption of the many-coursed menus. In an out-of-the-way Italian restaurant hours are spent at the tables, courses drift in and out again, waiters are unhurried and voluble.

In the south of the country there is a reason for the laziness. The heat. In the middle of the day, siesta is declared. Road workers curl up under the trees and, with their coats over their heads, go to sleep. Carpenters slumber as their tools lie idle, shops close, the cities and towns appear to be dead.

Easy Atmosphere Reawakens.

Then, in the evening, appetites and wits brighten; families and friends gather and the gay, easy atmosphere awakens again.

In the marketplaces and other sections where people gather, venders stroll by, bursting into occasional song. Bananas are sold to the tune of "Santa Lucia," snatches of Italian opera introduce the pomegranates. The Italians sing because they are happy; they can not help but sing.

Roughly speaking, Italian food is a natural food, prepared to maintain the natural flavors. Dishes vary with the sections of the country. Olive oil, because of the abundance of olives, is greatly used. One can not forget the pasti—macaroni, spaghetti, and the rest. At one time the pasti was consumed in great quantities, but Il Duce decreed otherwise.

Italian and French food are what might be called second cousins. Both are guided by simple rules, and avoid strong contrast of sweet and sour, bitter and mild, hot and cold. Unlike the French food, the Italian is unpretentious, rustic, but none the less delicious.

Vegetables grow in abundance and excellence in the fertile country. Italian methods of cooking will add variety to American tables.

Green Peppers Delightful.

Green peppers submit themselves to a baked dish in a delightful way. Cut them in halves, lengthwise, remove the seeds and pulp, and bake in a large quantity of olive oil until they are soft.

When carrots pall on the appetite, try them the Italian way. Cut them lengthwise, boil until tender, then fry them in olive oil; salt and pepper and serve.

Here's a Sunday night snack that is sure to please. Scrape and soak mushrooms in a little olive oil with salt and pepper and a small bit of garlic for two hours. Cook over a hot fire in the same oil, add a little chopped parsley. Place on bread slices fried in butter and serve with a few drops of lemon juice squeezed over them.

Spaghetti to the American mind must be served with tomato sauce or a meat sauce. However, Macina, who owns and operates the Italian restaurant carrying his name, advocates a different spaghetti dish for the dull appetite or tired system. He says chop a little garlic and fry it lightly in butter, add chopped parsley and the cooked spaghetti, and serve.

Italian salads are simple affairs, unimaginative, but all the vitamins are there. A leaf of lettuce, a slice of onion and a lump of tomato, all covered with an oil dressing, is all that is needed. Italian desserts are not guilty of pies, heavy cakes or ice creams. In a native restaurant they will bring you, at the end of your meal, a huge bowl of fruit of every kind. These you eat until you can eat no more, the rest you may pocket and take away.

Parmesan Best Known Cheese.

As a finale, Risotto, the national dish of northern Italy, should take a bow. Here is an approximate recipe for the American housewife.

Risotto.

¼ pound Milan rice
Small onion
Half tumbler white wine
3 ounces butter
1 to 2 pints clear stock
Pinch saffron
1 pound mushrooms

Put the rice in a saucepan with an ounce of butter. Stir for 5 minutes over a sharp fire. Add the chopped onion and a cup of hot, slightly salted clear soup or stock. Simmer, stirring gently until it is absorbed. Add the rest of the soup slowly and carefully, so the rice remains firm.

While rice is simmering wash and slice mushrooms in quarters. Cook about 10 minutes in butter or olive oil. Dissolve the saffron in a cup of the soup. When rice has boiled dry but is still firm (after about 25 minutes) add the saffron-flavored soup, the wine and a cup of grated Parmesan cheese; mix well over fire. Serve with mushrooms placed around the rice, and serve with more grated cheese.

Chefs may sneer at the cooking of the English and call it "plain," but England has her own ideas about food, and they are original and delicious. Watch for the article on this page next Thursday.

New Zealand First In Life Expectancy

NEW ZEALANDERS have a longer life expectancy than the people of any other country in the world, according to statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The average male infant born in New Zealand can expect to live to the age of 65, while the average female infant can look forward to living within six weeks of 68 years, says the Statistical Bulletin of the life insurance company.

The corresponding figures for white babies of the United States are 59.31 for boys and 62.83 for girls.

An exceedingly low mortality for New Zealand babies during the first year is reported in the Bulletin. It is only 38.35 per 1,000 for males and 25.48 for females. The corresponding figures for the United States in 1930 were 60.86 and 48.21.

Woman Builds Sand Box of Suitable Size and at Low Cost.

By Alice Fox Pitts.

"SAND BOXES shown in the stores were too small and too expensive to meet my requirements," a mother writes. "Although my husband promised to make one, he never got around to it. I am no hand at carpentry, but in desperation I decided to make a sand box myself.

"At a nearby lumber yard I bought four boards, each 8 feet long and 8 or 10 inches wide. I also had four short stakes cut, each 2 inches square, about a foot long and pointed at the bottom. I nailed the four long boards to the upper ends of the stakes to make a square box, and hammered the pointed ends into the ground. Here I had a sand box large enough for three or four children to play in comfortably.

"We lived near enough to a creek to be able to haul bucket loads of sand in the car, and this I emptied into the box. Fine sand from the seashore can be purchased in bags in department stores, but I believe that the kind that builders use is better since it packs more firmly for mud-pies. It is also relatively cheap.

"This was an inexpensive proposition that served to entertain the children in the family and their friends. It was crudely done but eminently satisfactory."

Absentee Voters Rush for Ballots

With the date of the primary elections approaching, absentee voters are making a rush at the Absentee Voters' Bureau to get their ballots mailed to their respective States. Much interest is being manifested here in the West Virginia election, in which ballots may be mailed up until primary election day Tuesday. Ballots must be mailed so as to reach the precincts for which they are intended by midnight Tuesday.

What Today Means

"Leo."

If August 2 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a. m., from 2:45 to 4:45 p. m. and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:45 to 8:45 a. m., from 12:45 to 2:45 p. m. and from 4:45 to 6:45 p. m.

On this August 2 it might be advisable to exercise caution in all business transactions, as there is a possibility of slip-ups occurring. Patience may be required, as there is a likelihood of your meeting with some very unreasonable people. Avoid becoming discouraged if you encounter a blowhard who might try to impress you with the phenomenal success he is achieving. Bear in mind you can not believe all you hear. You may find yourself in the midst of an argument between acquaintances. You possibly may receive some money very shortly, and it will be good judgment not to allow it to burn a hole in your pocket. An invitation to a social gathering, if received, may find you doubtful whether to accept or decline it. Unless it seriously interferes with other plans, your acceptance might be advisable. Married, engaged and sentimental couples should find the evening auspicious for the carrying out of their individual ideas.

If a woman and August 2 is your birthday, you should be gifted with excellent conversational power, and an ability to freely express yourself. Your personal magnetism wins people's confidence, and enables you to carry your point. Educational work or the lecture platform should prove profitable, if you take the work up seriously. You should find married life a medium for happiness and a relief from financial problems. Avoid telling everything you know to comparative strangers.

The child born on August 2, as it grows up, must learn not to be resentful. Having many splendid traits of character, the principal thing it will have to be taught is to "forgive and forget." A tendency to harbor grudges may be its one weakness.

If a man and August 2 is your natal day, you should be able to sell anything, as you have a glib tongue. As a public speaker, you should make a great success. The legal profession and ministry are both professional lines which, with the proper training, offer men born on this date unlimited opportunities. Married life should appeal to you, and a great deal of happiness should result from its many benefits.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Cataract.

The name cataract is derived from a Greek word meaning "something which flows down." It came into use because of an erroneous idea that the obstruction to vision was caused by an abnormal fluid or tissue that had poured down in front of the crystalline lens of the eye. Brisseau, a French army surgeon, dissected the eye in 1805 and showed that the abnormal tissue was the crystalline lens itself, which had become opaque.

We now know that in certain persons past the age of 40, or even younger, the crystalline lens which is normally clear becomes opaque and obstructs vision. This is a manifestation of old age in this particular structure. It occurs to a certain extent in all who live to an advanced age, but, like gray hair, comes much earlier in certain persons than in others. There is a definite family tendency to this early clouding of the lens. Certain diseases, such as diabetes and chronic eczema, cause cataract in younger persons; and small children may even develop it as a result of malnutrition before or after birth, or because of an hereditary tendency. By far the grestest number of cataracts, however, occur in persons otherwise healthy.

The only symptom of cataract is a gradual decrease of vision, usually in both eyes, but often in one eye before the other. Examination reveals a cloudiness behind the pupil, so that in an advanced case the pupil looks white. There is no pain.

There is no treatment by means of medicine which will clear a cataract when it is once formed. Various methods have been tried to prevent further progress of the cataract, especially drops which cause a temporary congestion of the eye. While a trial of such treatment in early cases may often be desirable, it must be understood that it may prove ineffective.

In some cases the opacities in the lens will remain stationary for years with or without treatment. In other cases they progress, and surgical treatment becomes necessary.

The operation consists in removing the opaque crystalline lens from the eye often with a slight enlargement of the pupil. It is performed under local anesthesia and usually requires a stay of 7 to 14 days in the hospital. The operation should be done by a surgeon of skill and experience, and in such hands the visual results are good, provided no other disease of the eye is present. A good result means that, with a proper glass to replace the optical function of the removed lens, vision for distance and reading is excellent, often normal. Without this strong glass only large objects are seen.

In the case of children with cataract the procedure differs only in a few details from that in adults, but such children may have other congenital defects of the eyes which interfere with the result obtained.

ESCAPE from the SOVIETS

By TATIANA TCHERNAVIN

Weary after days spent wandering through Arctic wastes, Tatiana Echernavin, her husband and son at last found signs of human habitation. This is the fact story of the last lap of the family's escape from Soviet Russia and the hardships they endured there.

TWO days later we made a discovery which seemed to us of enormous importance: we found a fence. A real, well-built, high fence, going from north to south across a beautiful forest.

A path, well trodden but with no fresh traces of man, apparently led to the river. We could tell its presence by the thick growth of young elm, but we could not hear it; it flowed quietly and peacefully.

"A house!"

It was not a house but a low log hut, open on one side and roofed in with planks, sloping toward the open side. There was a shelf inside on which several dates and Finnish names were written. We did not see any names of places. The dates went 15 and 20 years back, so there was no doubt that the place was well known and that people came here. But when and what for?

There were two charred tree trunks in the open part of the hut, but they must have been lying there since the summer before, for they were overgrown with moss.

Husband Suffered.

People could not be very far off, but how were we to find them when we had so little strength left and so few provisions?

"I'll see if I can catch some fish," said my husband and went to the river.

The boy lit a fire and put the saucepan on to make tea. We very much wanted to stay here and spend the night under a roof, but, with the most stringent economy, our food could not last us more than another five or six days, and we made less and less progress every day.

My husband suffered dreadfully. Time after time his pain caused him to lie down when the journey was quite easy, and we had to stop till he was better—and that, when we could not afford any delays.

When my husband was rested we went on. That was a terrible mistake. We ought to have thought it all out carefully and looked round, but we frivolously concluded that having found the hut we would soon discover a road.

In Huge Swamp.

We struggled on for the rest of the day and spent the night on a tiny island in the biggest swamp we had ever seen. It extended in the westerly direction like an emerald sea. It took us away from the river and, in trying to skirt round it, we went further and further south; we very much wanted to go back to the hut; it seemed incredible that there was no path from it at all. We must have made a mistake somewhere. We should probably have returned, but we were deceived by traces of horse's hoofs which we found on the path that had reappeared again. They were quite fresh, the horse was shod, and it looked exactly as though someone had just ridden there. But the path led us to a marsh and disappeared completely.

We had no idea that the Finns let their horses pasture in the forest, like the deer, and that the hoofmarks we saw were made by horses wandering at random or following an occasional path.

Retracing Steps.

At last the slope along which we were going turned sharply to the southeast and it became obviously senseless for us to continue our journey. It was bitter to confess to ourselves that we had lost a whole day and the only thing to do was to find the shortest way back. Walking through endless swamps reduced the boy's feet and mine to such a condition that we could scarcely drag ourselves along. We had to spend the night far away from the hut, which seemed to us now the key to all our future.

My husband found a clearing and kept up a huge blaze all night, burning the logs that had not been taken away.

As soon as it was light, my husband went on ahead to scout. He came back in high spirits—the hut was within two hours walk.

Walking Was Agony.

But what an agony that walk was! One swamp after another—now full of small hillocks overgrown with small wiry birches, now one green quivering mass of slime. Gasping for breath and bathed in perspiration we walked for over four hours instead of two and when we reached the hut at last we sank on the ground in utter exhaustion.

My husband sat most of the night by the bonfire sucking his empty pipe. There was very little tobacco left. I did not want to ask him what he was thinking—I had nothing comforting to say to him.

When in the morning we sat down to our saucepan of mushroom soup he glanced at our feet. We did not put on our boots and stockings till the last moment so as not to chaff the sores that now covered our feet and ankles. My husband said sharply:

"You can not go on."

The boy glanced at him in alarm. I, too, did not understand at first what he was driving at.

"Listen," he went on. "You must both stay here, in the hut. I can not bear to see you struggling on when you can hardly walk. If I go alone I need not pick my way and will find people in a couple of days; then I will come to fetch you and bring back some food."

Mastering my emotions I was trying to consider the matter objectively.

(1) Alone, he will walk quicker if he does not have an attack of his pains. If he has, he may die on the spot; we shall not know, and remaining here we shall certainly perish also.

(2) If he gets to a village not in two but in five or six days, we shall still be alive by the time he comes back; if we stay quietly in the hut and feed on boiled berries we shall not die of starvation. There will still be some life in us.

(3) If we continue the journey, the three of us, the question is will the child stand it? His pulse was weak and irregular; he was obviously overstrained.

(4) What should I do in his place? Go on by myself, clearly.

Fight Shows Here Must Post $80

Boxing Body to Require Bond by Promoters to Cover Expenses.

By Bill McCormick.

A "PAY before you play" plan to relieve the Boxing Commission's financial distress was approved by the solons of sock and passed to the District Commissioners for their final sanction yesterday. Under the plan, which generally is expected to meet with the approval of the District heads, promoters will be required to deposit $80 with the Boxing Commission before each show to guarantee the fisticuffing governing board's actual operating expenses.

Should the commission's 5 per cent cut on any show fall below the $80 required to provide physicians, referees, inspectors and other officials, the deposit will be retained. If the commission's percentage of the gross amounts to more than the $80 minimum, a 5 per cent cut will be taken on the gross gate receipts, as before, and the $80 deposit returned.

Forestalls Higher "Cut."

The plan was approved by the commission principally to avoid the necessity of increasing the cut on gross gate receipts to 10 per cent. Had the commission's "take" been doubled, the operating expenses of the larger clubs would have been greatly increased, and some of the smaller clubs might not have contributed enough to the commission to enable it to meet the actual expense of supervising their shows.

The commission also approved a Kid Chocolate-Andre Sarilla bout to be staged by the Lincoln Athletic Club at Griffith Stadium. The bout originally was scheduled for August 14, but the Lincoln Club learned that they could not obtain the ball park for that date and after a series of consultations with Promoter Joe Turner, who controls the ring situation at the Stadium, it was decided to stage the colored show on Friday, August 17, in order not to conflict with a Turner-promted boxing show on August 13 and wrestling match August 16. The commission had indicated when approving the match for the 14th that they would authorize it to be held later in the week.

Deny Ahern Later Date.

The commission also officially notified Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn that his all-star card scheduled for next Monday night could not be postponed if Jack Dempsey, who is scheduled to referee, were unable to be present.

Permission has been granted to the World A. C., another colored organization, to hold a show at Griffith Stadium August 7, featuring Jeff Thomas and Mack House in a ten-round main event supported by an eight-round semifinal between Buster Hall and Sherman Brown. The World A. C. has been authorized by the controlling powers to use Griffith Stadium on that date.

Zachary in Rescue Act As Dodgers Beat Phils

Brooklyn, Aug. 1 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers evened their series with the Philadelphia Nationals today with a combination of smooth fielding and timely hitting. Casey Stengel's lads knicked Pitcher Phil Collins for 11 hits, to triumph 8 to 4.

Ray Benge got credit for Brooklyn's victory, although the veteran Tom Zachary had to rescue him in the ninth when the Phillies appeared to be getting dangerous.

Dead Heat Marks Kings Park Race

Montreal, Aug. 1 (AP).—One of racing's rarest happenings, a dead heat, occurred in the sixth race at Kings Park today when Huraway and Squeeze Play reached the finish line so close together that the judges could not pick a winner between them. Indian Dance was third in the mile race. Huraway, ridden by J. Passero, was held at $8.10 in the $2 mutuels and Squeeze Play, with Gibson up, at $5.00.

2 Ex-Champs Bow in Public Parks Golf

Kauffman and Miller Are Beaten; Campbell's Play Features.

SOUTH PARR, Pittsburgh, Aug. 1 (AP).—Turning back two opponents by decisive margins, Albert "Scotty" Campbell, the young Seattle golfing genius, today advanced with 15 fellow public links golfers into the third round of championship play in a day of torrid play that saw two former champions blasted out of the running.

Campbell, accompanied by his ever-present and helpful caddy and playing the same sparkling game that won him medalist honors in the 36-hole qualifying round, first eliminated Mike Cestone, of Newark, N. J., and then administered the same treatment to Byron Hunt, of Columbus, Ohio. Both went down by the same score, 5 and 3.

Kauffman Eliminated

The two former champions beaten were Karl Kauffmann, of Pittsburgh, only man ever to win the Public Links championship three times, and Bob Miller, of Jacksonville, Fla., the 1932 titleholder.

Kauffman lasted until the second round and then lost decisively to the smooth-stroking Lorraine Young, of San Antonio, Tex., 6 and 5. Miller failed to survive the first round, losing in the biggest upset of the day to J. C. Jewett, of Gary, Ind., 2 and 1.

Intent on bagging another title to go along with his Canadian amateur and Northwest amateur crowns, the 20-year-old Campbell, who works in a Seattle department store, was always on top of his game after getting away to a bad start with a 7 on the first hole of the day.

The Scotsman and his caddy, Ralph "Curly" Whittlesey, 25, who hitchhiked here from Seattle, were well satisfied with the way things were going.

Campbell Biggest Threat.

To almost everybody, Campbell appeared as the biggest threat to the championship now held by Charles Ferrera, the bronzed steel worker from San Francisco.

"Scotty," who counts "Curley" as the "best caddy ever," consulted with him frequently today as he did in previous play, and the result was perfect, a 2-under-par round in the morning and another 2-under in the afternoon for the 15 holes that each match lasted.

The Far Western contingent, of which the Los Angeles delegation already has annexed the team trophy for the second straight year, again was in the van as the thirteenth annual tournament of the public linksmen headed into the middle stages.

Other winners were Fred Gordon, of Santa Monica, who knocked John Lucas, of Sharon, Pa., out of the running, 3 and 2; J. M. Ross, Los Angeles, 3-and-2 conqueror of Warren Kingsbury, Buffalo; Bruce McCormick, Los Angeles, who defeated Frank Starafaci, Brooklyn, 1 up, and Clyde Mumma, of Dayton, Ohio, who defeated Wilbur Kokes, the Chicagoan, 4 and 3.

U. S. Aces See Long British Cup Reign

American Davis Players See English Holding Trophy for Years.

Lott Will Quit and "Let Some one Else Battle for Mug," He Says.

By Gayle Talbot.

LONDON, Aug. 1 (AP).—Take it from the United States Davis Cup team, which sails for home Saturday empty-handed, the chances of any nation taking the international tennis trophy away from England in the next few years are very slim indeed.

A poll of Sidney B. Wood, jr., Frank X. Shields, George M. Lott, jr., and Lester Rollo Stoefen, the American quartet which played grand tennis but could win only one match against the British in the challenge round, failed to reveal even the glimmer of a hope that Uncle Sam's present crop of players can turn the trick.

The problem simmered down to one question:

"How are you going to beat that fellow Fred Perry?"

Austin Is Good, Too.

Shields also interjected the remark that he'd "like to see the man who can beat Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin when he's playing for that cup."

Matters were not made any more cheerful when Lott, the "Rock of Gibraltar" of the last three teams, said he was through with cup play.

"This time next year," George said, "I'll be selling mining machinery and letting some one else try to lift the mug."

But in the next breath he said he might be back.

"Maybe I'll go into training for both singles and doubles." He said, "I've a hunch I can at least beat Austin." (Something no other American cup player has been able to do in the last three years of cup competition.)

Better British Doubles Likely.

On the other hand Great Britain is likely to have a really powerful doubles combination to assist its two singles aces.

The veteran Ian G. Collins and young Frank Herbert Davis Wilde impressed critics as a potentially great combination and probably would have been chosen for this year's team had not the cup committee, for sentimental reasons, decided to defend the cup for the first time with the same team that won it from the French.

Perry came in for a good deal of criticism for his histrionics during his match with Shields yesterday. Several times he glared at the linesmen when he thought they had made a wrong decision and at other times strutted around the court, his chest stuck out after a good shot.

D. C. Police Rally To Defeat Middies

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—A ninth-inning rally during which they put two runs across, enabled the baseball team of the Metropolitan Police of Washington to nose out the Second Class Midshipmen nine today, 7 to 6.

The Middies went into the lead at 6-4 in the first three innings and thereafter both teams put up a fine game, the Tars exhibiting their best work of the summer schedule with a victory over the strong Bluecoats looking certain.

The undoing in the ninth came about through a pass to Cloud and slashing singles by 'Gill and Wingate. Some heavy hitting marked the tilt, three homers and two triples featuring. Murphy twirled a strong game for the Coppers, fanning 13.

Impellettiere, Carnera Bout Planned

N. Y. Garden Would Stage "Battle of Giants" in October.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1 (U.P.).—Negotiations were opened today to match Primo Canera and Ray Impellettiere for a "battle of giants" at Madison Square Garden in October.

This bout between the world's two largest heavyweights would mark Carnera's first step along the come-back trail after losing the title to Maxie Baer on June 14. It would add another encounter of the elimination series to determine a challenger for Baer next summer.

Also, it would resurrect Impellettiere, the collosus of Cold Springs, N. Y., from the pugilistic graveyard to which he was virtually consigned after dropping decisions during the indoor season to fading Tommy Loughran and rising Walter Neusel.

"I think this bout will go through," Promoter Jimmy Johnston said today, after talking with

Ott Is Bat Hero As Giants Win Twin Bill

Gets Six Hits, Two Homers, as Braves Are Beaten, 11 to 2 and 10 to 3.

BOSTON, Aug. 1 (AP).—Mel Ott made his twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth home runs of the season and drove in seven runs today as the world champion New York Giants took a double-header from the Braves before a crowd of 14,000. The scores were 11 to 2 and 10 to 3.

Ott bagged both homers off Freddy Frankhouse in the second game. His stickwork dominated the two-game program. He made a single, double and triple in the opener and drove across four runs, scoring twice himself. In addition to his two homers in the second game, he doubled off Bobby Smith in the seventh and scored three times.

The Giants made a total of 30 hits, 16 in the first game and 14 in the nightcap. Hal Schumacher registered his sixteenth victory of the season in the second game and drove his fifth homer of the year into the left-field bleachers off Frankhouse in the second inning.

Ben Cantwell started on the mound for the Braves in the opening game and was nicked for four runs in the first frame.

Tigers Down Tribe, 10-7; Gain Lead

Trosky, Felled by Goslin's Drive, Recovers, Makes Fourth Hit.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 1 (AP). Pounding three Cleveland pitchers for 17 hits, the Detroit Tigers today regained first place in the tight American League race by trouncing the Indians, 10 to 7, as Boston defeated New York.

Hal Trosky, the Indians' star young first baseman, was knocked unconscious in the eighth inning when he was struck in the head by Goose Goslin's double. He recovered and remained in the game, however, and next time at bat connected with a double for his fourth hit. He previously had knocked a home run, as had Owen, Detroit third baseman.

Tigers Begin Early.

The Tigers opened an early attack, scoring three runs in the second on singles by Rogell, Greenberg, Hamlin and Cochrane, along with a balk by Hudlin. They added two more in the fourth on a single by Fox, a double by White and Hamlin's sacrifice. In the fifth came hits by Gehringer and Rogell for another run, a double play clearing the bases before Owen hit his homer. The Tigers nicked Belve Bean for three hits and another run in the sixth, and in the eighth made their three hits off Hildebrand count for two runs.

The Indians loaded the bases in the ninth with one out, but Manager Mickey Cochrane quickly jerked Phillips and sent in Linwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, who fanned Trosky and Hale to end the game.

Today's victory gave the Tigers two out of three in the current series, and left the Indians six and one-half games out of first place.

Reds Come From Rear To Nose Out Bucs, 7-6

Cincinnati, Aug. 1 (AP).—Trailing by four runs, the Cincinnati Reds responded to commands to hustle by rallying to squeeze out the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7 to 6, today.

Hafey's fourteenth home run of the season proved to be the winning margin, though it came before a sixth-inning bunching of four singles and an error that routed two pitchers and netted four runs. It was Derringer's ball game, though he granted 11 hits for all six Pirate runs before being replaced by a pinch-hitter in the sixth.

New Deal Comes From Far Back to Win Hawthorne Sprint Feature by Length

Stretch Rush Decides for 5-1 Shot

Jockey Haas Times His Move Perfectly; Entry Second and Third.

Place to Bien Fait With Blessed Event Next Under the Wire.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1 (AP).—Coming from far back in the Maywood Handicap, J. W. Parrish's New Deal triumphed in the 6½-furlong feature event by one length at Hawthorne today.

Finishes With Rush.

New Deal, on the outside, came with a rush and passed Bien Fait in the last sixteenth.

New Deal paid $12.54 in the mutuels and ran the distance in 1:18 4-5.

Saratoga Race Track, Aug. 1 (AP). Observant, black 3-year-old in the Morton L. Schwartz Barn that recently won his only start of the year in promising fashion at Empire City, came right back to win the fifth running of the Wilson in commanding style here today. Perfectly ridden by Silvio Coucci, the son of On Watch sped past the finish line three lengths in advance of Mrs. Deering Howe's Only One. The latter beat William Woodward's Faireno by two lengths for secondary honors. Observant, held at 2 to 1, ran the 1 mile in 1:37 3-5.

Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Singing Wood, 9-to-5 choice, again proved a disappointment. The Withers winner was outrun and finally wound up an ignominious last in the field of five.

An attractive program and perfect weather drew a crowd larger than the previous day.

Mangus Leads Hitters In Interstate League

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.). While the leading hitters fell into a batting slump during the past two weeks, Johnny Mangus, tall infielder-outfielder of the B. & O. Railroad nine, continued to blast the offerings of opposing twirlers to all corner of the lot and latest averages of the Interstate League show that he is exactly three points in the rear of the pace setter, Sam Rainey, with an average of .377 in 69 trips to the plate. Within two weeks Rainey's average shrunk from .433 to the present .380 mark, while Joe Buskey lost 40 points and dropped from .406 to .366 as he fell from the runner-up berth to third place back of Mangus and "Vic" May who are tied at .377.

The slump in batting, however, failed to prevent Buskey from stealing bases and the P. E. leader now leads in that department with a total of 14.

Buskey also leads in two-baggers with a total of 10, Sam Rainey heads the three-base swatters with 5 and Pete Horworth, home runs, with 4.

Virginia Seeks Own A. A. U. Group

Dr. Parker, of Richmond, Leads Secession Move From South Atlantic.

RICHMOND, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Dr. William H. Parker, A. A. U. commissioner for Virginia, today announced that he is working on plans to cut loose from the parent South Atlantic A. A. U. group and form a Virginia unit of the National Amateur Association. At the same time, he said that amateur boxing has gained a firm foothold in Virginia and that he believes the sport will prosper more than ever, once the excitement over the pros dies down.

He will call a meeting in Richmond within 10 days he said to discuss the State group. Forming a Virginia unit of the A. A. U. will permit stricter regulation, will mean a more easily handled body, and should produce more interest.

Closely-knit Units.

"Right now, we have fine working units in Lynchburg, Roanoke, Danville, Alta Vista, Crewe, Petersburg and Hopewell," he pointed out. "We have five A. A. U. groups in Richmond. We want to band them closely together and then promote amateur boxing more than ever. I am confident that we can really put it across."

The South Atlantic A. A. U. governing body has already sanctioned the move, he said, and if the State unit is formed the final decision on cutting loose from Baltimore headquarters will come from the National meeting scheduled for November in Miami.

Cumberland Valley Net Plans Completed

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.). Plans have been completed for the first annual Cumberland Valley Tennis Tournament, which is expected to bring some of the leading players in the valley here. The tournament will open August 9, with entries being received for men's and women's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles. A junior division for boys and girls under 16 years will be a feature.

In the senior divisions, there will be three events, matches for the city champion, county champion, with the winners to compete for the Cumberland Valley title.

The committee to decide upon eligibility is E. H. Lightner, Leslie Gardner, Robert Beyard and H. E. McFaddin, while Stewart C. Paxton is director of the tournament, and Leslie Young and William Orrick umpires.

Point of Rocks Wins.

Middletown, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Point of Rocks set back Middletown in the Tri-County League, 9 to 2. Scally, who relieved Heater in the first inning, held Middletown to four hits and one run the remainder of the game. Both teams made one run in the first frame. Point of Rocks came back in the second session and put across two which clinched the fray. The victory put Point of Rocks in second place in the southern division pennant race.

D. C. Linksmen In Bedford Tourney

Amateur-Pro Play This Week-end Attracts Capital's Best Golfers.

A FORMIDABLE array of professional and amateur golfers from Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia will compete Sunday and Monday in the pro-amateur and professional tournament at Bedford Springs.

With the District kingpin, Al Houghton, unable to defend the title he won last year at Bedford Springs because he will enter the "Walter Hagen Open" at Rochester, the Capital is pinning its hopes on such pros as Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase; Gene Larkin, Woodmont; George Diffenbaugh, Indian Spring; Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam; Al Treder, Manor; Roland Mackenzie, Congressional; Fred McLeod, Columbia; Mel Shorey, East Potomac, and Walter Cunningham, Burning Tree.

Accompanying the pros to Bedford Springs will be a number of amateur stars. Martin F. McCarthy, the Beaver Dam fusileer, who was low amateur last year; Roger Peacock, Indian Spring; Maury Nee, of Columbia; Maury Fitzgerald, Kenwood, and Harry Pitt, of Manor, are expected to head the simon-pure contingent. The pro-amateur will be held Sunday and will be followed on Monday by the 36-hole open event in which the amateurs also will participate.

Baltimore Represented.

Baltimore pros entered are Bill Scott, Baltimore Country Club; Bill Schrieber, Clifton Park; Carol T. MacMaster, Hillendale; Glenn Spencer, Maryland Country Club; Charlie Betschler, Rodgers Forge; Ralph Beach, Suburban; Warner Mather, Woodholme, and Alex Taylor, Rolling Road. Leo Colliflower, of Frederick and Ralph McKimmie and Bob Diffendal, of Hargerstown, also are entrants. The prize awards total $350.

After coming within a hot breath of achieving it numerous times in his golfing career, H. D. Higley, jr., young son of Col. H. D. Higley, stepped up to the seventeenth tee yesterday at Army and Navy Country Club and whacked a full mashie shot into the cup for a hole in 1 in full view of his dad and Gen. R. C. Rhodes. The ball dropped 2 feet from the pin and trickled in. The hole measures 157 yards.

Dr. J. G. Riley, of Indian Spring, is a happy man. He is happy because he emerged from the class of ordinary golfers to that of the stars. Dr. Riley scored a 35—37—72, 1 above par, yesterday, at Indian Spring, thereby clipping 9 strokes off his previous best score. His handicap also underwent a neat operation. Harry Bachman, John G. Taylor and Willis Hurd, sr., watched Dr. Riley bang out 13 pars and 1 birdie.

"Kid" Groves on Air.

Harry ("Kid") Groves, manager and trainer of Washington's largest stable of boxers, tonight will be the guest speaker over Station WOL's weekly sports broadcast at 8 o'clock.

Groves will discuss the local boxing situation generally and also the proper training and conditioning of boxers and athletes.

Hawthorne Race Track, Aug. 1.

Dear Al:

The dog days are here and it is not my fault if you get bit. I have warned you about the antics of these gee gees. There's nothing left that could earn oats elsewhere. The cream of the horses and jocks pulled out for the East at the close of Arlington Park.

Mike got in bad today on account of that Arlington owners' badge that he was sporting. There would have been no real trouble had it not been for the fact that he insisted to a new-found friend that he had a long shot that was a cinch if he could only slow the track up a bit. The sprinkling cart man had agreed to do the work for a ten spot. Well, both Mike and the sprinkler failed to show, but the cop located Mike later. He had his clocker credentials, but no watch, which naturally made it worse. For Bill's sake only, I'll go down tonight and try to square matters. Bill postcards he is catching a lot of fish. If he cares for suckers, here's the place. Yours, JOE.

Third race—More candidates for the glue factory. None have any excuse for winning. Jester B, Stormy B and Impunity is as good a guess as any.

Fourth race—I prefer Allens, followed by Black Joe and Celtic Prince.

Eighth race—Going to stick to Simon, even though simple, and for place and show, Crowned Head and Captain Danger may reward.

Klein in Hospital.

Chicago, Aug. 1 (AP).—Chuck Klein, star outfielder of the Chicago Cubs, was taken to the Illinois Masonic Hospital today for treatment for a muscle injury of his right thigh, which has been bothering him for some time.

Manager Charlie Grimm said that Klein probably would remain in the hospital a week.

Chinese Empress Lands $5,000 Feature From Red Wagon.

NARRAGANSETT PARK, Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 1 (AP).—A. Bartelstein's 3-year-old Chinese Empress beat out Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's chestnut gelding, Red Wagon, by a head in a stirring stretch duel today to capture the added 6-furlong Narragansett Handicap, inaugural feature of this new addition to the New England turf. Thirty-seven thousand attended.

Trumpery Fails to Last.

Chinese Empress earned $3,965 by her stirring victory and she rewarded her supporters with $9.40, $5.50 and $3.10 for $2 mutuels tickets.

The secondary feature, the $1,000 5½-furlong sprint for 2-year-olds, went to the Green Tree Stable's gelding, Currants, by a neck, with M. Madden's High Image placing three lengths ahead of the favorite.

Royal Blunder Makes No Mistakes at Detroit

Detroit, Aug. 1 (AP).—Royal Blunder surprised the talent by leading all the way to carry the silks of T. Donley home in front today in the $1,200 George Olsen Handicap, run as the sixth race at the Detroit Fair Grounds tracks.

Pennocte, a filly, finished second in the mile event, two lengths behind the winner, with Our Count third. Straight tickets on Royal Blunder were worth $14.40.

It was the first triumph for the long-shot players after the first race, which Last Time won to pay the handsome price of $22.40

Idea Absurd, Mackenzie Opines

McLeod, Tredor, Barnett Others Against Suggested Change.

By Dave Herman.

DISTRICT golf professionals are not in sympathy with Uncle Charley Hall's suggestion that putts be counted as half strokes and virtually everyone asked for an opinion has branded it as "silly, absurd and illogical."

Uncle Charley, the garrulous Birmingham, Ala., pro, former National P. G. A. president, wants to eliminate the "lucky putt" in golf with a revaluation of putts on a half-stroke basis, but Washington's paid clan thinks he has as much chance of having it officially adopted as Hitler has of becoming president of Palestine.

Roland Mackenzie, former Walker Cup star, now pro at Congressional, calls Hall's plan "an utter absurdity," claiming that the second shots, not the putts, are causing the boys most trouble in golf these days.

"Putting is just one part of the game," Mackenzie declared. "Why give a fellow a half stroke on the green and permit his drive, second shot or approach to count as one shot," he asked.

Continuing Mackenzie said:

Had Runyan, Wood in Mind?

"I think Hall has Paul Runyan and Craig Wood in mind when he talks of revolutionizing the scoring. Wood is great to the green, but then his trouble begins. Runyan, not as good as Wood with his drives, but a great approach player, is deadly with his putter. You know Runyan has achieved most of his victories on courses perfectly adapted to his game. But at Merion, which was tightly trapped, he faltered. It was the fellow who could play from tee to green who won—Dutra. Sarazen, Cox, Mac Smith, Cruickshank were the 'tee-to-green' stars who finished in the money."

"Hall's plan is a blast similar to that of Gene Sarazen's 'brain child' —the 8-inch cup," Fred McLeod, Columbia's diminutive pro, said.

"You saw how quickly Sarazen's idea collapsed after a thorough testing," McLeod added. "There's no sense in the half-stroke putt, and I don't think it's practical."

"Leave well enough alone," Al Treder, the sphinx-like Manor tutor, stated. "Hess trying to place a premium on putting, eh? Well, if he does, then I'll use my putter from the edge of the green for a half-stroke instead of my chipper. It's nonsense."

"Screwy," Says Diffenbaugh.

Says George Diffenbaugh, Indian Spring pro:

"The idea sounds screwy to me. Putting is an art in itself, I will agree, but it's just one of the many beautiful features of golf. I realize he has in mind the crack player who plays two fine shots to the green only to three-putt and lose the hole to the ordinary golfer who strays all over the course and finally gets down a lucky putt. But, did Hall ever think that the picture could be just the reverse? I'm opposed to the plan because it is so unsound."

"I can't see it," Dave Thomson, wee Scot at Washington Golf and Country Club, barked. "There's no reason why we should start counting strokes in fractions. Putting is as much a game of skill as driving, approaching and trap-blasting. Why should we differentiate?"

Bob Barnett, of Chevy Chase, former Middle Atlantic P. G. A. pro, considers the plan much the bunk. He thinks Hall is out of tune in his suggestion, jokingly saying he would be better off had he proposed a stroke and one-half for each putt.

Both Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam pro, and Tony Sylvester, of Bannockburn, said that putts usually cause the downfall of your star golfers, but can see no sense in counting each putt a half stroke. "The game is complicated enough as it is," Spencer said. "Why make it more so?"

Shepherd Grid Team Added to G. W. List

A ten-game schedule for George Washington's football huskies was completed yesterday when Shepherd College, of Shepherdstown, W. Va., accepted the terms of Mar Farrington, assistant athletic director at G. W., for a contest to be played either September 28 or 29 at Griffith Stadium. The game will open the Colonials' season and if played on the 28th will be a night attraction.

George Washington's 1934 campaign is the first ten-game array a local team has faced since Georgetown waded through a like schedule in 1926. It is, without a doubt, the toughest schedule George Washington has ever contemplated and is probably as difficult as that faced by any team in the East. The Shepherd game will be a primer for the tough Denver battle the following week, and with the exception of the game with Citadel, October, 12, is the only "breather" on the program. Tulsa, Wake Forest, Vanderbilt, Louisiana State, North Dakota, Oklahoma and West Virginia complete the schedule.

Playground Swimming Champions Rewarded

Gill Dejected At Return to Lookouts

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Johnny Gill, the out- who was released outright to Chattanooga to make room on the Washington roster for First Baseman Pete Susko, was a picture of dejection when informed of the change today by Manager Joe Cronin. Gill is going back to the minors convinced that he didn't have a fair chance of demonstrating his value to the team, though he realizes that cirumstances made it impsossible for the club to retain him.

But Johnny is still far from being a major leaguer in the mind of Cronin and the majority of baseball writers who watched him hobble around the field.

He ran with a hesitating gallop that left the impression that he had a bad ankle. He was none too accurate judging fly balls, and not infrequently during his short stay with the team was guilty of errors that were directly responsible for enemy runs.

Weak on Outside Balls.

Gill showed great promise at bat during his first few days in a Nat uniform—particularly in Chicago where he knocked one home run and missed several more by a mere matter of inches. But he was a sucker for an outside ball and that is what he was getting—nothing else—here in Philadelphia. The word evidently had gone around that Johnny could not reach over and belt them.

Susko resembles Walter Stewart in a baseball uniform. He bats and throws from the wrong side—gets around the bag fairly decently and apparently knows why they make bats. His acquisition means a much-needed rest for Luke Sewell, who also will be available for pinch-hitting and ready to take his old position behind the plate when and if Cliff Bolton falters.

Another chap needing a rest but unable to get it is Cecil Travis. The 20-year-old third baseman has done well enough thus far, but the strain of his first season in the big show is beginning to tell on him.

Berg Gets Break, Too.

The Nats were cheered to hear that Moe Berg had signed with Cleveland as a result of Myatt's fractured ankle. It was a break for Moe, too.

Washington's first batter in the first four innings of today's game walked. Buddy Myer got three of them, and still another later in the afternoon.

The A's have a squad of sandlotters working out each afternoon before the game under Bing Miller's direction, hoping to uncover some worth while material. The Phillies —using the same scheme—have looked over more than 300 youngsters already with negative results.

Two Players Injured As Tide Water Wins

Alexandria, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—The Tide Water il Co. came to life today to win its first game in the Commercial League at the expense of the Carter Motor Co., 5 to 3.

The score was 1-all until the sixth, when Tide Water scored three runs. In Carter Motor's half of the game, they put two runs across the plate. Two casualties occurred in the game, Jimmy Bry breaking his finger reaching for a foul ball and Johnny Beck sustaining a possible fracture of the left arm when he was hit by a pitched ball.

Londos-George Draw.

both managers. "And I think it will pack the Garden. Fans like to see big fellows in action. Well, you can't get them any bigger. Carnera stands 6 foot 6, and Impellettiere, 6 foot 7½. Each weighs about 260 pounds. It's a natural from every angle."

The heavyweight elimination series will work out as follows: Walter Neusel and Max Schmeling are slated to fight in Germany late this month. Art Lasky and Steve Hamas will meet in New York on September 27. Winners of those two bouts will meet in New York in Noember, and the survivor will meet the winner of the Carnera-Impelletiere encounter in New York in January. The victor will challenge Baer for the title.

White Sox Take Two From Brownies

St. Louis, Aug. 1 (AP).—The tail-end White Sox took both games of today's double-header from the Browns, winning the second 4 to 2 in the tenth inning when Bonura hit a home run with Hopkins on base.

The first game, a wild slugfest in which the locals collected 13 hits and the visitors 15, went to Chicago, 10 to 6.

Rogers Hornsby made a drastic shake-up in his batting order in the second contest in a vain effort to get a winning punch. Positions of eight of the nine batters were changed.

Four St. Louis pitchers saw service in the initial game, three in the second.

Paul Dean Wins For Cards, 4 to 0

Allows Cubs 5 Hits in Box Duel With Jim Weaver.

Chicago, Aug. 1 (AP).—Paul Dean outlasted Jim Weaver in a brilliant pitching duel today to win a shut-out victory for St. Louis over the Cubs, 4 to 0, and even the series at one-all.

The younger of the Dean brothers allowed five hits, no two of them in the same inning; walked one and fanned seven in chalking up his season's twelfth victory and his second shut-out.

Backed by flawless support, Weaver matched Dean's scoreless pace for seven innings, allowing only two singles in that time, but the 6-foot-6 behemoth weakened after two were out in the eighth and consecutive singles by Martin, Rothrock, Frisch and Medwick followed by a pass scored three of the runs. When Weaver wild pitched the fourth run over, he was relieved by Guy Bush, who restored order.

Rosedale Girls Are Swim Victors

Win All but Beginners' Class Honors in Playgrounds Meet.

THE first of the sectional swimming meets in the annual Department of Playgrounds aquatic program for girls was held yesterday at the Rosedale pool and some excellent performances were made. The Rosedale lassies almost scooped the entire show, carrying everything before them except in the events for beginners.

Girls of the Western section of the city will compete this afternoon in the Georgetown pool, and tomorrow maidens of the mid-city area will line up in the Monument pool.

Qualify for City Meet.

The first three girls in each event in the divisional trials will take part in the city meet on August 10 in the Monument pool, all the meets starting at 2:30.

Results:

Beginners' Class.

Ten years and under, 10 yards, free style—Won by Helen Johnson, Rosedale; second, Edith Warren, Rosedale; third, Alberta Smith, Rosedale.

Over 10 years, 10 yards, free style—Won by Peggy Lemerise, New York Avenue; second, Violet Higgs, Rosedale; third, Kitty McCambridge, New York Avenue.

Balloon race, 10 years and under—Won by Rose Nicholson, Rosedale; second, Edith Warren; third, tie between Helen Johnson and Betty Hammer, Rosedale.

Open Class.

(All places won by Rosedale.)

10 to 12 years, 25 yards, free style—Won by Marjorie Cox; second, Gloria Warren; third, Margaret Cook.

10 to 12 years, 25 yards, side stroke—Won by Margaret Cook; second, Margaret Cox; third, tie between Gloria Warren and Grace Petrie.

Nats Triumph

But the A's also had several home runs stored up in the bats of Rog Cramer, who smacked two, and Frankie Higgins. Two of these were delivered in the first inning and tied the count at 3-all. One, Higgins', was a fluky drive within the park that should have been no better than a single. Schulte merely played the ball wrong and it bounded past him.

Flohr was wobbly at the start and passed Myer and Susko to begin the game. Manush sacrificed and Cronin singled both runners home. After Travis and Bolton beat out infield hits, and Flohr passed Kress to force over the third run.

Myer opened the second inning with the second of his four walks, and several minutes later Susko bounced one over the right field wall for two more runs. Manush followed with a drive to the same spot, the sixth run in two innings.

Cramer Socks Homer.

Meanwhile the Macks were busy doing little scoring themselves. Cramer, first man up, belted a home run over the short right field barrier to start. Warstler and Johnson were retired, but Fox singled down the left field line and was followed by Higgins who tapped his single to center and got a home run for his efforts.

McNair opened the second with a double and Berry singled, McNair stopping at third. Weaver got the next two out, but Susko was unable to handle Warstler's hard drive on the line, McNair scoring, and when Johnson pulled a single to left Berry came over with another run.

Although they did not realize it at the time, the Nats clinched the ball game in the sixth with another brace of runs, scoring both with two out. Singles by Manush and Schulte, with a pass to Cronin and two errors by Warstler on Travis' easy ground ball, brought the runs over.

Schulte scored in the eighth, propelled around by singles off the bats of Bolton and Travis, and the erohus joined in to make a couple more in the ninth.

Jack Russell, who replaced Weaver in the seventh after Weaver had pitched a second homer to Cramer and walked Warstler, held the Mackmen well in check and coasted in with the verdict—so they gave credit to Weaver.

Szabo Seeking Title Claim Tonight

Can Horn Into Championship Picture by Beating Ed (Don) George.

By Frank H. Young.

DID you ever hear of a fellow taking the medical course at college and graduating as a mechanical engineer? Neither have we, but the case of Ed (Don) George, who performs on the mat at Griffith Stadium in tonight's feature with Sandor Szabo is somewhat similar. George took the football course at dear old Michigan and came out a rassler. And that he is a good rassler is indicated by the rapid strides to the top he has made in this queer profession.

Right now, George is recognized as world champion in Canada and in the New England States and the only other grappler who has any claims is Jim Londos, who recently added Jim Browning's claims to his own. George first drew with Browning and later with Londos and so comes here to meet Sandor Szabo at Griffith Stadium tonight with an honest claim to the crown.

George's Hungarian opponent is far from being a set-up and should furnish some keen competition. Should he throw George, he could horn into the title-claiming picture, so he may be expected to do his darndest to extend himself.

Tough Hombre.

George is as modern as tomorrow's flapper in his mat style. He is a flying tackler, a thor-hammerer and a generally rough hombre. He absorbs punishment like feet in a tight pair of shoes and doles it out in large and copious proportions.

Szabo is another who is fast and rough and usually stays on his feet, which means that one of those rough and tumble affairs which the fans crave may be counted upon.

The Post Sandlotter

THE decision of the majority of league officials to rotate the schedules despite last Sunday's unplayed contests brings to the sandlot fans a fresh set of 32 games, which have a more intimate bearing on The Post Association titles in the several Sunday leagues.

Tony Burruto's Blue Flame team encounters another high hurdle in its second-half pennant race in the Dor-A, which also has serious designs on the National City title.

The undefeated Middleburg Club in the Northern Virginia loop and Benning A. C. in the Prince Georges League can virtually clinch the pennants in their respective leagues by extending their winning streaks one more game.

Schedule Holds Over.

The District Independent League's schedule of last Sunday remains unchanged. President Lawrence is anxious to settle the second-half fight as soon as possible and the impending battle for first place Sunday between Grace A. C. and Mount Rainer C:ays will be an important factor in determining the ultimate winner, according to V. M. Lawrence, president of the District loop.

Since crucial games bring out the maximum abilities of the players, Sunday's contests will be closely scouted in an effort to uncover some young ball players who may find an opportunity for a professional career in The Post Association's contest for the outstanding sand lot player. The lucky player chosen will receive a thorough trial in company with the Washington Club in its training period in the Southland next spring.

Burton Shipley's College Park team faces Beltsville and the Animal Husbandry in an attractive double-header Saturday at the University of Maryland Stadium as competition for The Post Association title in the Maryland Suburban League is resumed. The first game will start at 2 o'clock.

Only Three Teams Left.

The withdrawal of the Hyattsville and Berwyn nines reduced the number of teams in the Maryland League to three, but each of these entertain fond hopes of winning the league championship and representing the Suburban Loop in The Post Association's play-off series the middle of this month. Thus every game takes on the aspect of a championship battle.

At the present time, all the teams are in deadlock. Each has won one game and lost one.

Shipley is banking on Fred Thomas, Waverly Wheeler, and Dick Nelson, who will be playing under his charge with the Maryland University baseball team next season. Beltsville is pinning its hopes on its moundmen, Rice, who is expected to bear most of the hurling responsibilities. "Skip" Faber, former U. of Maryland athlete, is the chief reliance of the Husbandry Club in its fight for Post Association honors.

Beltsville will play host on August 11, meeting College park and Husbandry in a twin-bill on its home diamond. Animal Husbandry entertains Beltsville and College Park on the succeeding week-end in the concluding series.

Virginia White Sox will play the Aztec A. C. in Sunday's baseball attraction on the Baileys Crossroads diamond. Morris Williams, as usual, will be on the firing line for the Sox.

Any team that is in need of a keystone combination should communicate with John Gorman at District 1525.

The Washington All-Stars, comprising high school players from The Post Association teams, will make their debut Saturday against the Fredericksburg Elks at Fredericksburg, Va. In Jimmy Corcoran, Phil Boundford, Eddie Loveless, Huck Wynne, Joe Crisfull, Howdy Preston, Chic Darr, Tom Boggs, Art Lacey and Harry Bohnke, Manager R. L. Ganes believes he has one of the strongest young teams in this section of the country.

The Alexandria Eagles will be played on August 11 at Alexandria. Annapolis A. C., Heurich Brewers, Ballston A. C., Majestic Radio and the St. Mary's Celtics have also been scheduled.

The Manor Park Athletic Club is anxious to book a game with a strong junior team for Saturday and Sunday. Phone Georgia 2550.

Stocks Rally As Commodity Prices Mount

Technical Influences Also Aid Rises; Trading, 778,770 Shares.

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Stocks joined commodities in an advance today, although bullish exuberance in security markets was restrained.

Brokers attributed strength in stocks chiefly to technical influences. The bouyant tone of grains helped to stir up speculative interest in other markets.

Many gains of 1 to 4 points were scored by active stocks on the extension of the recovery from last week's low levels. Metals, rails, food, steel, packing and motor shares scored substantial advances. The character of some of the stocks most in demand indicated that traders were flirting with the inflation idea again.

Stocks Up 2.2 Points.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks rose 2.2 points to 71.1. Volume expanded moderately on the upturn but totaled only 778,770 shares compared with 593,600 yesterday.

Armour of Illinois preferred spurted 6 points. Wilson A gained 2½ points and the preferred more than 3 points. Strength in raw sugar attracted attention to sugar issues. Cuban-American preferred expanded its rally 4 points and American Sugar jumped 2¾.

Farm shares were stimulated by the action of grains. J. I. Case rose 2 points and International Harvester, Sears Roebuck and Deere were up more than a point. U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco and other metal issues moved forward 1 to about 4 points.

Rise Is Explained.

Most of these issues were severely depressed on last week's decline and their snap on the advance was ascribed in part to improvement in their technical position resulting from the break.

U. S. Steel, General Motors, American Can, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Santa Fe, American Telephone, New York Central and other old-line leaders picked up gains of more than a point.

Rising commodity prices, especially in the food section, were the focus of interest in financial quarters in the absence of any decisive new developments abroad or in the domestic business situation.

Earnings on Steel.

U. S. Steel second quarter report, showing the first earnings for the preferred stock since 1931, was better than had been expected generally. However, other steel news was somewhat discouraging, the Iron Age reported steel operations had declined 1½ points to 26 per cent of capactiy and described current backlogs of the mills as "extraordinarily small."

Weekly electric power figures showed another gain, returning the total almost to the 1934 peak, and the gain over 1933 widened to 1.3 per cent compared with six-tenths of 1 per cent the preceding week.

Business commentators continued to stress the problem of rising costs. The upward tendency of commodity prices lent emphasis to their point, accounting in part for the restraint manifest in the stock market.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

One Reason for Present Business Uncertainty Is the Constant Offering of Plans Such as the "Decentralization of Industry."

By Ralph West Robey.

If Administration leaders seriously are interested in the reasons business men are hesitant about making plans for the future they should watch some of the dispatches going out of Washington. One day this week, for example, newspapers carried a long story stating "President Roosevelt has informed officials that after he returns to Washington he intends to call a conference of leading industrialists to discuss plans the President has long cherished for the decentralization of industry." The report, it may be assumed, is true. That, and the undoubted propriety of its being sent out, are beside the point. The important thing is that such promises of continued industrial turmoil necessarily are disturbing to business leaders.

In the first place, "decentralization of industry" can mean almost anything. It might involve nothing more than encouraging new plants to be located outside of the more congested centers. In this case it would be a slow, almost imperceptible, process. It would take decades and even generations to make any serious inroads on the existing distribution of industry. In the meantime the business structure would not be seriously disrupted.

"Decentralization" May Mean Rapid Movement of Industry.

On the other hand, "decentralization of industry" can just as well mean a program that will be vigorously pushed by the Administration. The Government may virtually force industries to change their location by offering what in effect are bribes and subsidies for those that do move. In this case the process would be rapid. Competitive conditions would be materially altered. Labor markets would be reshuffled. The whole industrial set-up of the country would be subjected to more or less violent flux.

The effects of such a change, too, would be felt far beyond the field of the industries immediately effected. Real estate values would be subjected to changed demands. In some places, property would become a glut on the market. Tenants would be taken away wholesale. At other places there would be suddenly increased demands because of the inflow of the new population. All of this in turn would affect the portfolios of our banks, our insurance companies, our savings institutions, our building and loan associations. Loans that at present are good, because the property upon which they are based is constantly occupied, would become under-collateralled. They would have to be charged off as losses.

Whether It Would Be Desirable Is Quite a Different Question.

All of this, it should be emphasized, is over and above the question of the desirability of having a "decentralization of industry." On the whole, it seems to me, there is little question that many people would be benefited if industry were not so concentrated in populous centers. Living conditions could be better, and, as Mr. Harriman, of the United States Chamber of Commerce says, this would "do much to bring social security." But the problem is much larger than this.

In a word, the problem is something like deciding that the southern tip of Manhattan Island should be converted into a summer resort. It would be perfect for this purpose. But no one would suggest it as a feasible idea. And for the same reasons an extensive decentralization of industry overnight is not a feasible idea. It simply can not be done on a grandiose scale. To hold it over the heads of our business leaders at this time merely adds another element of uncertainty and makes them all the more hesitant to develop plans for the future.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Quotations on the stock exchange today registered a fair recovery despite the unfavorable European situation and President Hindenburg's illness. Gilt-edged securities, transatlantic issues, gold mining and rubber shares improved, while German and Austrian bonds were weak. The market closed quietly and steady.

Paris—Fear of troubles in Germany in the event of President von Hindenburg's death and continued liquidation depressed prices on the bourse today. Only oil shares and gold mining issues were firm. The closing was heavy. The bourse will be closed tomorrow in observance of the funeral of Marshal Lyautey, of Morocco.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse opened dull and lower today, but later developed strength on some repurchases. The closing was firm.

Bond Market Recovers in Heavier Sales

Secondary Loans in Lead as Trading Jumps to $10,470,000.

New York, August 1 (AP).—Secondary loans led a modest recovery in today's bond market, which, apparently, reflected the upturn in stocks.

While the trading volume was larger than that of the preceding session, it was still considerably below normal. Transfers totaled $10,470,000, par value, compared with $8,241,000 yesterday.

Low-Priced Loans.

Although the lower priced groups were in fair demand, prime investment loans were either at a standstill or slightly lower. United States Government securities continued to sag, but the turnover in this section amounted to only about $3,410,000.

The easiness of the Federals, most of which were off one-thirty-second to six-thirty-seconds of a point, was attributed by some dealers partly to the small volume of bids entered on today's offering of Treasury bills.

Rails gave the best average performance in the corporation division. Carriers gainers of fractions to around a point or so included some issues of Atlantic Coast Line, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corp., Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Erie, Great Northern, Lehigh, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Southern and Union Pacific.

Industrials and Utilities.

Among some of the better industrials and utilities were Warner Bros. 6s, up 2½ at 55½; Vanadium 5s, up 1 at 81; Utilities Power & Light 5½s and 5s, up ½ and 3 at 29 and 26, respectively; Remington Rand 5½s, up 1⅛ at 91⅛; Postal Telegraph 5s, up 1⅛ at 44¼; Paramount Publix 5½s, up 3¼ at 42¼; Loew's 6s, up 2 at 100; International Telephone 5s, up 1¼ at 59¼; International Paper 6s, up 2½ at 53½, and Columbia Gas 5s of 1961, up 1⅜ at 83⅜.

Strength of the Argentines was the feature of the foreign list. All of this republic's bonds advanced 2 to more than 4 points to within shooting distance of their year's highs.

Some of the Colombian and Latauro Nitrate loans were up a point or more. German obligations were quiet and a trifle easier.

Curb's Prices Driven Higher In Dull Session

Specialty List Leads Gains as Sales Mount to 133,000 Shares.

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Curb prices were subsbtantially higher at the close today despite continued dullness. Sharp gains were recorded in the specialty list. Alcohols, oils, metals and utilities generally finished fractions to more than a point up.

The trend pointed higher from the start. After leveling off around noon the slow upturn was resumed in the afternoon, and final quotations were around the day's best.

Fajardo Sugar staged another one of its rapid climbs on small volume, rising 13½ points to 103½. Gains of around 2 to 3 points were recorded by Aluminum Co. of America, Columbia Gas & Electric preferred, Humble Oil, General Tire & Rubber, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Hiram Walker, Parker Rust Proof and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore.

Electric Bond & Share, Pioneer Gold and Standard Oil of Indiana were restricted to fractional improvement, while American Cyanamid B, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Lake Shore, Swift & Co., and Standard Oil of Ohio firmed around a point each.

Wool Market.

Boston, Aug. 1 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agri). Business was very dull on most lines of greasy domestic wool. An occasional sale was closed in Ohio and similar fleeces. Fine Ohio delaine and strictly combing 64s and finer fleeces brought around 30 cents in the grease, or 75@77 cents scoured basis for small quantities. The shorter combing fleeces out of similar quality clips were sold at around 26 cents in the grease, or 70@72 cents scoured basis.

Goods Markets.

New York, Aug. 1 (A.P.).—Finished cottons were in light demand today. Second hands were offering print cloths at ⅛ cents off without takers. Spots of 80 squares sold at 9 cents. Raron producers opened their books for September business. They are comfortably sold ahead for August on a restricted output. Cutters bought small lots of dress goods and coatings. There were inquiries for men's wear in tweed weaves. Burlaps were quiet and steady.

Chicago Egg Futures.

A. & P. Stores Vote 25 Cents Extra Dividend

Engineers Public Service Income for Year Cut to $17,831,109.

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Directors of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. today declared the usual extra dividend of 25 cents a share and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the common stock. The regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred also was ordered, all payable September 1, to stock of record August 7.

The Engineers Public Service Co. reported for the 12 months ended June 30 consolidated net operating revenue of $17,831,109, compared with $19,397,439 in the previous 12 months. The balance for preferred stock amounted to $833,718 against $3,003,132 in the preceding 12 months. Preferred dividend requirements total $2,323,526, which the latest earnings did not cover.

Royal Typewriter Co. reports for the first six months net profit of $476,156 after charges, taxes, &c., compared with a net loss of $137,331 in the same period a year ago.

Commercial Credit Co. earned 97 cents a share on its common stock in the second quarter, compared with 16 cents in the same quarter a year ago, the company announced today. Net income applicable to the common in the first six months was equal to $1.72 a share, the announcement said. Net income credited to earned surplus after all charges was $1,293,581 in the June quarter, compared with $1,085,985 in the March quarter.

Melville Shoe Corporation and subsidiaries report consolidated net income in the first six months of $1,074,402, equal, after preferred dividends to $2.69 a share on the common stock. This compares with $465,823, or $1.04 a share in the first six months of 1933.

Bon Ami Co. had net profit in the first six months of $544,620, compared with $543,977 in the first half of 1933.

McCall Corporation reports net income for the six months ended June 30 of $770,914, after charges, equal to $1.43 a share. This compares with $767,094, or $1.41 a share in the first half of 1933.

Seaboard Oil Co. of Delaware report for the second quarter net profit of $374,576 after charges, equal to 30 cents a share on the capital stock, compared with $222,277, or 18 cents a share in the June quarter last year.

Chicago, Aug. 1 (AP).—The Commonwealth Edison Co. today reported net income of $1,376,326 for the three months ended June 30, compared with $1,455,966 for the similar period of 1933, and $2,163,900 for the first quarter of 1934. The net was equivalent to 85 cents a share.

Houston, Tex., Aug. 1 (AP).—C. B. Wrightman, Houston, president of the Standard Oil Co. of Kansas, announced today the company's net earnings for the second quarter of this year aggregated $100,149.94, equal to 68 cents a share on the 746,646 shares of capital stock outstanding.

San Francisco, Aug. 1 (AP).—Standard Oil Co. of California declared the usual quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share today and reported quarter earnings of 30.6 cents a share.

The earnings doubled the 1933 quarter showing of 14.6 cents. Earnings for the first half of 1934 were $7,340,833, or 56 cents a share, compared with $1,199,413 in the first half of 1933, or 9.2 cents a share.

The dividend declared today will be paid September 15 to stockholders of record August 15.

Farm Products Holding Strong In Weak Commodity Markets

Cash Wheat, Corn, Oats, Rye and Barley End Month Close to Year's Highest Prices; Live Stock Is Unsettled.

U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Economics.

Farm products made a fairly strong average showing in the generally irregular or weak commodity markets near the end of July. Cash spring wheat, also corn, oats, rye and barley were ending the month close to the highest prices of the year, despite unsettlement in prices for future delivery.

Feeds as usual have been advancing with the grain market and have reached highest level seen in nearly four years. Cotton was not far behind, although spot prices dropped a small fraction. Market position of butter and eggs is supported by prospect of lighter supplies and the recent price trend is upward. Poultry markets are irregular with a good market for heavy young chickens.

Potato prices showed a slight tendency to recover after many weeks of decline. Eastern and Midwestern apples of good market quality are selling better. Miscellaneous fruits and vegetables show the usual mixed trend. Dried fruits sold higher with light supply and good demand. Live stock, meats and hides continued weak, unsettled market features because of forced selling, resulting from Western drought conditions and the yard strike in Chicago.

Cotton Slightly Lower.

Cotton prices fluctuated considerably in late July but net declines were slight. Demand was somewhat better than in mid-July. Cloth markets were dull. Exports decreased, compared with recent weeks of corresponding time last year. New England cotton markets reported a slight increase in buying activity. Business was moderate in Southern mill centers, mostly for the medium and higher grades of white cotton.

Growth of the new crop was slow in the Southwest, but mostly satisfactory in the eastern part of the cotton belt. Domestic cash wheat markets were mostly firm near the end of July. There was a material falling off in marketings of winter wheat. Receipts at the principal Central and Southwestern markets decreased sharply.

Marketings of spring wheat were only moderate, but relatively small quantities of Southwestern winter wheat were received at Minneapolis. Durum wheat was independently firm and at Duluth advanced 4 cents, reaching $1.13 per bushel. Choice milling lots sold as high as $1.50. Prospective supplies of durum wheat are below normal requirements.

Cash markets tended upward and the light receipts were about sufficient for limited trade needs. Corn markets were independently firm, reflecting heavy damage to the new crop. Prices advanced 2 to 3 cents a bushel. Oats made some net price gains under light market offerings. Barley prices were firm, with an active inquiry. Samples of new crop barley from southern Minnesota showed fair to good malting barley. A part carload sold at 75 cents a bushel in Minneapolis.

Feed markets continued to strengthen during the second half of July after drought and extreme heat caused further injury to pastures. Average of feed prices was in urgent demand.

Wheat feeds advanced $2 to $4 per ton. Central Western markets were relatively firmer than those in the East and on the Pacific Coast. Cottonseed and linseed meal sold higher, but greatest gains were on the cottonseed products, which were in active demand in the droughty sections. Corn feeds advanced along with the corn markets and alfalfa meal sold higher with the rising hay market. Other feeds were steady to higher in price.

Live Stock Weak and Unsettled.

The live stock markets continued to feel the drought influence as shown by continued heavy supplies of all kinds of live stock and the poor condition of much of the supply. Killers tried to avoid rather than buy light weight grass steers and shippers expressed growing concern over the dwindling receipts of better grades of fed steers. Unfavorable conditions brought about by the strike in the stockyards were gradually clearing up.

Live stock prices were mostly lower except on the more desirable grades. Cattle market trend was irregular. Best cattle were well taken and prices of stockers and feeders advanced 25 to 50 cents. Declines in the lamb trade were rather sharp, with drop of 35 cents to $1 at various Midwestern market centers.

Hog receipts include much poorly finished, light weight stock, but prices fluctuated within narrow limits without much net change. Top prices at all times were considerably under $5 per 100 pounds and average for the last week of July at Chicago and Omaha was 10 to 15 cents below that of the week before.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

The dollar was generally stronger in terms of foreign currencies yesterday.

In the London market, the dollar rate rose ¼ of a cent to close at $5.03 5-16 to the pound. In New York, the pound dipped ¼ of a cent to $5.03¼.

The price of bar gold in London moved up a halfpenny today to a quotation of 138 shillings 1 penny a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.75). Metal valued at $2,256,240 changed hands.

The dollar rose ¼ of a centime in Paris to the equivalent of 6.58⅞ cents to the franc. The latter declined .00⅛ of a cent in the New York trading to 6.59 cents.

Wool Consumption Declines.

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—The New York Wool Top Exchange estimates total domestic consumption of wool exclusive of carpet wool, in June, amounted to 21,882,000 pounds compared with 25,779,000 in May and 60,183,000 in June, 1933. For the first six months the total was 179,159,000 against 246,802,000 in the first half of 1933.

Wheat Climbs On Speculative Buying Rush

Chicago, Aug. 1 (AP).—Aggressive speculative buying, for which world-wide reports of drought damage appeared largely responsible, swept the Chicago wheat market up 3⅛ cents a bushel late today.

Threat of a new heat wave in the United States corn belt added to buoyancy of all grain values. Wheat in Chicago rose to the top-most point since the beginning of June, and corn and rye here each outdid the season's high price record.

Wheat at Liverpool, and wheat and corn at Buenos Aires, also excelled season previous top quotations, with particular notice being taken of severe reduction of grain yields both in Canada and Australia.

Wheat Closes Strong.

Wheat closed strong, 2⅛ to 2⅝ above yesterday's finish; corn, 1⅝ to 1⅞ up; oats, ⅝ to ¾ advanced, and provisions showing 7 to 10 cents gain.

Pronounced strength of foreign grain markets, which have been gradually edging upward more than prices here, received special attention today among wheat traders, but it was not until business neared an end that beyond question wheat took leadership away from corn.

As a matter of fact, considerable of the late buying of wheat was done against simultaneous equal selling of corn. Earlier, the corn market much of the time displayed more strength than wheat did, a reason was that throughout large areas, particularly in Illinois and Indiana as well as in southern Iowa, the corn crop had apparently reached the breaking point, and it was asserted that a renewal of recent heat experience would mean disaster upon a cumulative scale.

Canada Wheat Damages.

Official reports indicating continued deterioration in Canadian wheat crops, with further heavy damage believed probable unless checked by soaking rains, received more and more attention late as a bullish factor.

This was partly due to messages from Winnipeg indicating that Europe had bought large amounts of Canadian wheat for trans-Atlantic shipment, as well as being a big buyer of wheat futures. It was also expected that Chicago crop experts in their reports tomorrow would sharply reduce their estimates of Canadian wheat yields.

Prospects were that tomorrow's unofficial estimates of 1934 United States corn production would show between 1,600,000,000 and 1,700,000,000 bushels compared with the Government July 1 figures of 2,113,000,000 bushels. This would be the smallest crop since 1901, when the total was 1,522,000,000 bushels. Oats traders took their cue mainly from corn action.

Auto Casualty Company Reports Better Profits

Showing a profit of 24.3 per cent, or $430,816, the Keystone Automobile Club Casualty Co. stands second in underwriting profit for 1933 in a list of 100 leading casualty companies compiled by The Spectator, noted insurance journal. Fifty-six of the companies listed failed to make any underwriting profit last year.

Discussing the significance of the analysis, Lewis W. Strahley, general manager of the company, points out that "underwriting profit is the barometer by whcih a company's success can be measured, and we are proud of the record achieved in the face of adverse conditions."

Industries Cut Profits With Higher Costs

Net Gains Found Smaller Than Last Year; Rate of Recovery Up.

By W. R. Huff.

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Perhaps the chief feature of midyear corporate earnings reports has been the tendency for net profits to show smaller proportionate gains over last year than gross income.

This has been true in the case of a number of the largest industrial corporations, although it can not be considered universal, by any means. Railroads, too, have recorded increases in operating costs at a time when income was rising only moderately, if at all.

Many observers have been led to the conclusion thereby that the costs of production have been rising more rapidly than industry can well absorb through increased efficiency in other directions or through expansion of actual income.

Tendency Causes Alarm.

Business men have expressed some alarm at the tendency, since the profit return on industry's net worth is still far below normal, in their opinion. They point not only to increases in the costs of materials and labor, but also to the difficulty of expanding physical volume of sales in the face of rising retail prices, threatened or real workers' strikes and growing taxation.

As an example of the trend of profits, the National City Bank, in its current bulletin, shows that its index of industrial corporation earnings in the second quarter of the year (based on 1926 as 100 and adjusted for seasonal variation) stood at 33.2, compared with 34.2 in the preceding quarter and 37.4 in the last quarter of 1933.

Although actual profits as well as the rate of return increased in the second quarter over the first, the gain was less than the seasonal expectation, it is explained.

Profits Found Substantial.

Nevertheless, industry as a whole would seem to have little cause to complain at the rate of recovery in profits generally this year. The National City Bank's compilation of net profits of 250 companies in the first half-year places the total at $276,563,000, compared with $86,362,000 in the 1933 period, a gain of 220 per cent.

The rate of return on net worth, at the same time, improved to 5.7 per cent from 1.7 per cent. Only 23 per cent of the companies reporting showed deficits, against 44 per cent in the corresponding 1933 period.

Companies unable to obtain retail prices to keep pace with rising production costs naturally made the poorest showing. Baking concerns, for instance, showed a 9 per cent drop in total net profits from last year, while other food producers had a gain of only 3 per cent.

Textiles and Paper.

Textile and paper product manufacturers, whose retail price advances have been especially notable, scored gains of 370 per cent and 217 per cent, respectively, over the 1933 half year.

Auto accessories, electrical equipment, chemicals, petroleum and household supplies were other divisions to record striking improvement.

The bank's bulletin points out that profits of 201 of these companies amounted to $144,338,000 in the second quarter of the year, compared with $84,688,000 in the second quarter of 1933. Since the average level of business activity was nearly 8 per cent higher than a year ago, it is concluded that net profits would have risen by more than this amount had not the costs of doing business increased.

10 Per Cent Increase in Drug Sales.

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—McKesson & Robbins, drug manufacturers, report net sales in June totaled $9,992,537, an increase of more than 10 per cent over the $8,956,800 reported in the same month last year.

All white and brown quotations unchanged.

DRESSED POULTRY — Steady, unchanged.

LIVE POULTRY — Steady to weak; fowls, express, 11@16; other express and all freight unchanged.

BUTTER — Receipts, 22,054; firmer; creamery, first, 88 to 91 scores, 23¼@23½; seconds, 84 to 87 scores, 22¼@22¾; centralized, 90 score, 24¾; other grades unchanged.

CHEESE—Receipts, 364,574; firm; prices unchanged.

RAW SUGAR—Quiet today, but the tone was firm and refiners were showing more interest at the last paid prices of 3.20 for spots and 3.23 for later shipment. Offerings, however, continued light and while there was a sale of 25,000 bags of Cuba's late yesterday at the 3.23 level, there was nothing offered today below 3.23.

Continued firmness in the spot market and a growing belief that the duty on Cuban sugar will be lowered when the reciprocal trade agreement with that country is concluded, was responsible for further advances in futures, with final prices 2 to 3 points net higher. Sales were 18,100 tons. Interest seemed to be centered more particularly in the present crop positions, and after opening at unchanged to a point advance the market worked steadily higher until all positions showed gains of 3 points.

Refined was unchanged at 4.75 for fine granulated. A moderate withdrawal demand was reported, but new business was light and supplied through resale offerings at 4.70.

COFFEE—Spot steady; Rio No. 7, 8¾; Santos No. 4, 11¼. Rio futures closed steady; sales 1,000 bags; September, *8.05; December, 8.30; March, *8.27; May, *8.35. Santos futures steady; sales 19,000 bags; September, *10.70; December, *10.96; March, 10.93; May, 11.00; July, *11.02. *Nominal. †Bid.

Maryland Gas Tax Yields $707,612

July Receipts $13,937 Above Last Year.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—A total of $707,612.72 was paid into the Maryland treasury during July from the 4-cent gas tax for roads, records in the State comptroller's office reveal.

The receipts were greater than any preceding month this year and $13,937.32 higher than last July.

The funds received from liquor taxes and license fees amounted to $88,065.91, of which $61,967.99 came from the $1.10 per gallon excise tax collections. Since the State-wide liquor law became operative last December collections total $980,003.43, but it is indicated collections for the year will fall short of the $1,500,000 budget estimate.

Camp Meeting Scheduled.

Keyser, W. Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—The annual camp meeting at Van Myra camp ground, Burlington, will open August 10 and continue for ten days. The Rev. W. D. Berry, of Washington, a member of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church South, will have charge. Taylor Dunlap will direct the music.

Slot Machine War Renewed.

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Roanoke police are renewing their campaign against slot machines as the result of a decision by Judge John Paul of the United States District Court refusing to grant a permanent injunction restraining officers from molesting the machines or their operators.

Triduum Opens Tonight In St. Dominic's Church

A solemn triduum commemorating the seventh centenary of the canonization of St. Dominic will be held tonight, tomorrow night and Saturday at 7:30 o'clock in St. Dominic's Church, Sixth and E Streets southwest.

The Very Rev. S. R. Brockbank, O. P., P. G., well-known missionary who has preached in St. Dominic's Church on numerous occasions, will deliver the sermon.

LEGAL NOTICES

THOMAS E. RHODES, Attorney
Southern Building.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA. Max D. Ordmann, Plaintiff, vs. Vogtlandische Maschinenfabrik and Alfred Riesiech, as administrator of Robert Kahn, deceased, otherwise known as Vogtlandische Maschinen Fabrik and Reichtenwalt Riesel, executor of Robert Kahn, deceased, Plauen, Vogtlandt, Germany, Defendants. No. 27,196. Law No. 6.
The object of this suit is to recover Six thousand five hundred and eighty-seven dollars and sixty cents ($6,587.60) for professional services rendered, together with the costs of this action, and to have judgment of condemnation of certain property of the defendant levied upon under attachment issued in this suit to satisfy the plaintiff's claim. It is, therefore, this 26th day of July, 1934, ordered that the defendant appear in this court on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, after the day of the first publication of this order, to defend this suit and show cause why said condemnation should not be had; otherwise the suit will be proceeded with as in case of default; provided that this order be published in the Washington Law Reporter and the Washington Post once a week for three successive weeks. By the Court. PETYON GORDON, Justice.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Lost — By Harry J. Tuthill

MY WORD ALF, I STILL CAN'T UNDERSTAND WHY YOU LET THAT PIANO RUB AGAINST THE DOOR WHILE WE WERE MOVING IT INTO THE DINING ROOM.
ANYHOW WE'RE ALL SET FOR THE TRIAL OF THOSE LODGE RED-HOTS.
WE SHOULD HAVE MORE CHAIRS, SOME OF THE JURY WILL HAVE TO STAND.
HORACE TOOK THEM OUT OF THAT CUP IN THE PANTRY.
THEN I LAID THEM ON THE PIANO. DID ANYONE PICK UP THE TEETH BEFORE WE MOVED THE PIANO?
LISTEN BOYS, THOSE TEETH, PRACTICALLY SPEAKING, WERE THE CORNER-STONE OF THE TRIAL
I LOOKED ON THE WINDOW SILLS, THE BOOKCASE, AND SO FORTH.
THEY'RE NOT IN THE PIANO EITHER.
BOYS, THE TRIAL MUST GO ON. HORACE, YOU WEAR FALSE UPPERS. WE CAN USE THEM IN PLACE OF...
I CAN'T TALK WITHOUT MY TEETH. HOW COULD I TESTIFY AT THE TRIAL?
I WONDER IF WE COULD RENT A SET FROM SOME DENTIST AND SMOKE THEM UP SO THEY'D LOOK LIKE BENNY'S?

Walt Mason, Himself

Paying Up.

This slump will hurt the world's condition a hundred years from now, and it will stifle man's ambition and corrugate his brow. He'll have to keep on paying, paying, the bills we now run up; "This is the worst," he will be saying, "since Hector was a pup. Our grandsires blew in countless billions, with energy and skill; and now all toilers and civilians are forced to foot the bill." We groan about our present taxes, they're growing every day, a growth that halts not or relaxes, a graft that's here to stay. The wind all cheerily we're sowing with princely fling and sweep; our children's tears will long be flowing—the whirlwind they must reap. For taxes will keep on increasing when we are dead and gone; posterity, with grief unceasing, will put its goods in pawn. The babies lying in the cradle, when they grow old and stern, to tax collectors still must ladle whatever coin they earn. Their children, yet unborn; will perish beneath the load of debt; their grandsires' names they will not cherish, the'll say we were all wet. And still we're blowing, here and yonder, the coin, like locoed jays, and framing up new schemes to squander such coin as we can raise. We can't square up, while we are living, for all these blown-in wads, and our descendants, unforgiving, will call us beastly frauds.

Jurist Barred From Hearing Berkeley Case

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—A writ restraining J. C. McKown, Berkeley County Court, from hearing a petition which asks that the names of City Attorney H. A. Downs and D. C. James be stricken from registration books of Berkeley County, was granted in circuit court yesterday by Clarence E. Martin, sitting as special judge.

Downs and James declared that McKown had instituted the complaint. D. Grove Moler, attorney for McKown, informed the court that it was satisfactory to grant the writ.

McKown had raised the question of their eligibility on the ground that they were actually residents of Shepherdstown in an adjoining county.

McKown moved yesterday to withdraw the question in county court, explaining that certain questions regarding his own status as a court member prompted him not to confuse the situation further. He explained that he had no intention to reopen the attack upon their eligibility. He said he had opened the question solely as a formality to get court consideration.

Consel for Downs and James said they desired to be fortified with the restraining order in case the matter should be reopened.

McKown's seat on the court was put in jeopardy by a supreme court ruling last week which held that his appointment by Gov. H. G. Kump for the term of six years was illegal.

Wife Released, Husband Jailed As Head of House

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—William Hancock came to Salisbury yesterday to visit his wife, Ruby. He called on U. S. Commissioner Berryman and asked to see his wife, who was in the Wicomico County Jail on a charge of selling liquor.

Deputy Marshall Duffy pulled a paper out of his pocket and read it to Hancock. His wife was released and Hancock held on the charge for the Federal law rules that the husband is still the head of the house.

Truck Kills Man, 76, Stepping in Its Path

Moorefield, W. Va., August 1 (Spl.). Stepping into the path of a mail truck which he had intended to flag down, after he had just stopped another truck in error, B. F. Deitrick, 76, was fatally injured on the State highway near here yesterdy.

Crash Into Officer's Car Costs Driver $145

Hagerstown, Md., August 1 (Spl.).—An automobile driven by J. W. Brown, of Frederick County, crashed into the car of City Policeman William Hamill, who was at the wheel, yesterday.

Brown was fined $100 and costs and also had to pay the repair bill of $45 for damages to the officer's car.

Rites Held in Orange For George W. Warren

Orange, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.). Funeral services for George W. Warren, insurance official and financier, were held yesterday in Westhampton. The Rev. Giles P. Palmer, rector of St. Stephen's Church, officiated.

Mr. Warren is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lillian M. Warren; two daughters, Mrs. James Augustine, and Miss Elizabeth N. Warren; one son, George W. Warren, jr., and one brother, Henry C. Warren, of Orange.

Salem May Abolish Office of Police Chief

Salem, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—The office of chief of police of Salem, held by W. A. Vest for 12 years, may be abolished in the interest of economy and on grounds it is no longer necessary.

Roy P. Bishop, town manager, issued the order which is to be presented to the town council. The charter, however, gives the manager authority to abolish the office subject to council's approval. Chief Vest received a salary of $150 a month.

Gov. Peery to Grant Dixon Second Reprieve

Richmond, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Gov. Peery said this afternoon he intends to grant another reprieve to Clemon Dixon, colored, sentenced to die Friday on charges of murder.

It will be Dixon's second stay. It is to be granted to give time for further inquiry into the case, the Governor said.

Dixon has been tried twice. During the first trial he pleaded guilty and the court permitted the jury to fix the sentence. This was adjudged an error by the appellate court, which held that the judge should have fixed it. In a second trial Dixon pleaded not guilty and was sentenced to death.

Richmond's Mystery Skeleton Vanishes on Way to Coroner

Found buried in a house here Sunday, it created many surmises and started a police investigation. The bones, believed those of a young woman, were sent to police headquarters. Chief of Detectives A. S. Wright put four men on the case and sent the skeleton to Coroner James M. Whitfield for examination.

Coroner Whitfield said today he had not examined it, did not have it in his office and did not know where it was. Inquiry of police at headquarters said they last saw the bones being taken into the coroner's office.

Mattress Plants To Help Jobless

Richmond, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Mattress and quilt factories operated by workers from city relief rolls to make bedding for destitute Virginia families will be opened in various cities throughout the State, Miss Ella Agnew, State director of women's work in Virginia, announced today.

At least six workrooms will be opened, located where requested by relief committees, she said. Norfolk already has asked for one of the centers.

Cotton, ticking and other materials will be furnished by the Federal Government, which has bought 250,000 bales of cotton for that purpose. The workers will be directed by men trained in mattress making.

Prisoner Is Freed By Swarm of Bees

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.). Walter Watson selected a propitious moment to escape from the weed cutting detail supplied by the Washington County Jail daily.

He was busily cutting weeds, when his scythe struck a nest of bumblebees and they immediately began an attack. Patrolman John Lillard, who was guarding the prisoners, last saw Watson in full retreat with the swarm of bees in pursuit.

Orchestra Chosen For Choral Contest

Cumberland Musicians to Play at Festival.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—A Cumberland orchestra will be the official ensemble at the choral contest and music festival to be held at Mount Lake Park Sunday, August 19.

Directed by G. Walter Fisher, 18 local musicians, augmented by eight or ten from Keyser, W. Va., will play accompaniments for the choral bodies in addition to presenting several compositions.

The Rev. Felix G. Robinson, Keyser, general director of the choral festival, announced this morning that 18 choirs from Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania have entered.

At least 10,000 visitors are expected.

Rites Set Today For W. F. Leacock

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.). Funeral services for William F. Leacock, 74, who died yesterday, will be held here tomorrow, with the Rev. Robert Caverlee, of the Fredericksburg Baptist Church, officiating.

Mr. Leacock was a Spanish-American War veteran and a member of the M. B. Rowe Camp of veterans. He is survived by a brother, Preston Leacock.

Accident Toll Rises in July

15 Die of 3,384 Hurt in Industrial Mishaps in Virginia.

Richmond, Aug. 1 (Spl.).—During July 3,384 injuries, resulting from industrial accidents in Virginia, were reported to the State Industrial Commission, and of this number 15 resulted fatally, it is shown in a statement today made public from the office of Frank P. Evans, statistician for the commission.

The number of fatal accidents is reported as "disappointingly large." During July of the previous year injuries reported were 3,084, including 11 fatal cases.

Of the fatalities last month 3 were in manufacturing, 3 in coal mining, 4 in construction and contracting, 2 in public utilities and 3 in other groups.

During July, as in the case of each of the 14 previous months, a considerably larger number of occupational accidents were reported than for the same month of the year before, indicating an improvement in the employment situation from the standpoint of total time worked by all employes. From a partial analysis of the reports, however, it would appear the improvement was largely in construction and commercial groups.

Maryland Grange Session Planned

Frederick, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Preliminary plans are being made for the next annual meeting of the Maryland State Grange in this city, December 4, 5 and 6. The program will be completed at a meeting of the State executive committee in Baltimore next month.

More than 200 delegates are expected. Roy T. Brooks, Bel Air, State master, will preside. Outstanding speakers will address the sessions.

The annual field day of the Frederick County Holstein Association, under the supervision of the State association, scheduled for today at the fair grounds, was postponed until next May, when it will be held in connection with the annual meeting of the association. The field day will embrace Frederick, Carroll and Montgomery Counties.

J. A. Minton Funeral Held.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—The funeral of James Andrew Minton, 80, was held today, with the Rev. George H. Tunstall, pastor of the West End Baptist Church, officiating.

BLACKIE BEAR

"Who Got the Turnovers?"

It was Sunday morning, and "preaching day" at the little church not very far from where Mr. Man lived. You already know that they had planned to go and to wear their new clothes. There was no late Sunday sleeping in that house that morning. Hee-Haw had hardly quit braying before Mr. Man and his wife were both out of bed and getting things ready for the meeting.

Mrs. Man fried chicken and baked biscuits and fixed up a lot of other good things that she was going to put in the basket with the turnovers. She smiled every time she thought of those turnovers, for Mr. Man had not only patted her on the back after eating three or four of them yesterday, but had actually kissed her and told her that she was the very best cook in the world. And so you don't wonder that she smiled when she thought of them, and how he would enjoy eating them today at the church when he would be telling everybody to come up and eat something that the best cook in the world had made.

Yes, the day was staring off fine. Even Mr. Man was trying to whistle "In the Sweet Bye and Bye," while he was out feeding Hee-Haw and his other stock. Then he heard her call him to breakfast, and coffee to go along with it. And a pleasant discussion of whether they would go through the woods or around the road to get to the church. Then the dishes were to wash and everything needed to be straightened up before leaving. Mr. Man had to have his smoke after breakfast, so he sat out on the steps and smoked his pipe and listened to his wife clattering the dishes and singing. When she had finished the dishes and gotten everything ready for the basket, she called Mr. Man to come on and get ready for church.

Now they were children all over again. Mrs. Man handled her new clothes like they had been china, and she was afraid they would break. She never had worn anything like them before—these "Blackie Bear" clothes. New dress, new hat—everything right spang new and full of color!

And Mr. Man! She never had known that he could look that well—at least not since a little while after they were married, when he had quit "sprucing up." It took them a good while to get their new clothes all fixed on them and to get enough of looking in the little mirror on the bureau, but after a while they seemed satisfied, and began to make ready for the finishing touches on their dinner. Mr. Man hitched Hee-Haw to the wagon, put two chairs in it and drove up to the gate.

"Go bring the basket from the springhouse," called Mrs. Man from the kitchen.

And Mr. Man went whistling to get the basket, while he licked his tongue like Blackie Bear, just thinking of how good those turnovers were. He unhooked the door, threw it open and reached for the basket, but—there was no basket there!

Boy Hooks 6-Pounder, Lands It After Dive

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Sanford Snow, Blairton youngster, fishing with some boys recently in the Potomac, found he had hooked a big one. His line became fouled on a log and tugging threatened to break the line and let the fish get away. So Sanford gave the pole to another boy, plunged into the Potomac and seized the fish, bringing it to shore in his bare hands. It was a catfish weighing 6 pounds.

[AN OLD GOLD SMOKER SINCE 1932]

"IF AN ACTOR plays a few two-fisted characters on the screen, some people get the idea he's hard as nails all through.

"But that's not always true. Take my throat, for instance. I have to watch it like every other movie star who works in front of the 'mike.'

"That's why I'm for Old Golds—they never rasp the throat. And what's more, your taste tells you that they're pure tobacco—plenty aged—and not 'fancied-up' with artificial flavors.

JAMES CAGNEY

We'd like to emphasize this point, Mr. Cagney:—No better tobacco grows than is used in Old Gold. And it's pure. That's why Old Golds are easy on the THROAT and NERVES.
